GIRL VICTIM KNEW SLAYERS

PIN IS CLUE TO DANCE MURDER

Four Bullets Hit Girl, but Her Death Was Caused by a Rock, Official Declares

Hamden, Ct., April 27—A clue indicating that 20-year-old Emily Kirk knew the men who kidnaped her from a dance hall late Saturday night, attacked and killed her was given police late today.

Jack Holtz of West Haven, who was at the dance, told investigators he saw two men beckoning to her through a window. She shook her head in refusal, he said. A short time later she vanished.

By a Staff Correspondent

Hamden, Ct., April 27—Three youths seen lurking about the dance hall, from which 20-year-old Emily Kirk was lured, attacked and slain late Saturday night, were definitely listed as murder suspects today by the police.

Their names are not known, but several persons saw them and it is believed they came from New Haven or West Haven, on both of which this town borders.

A bullet found in the slain girl's hair remained the only tangible clue today after a ring and pin, found beside the body, were identified as hers.

Five girl chums are to be questioned for information they may have regarding the affairs of the dead girl, according to James J. Corrigan, coroner of New Haven County.

William Wetmore, a farmhand employed by Emily's father, was questioned shortly after Corrigan launched his inquest, but quickly eliminated.

HIT BY FOUR BULLETS

Corrigan announced this afternoon that four .25-caliber bullets had penetrated the girl's flesh, but none caused a serious wound. He said that the medical examiners had proved beyond a doubt that she was brutally attacked.

"Death was caused by the boulder, weighing about 25 pounds, which crushed the right side of her head," he said. "It produced a cranial hemorrhage. Both jaws were fractured.

Fitchburg Lodge Fined $500 for Rum

The Rollstone Lodge Corp. of Fitchburg, through its treasurer, Herman Kingsley, was fined $500 and placed on probation for one year in Federal Court today on charges of violating the national prohibition act.

Judge James A. Lowell accepted a plea of guilty by Kingsley on behalf of the corporation. The lodge was raided several weeks ago by federal agents, who claim they found 1032 bottles of alleged beer and 2½ gallons of alleged liquor.

SPLINTERS CUT FROM BRAIN

Several bone splinters, embedded in the brain of Thomas Creed of Haverhill, were removed at City Hospital today in one of the most delicate operations known to medical science.

The operation, which last for about six hours, was performed by Dr. Donald Munroe, who announced at its conclusion the patient was doing as well as could be expected.

Creed was taken to the operating room the first time in the morning, being under anesthetics more than three hours.

After a brief rest he was taken back in the afternoon, and Dr. Munroe continued the task of removing bits of bone from his brain.

Creed, injured in an automobile accident last Saturday in Haverhill, was suffering from a fractured skull, pieces of which were embedded in the brain tissue.

He was brought to Boston yesterday by his brother, Dr. John T. Creed of Haverhill, and X-rays disclosed that splinters of the bone were piercing the brain tissue.

The automobile in which Creed was riding with three other Haverhill men was forced off the Lawrence road, Haverhill, early Saturday morning. After the car crashed through a fence it crashed into a tree.

Brockton, April 27—A 400-pound safe containing $59.64 was carried away from the chain store at 1108 Main st. during the night by thieves who overlooked $20 in a nearby open cash till. Two doors were broken and one unlocked to get at the safe.

Squirrels Balk at the New Time

How that one hour saved disrupts things!

Today being the first this season on the daylight saving schedule, the "believe it or nots" poured in early.

Outstanding perhaps is the sworn testimony of G. Frank Radway, veteran photographer of the Boston Evening American, that a strike is on in some quarters against the new hour.

Frank, who wakes the public up in his quest for news photographs, was the first to report that the Boston Common squirrels refused to change their breakfast time to conform with the new schedule.

They even passed up the usual walnuts that every morning at 5:29 are given them by Frank as he crosses the Common to start his day's work.

The four-footed friends refused to accept them this morning so he left them to await the bright sun that would tell them it was 5:29 when the clock said 5:29.

Then there are the scores who reported late for work this morning. Like the deceased grandmother excuse of the ball game loving office boy, daylight saving was the yarn this morning.

The children—who usually awake the fond father for work—overslept and said fond father was late. Oh, there were many of them. So on through the day, daylight saving was scored, but the biggest battle comes in the evening when little tots are trundled in bed in the midst of objecting—it ain't night time yet.

Only five more months to go!

AUTO TAG GOES BACK TO MAYOR

Police Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman today returned to Mayor Curley the parking tag that was placed on the mayor's automobile in Province st., near City Hall, last week.

Accompanying the tag was a letter in which Commissioner Hultman stated that he can find no evidence to support the mayor's opinion that Leo Schwartz, counsel to the police department, was connected in any way with the tagging of the vehicle.

The commissioner pointed out that an operator of a vehicle which is tagged for violation of the traffic rules should take it to the police station within 48 hours.

COMMON SENSE LACKING

Mayor Curley, in a letter acknowledging receipt of the Hultman communication, stated that he recognized that decency, dignity and decorum are essential to law enforcement, but regretted that the essence of common sense, in this case at least, is lacking.

Commissioner Hultman's letter read:

"My legal adviser, Mr. Leo Schwartz, has referred to me your letter of the 24th of April, as it refers to a police matter with

Man in Alien Case Put on Probation

Michael Cerato of West Springfield, charged with violation of the immigration act, pleaded guilty in Federal Court today and was placed on probation for one year by Judge James A. Lowell. The indictment charged that Cerato gave an American passport to Antoni Verivo, an alien, of Italy, for the purpose of coming to this country to gain admittance.

BRAVES SCORE 2 IN THIRD

Baker Bowl, Philadelphia, Pa., April 27—The Boston Braves squared off with the Phillies for the first time this season in the first of a three-game series at Baker Bowl.

Shotten picked Ray Benge to hurl while Harry Seibold opposed him on the mound.

It was a cold, cloudy day, and only a handful of faithful fans turned out to see the game.

FIRST INNING

Braves—Wilson filed to Lee. Maranville singled to right center. Richbourg forced Maranville, Friberg to Bartell, but when Bartell threw wild to first trying to double Richbourg, the latter went to second. Berger grounded to Whitney. NO RUNS.

Phillies—Berger took Friberg's high fly. Bartel filed to Clark. Klein rolled to Seibold. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Braves—Sheely took a third strike. Clark filed to Lee. Spohrer popped to Friberg. NO RUNS.

Phillies—Whitney filed to Barger. Arlett smashed to Sheely, unassisted. Lee lifted to Richbourg. NO RUNS.

Fishing Skipper Is Burned in Blast

Edgartown, April 27 (AP)—Capt. Robert A. Jackson, widely known skipper of sword fishing schooners, was seriously burned in an explosion and fire today. John Sanders and George Paul were slightly burned and Edmund Richard was overcome by smoke.

Jackson was opening a can of varnish remover when a match was struck and the explosion followed.

SLAIN NURSE TAKEN FROM HER GRAVE IN NIGHT

Doctors Fit "Found" Teeth Into Her Mouth and Photograph Slayer's Fingerprints

By JAMES J. SMITH

Newport, R. I., April 27,—Exhumed secretly from its grave in Portsmouth Cemetery, the body of Verna Russell, slain Fall River nurse, was removed to Newport before dawn today and subjected to photography and a second examination.

The body was returned to its grave about 12 hours after removal and without a second autopsy having been performed.

In the twin rays of an automobile's headlights, while wind whistled eerily in the fringing trees, gravediggers unearthed the body, buried a month ago, while Rhode Island officials and Dr. George Burgess Magrath, Boston pathologist, shrugged deep in their light coats and watched.

A few hours later, in the Charles A. Hambly funeral parlors in Mann ave., Newport, Dr. Magrath and others scrutinized the body and dental work, after which a photographer made pictures of marks on the neck.

DOCTORS ARE PRESENT

These marks are alleged to have been made by the hands of Elliott Hathaway of Fall River, now in jail at Cranston, awaiting action in the murder case.

Present at the secret exhumation and in the undertaking rooms, in addition to Dr. Magrath, were Dr. Charles H. Bryant of Portsmouth, medical examiner, who performed the original autopsy; Dr. Emlus Peasley of Truesdale Hospital, Fall River, where Miss Russell was a student nurse; Dr. Lester Rounds, State pathologist; Dr. James W. Holt of Fall River, the slain nurse's dentist; Henry A. Applin and Walter Coolidge, photographers; Chief George H. Potter of Tiverton police, and State troopers.

DOCTOR'S EXPLANATION

Following the photographing and inspection of the body, Dr. Bryant issued the following statement:

"The reasons for the exhumation of the body were for additional photography and to have the dental work that had been performed on the deceased by Dr. Holt of Fall River confirmed by him and to note any other corroborative findings in relation to the death.

"Dr. Rounds State pathologist, also was present to secure certain data that might aid in the prosecution of the case.

OTHER PICTURES TAKEN

"It must be definitely understood that this was not a second autopsy and was not held for the purpose of determining any other cause of death than was originally stated when the autopsy was performed by me on March 24.

"The proceedings today were held under my direction, and Dr.

SCHEMES BARED BY LOS ANGELES NEWSPAPER

Poison Pen Letters and Publicity Threats Usual Methods of the Racketeers

Hollywood, Cal., April 27—The Los Angeles Evening Herald today printed an article detailing how film people have become the target of racketeers.

The so-called "shakedown racket" in Los Angeles has been in progress for several years, and the criminal files of the police department are filled with reports of cases which are labeled "extortion," the Herald says.

POISON PEN RACKET

The "poison pen" racket is the one most commonly used. Small weekly newspapers of mushroom growth which appear and disappear tomorrow are often used. Threats to "expose" celebrities in these weeklies or books or pamphlets are the commonest form of shakedown. There are many known instances of innocent persons paying from $500 to $10,000 to prevent character attacks which could be absolutely untrue but which might prove ruinous in many ways.

Threats of attack and exposure over the radio has been another prolific source of income to the shakedown racketeers.

The moving picture industry, politicians, men in public life and business men have all encountered the shakedown artists. Stars of the film world have particularly been "game" for these sharpshooters. Young men and women who have quickly risen to stardom are continually approached with demands for money.

MOVIE STARS HIT

The good reputations of these people are vital to their success on the screen. This is legally recognized in the so-called "morality clause" of every motion picture contract under which the contract automatically cancels in case of any serious mental or moral lapse or may be—of moral laxity is fastened upon the star.

So the shakedown prowls among them, watching and plotting. He questions their maids and employers and their discharged assistants.

He listens to gossip. And pretty soon the young movie girl or youth is encountered by a person who has a "story" about them and who is open to "reasonable financial offers." And box office receipts. For a consideration the "story" will perish. Unless there is consideration the story will be published. Many young celebrities pay. Some report the matter to the police only to find the racketeer had a method of legal protection, through the demand for money being stated as a "loan," or "payment for advertising."

BANGOR CLUE IN GIRL SLAYING

New York, April 27—An unidentified girl, about 21 years old, believed to be a resident of Bangor, Me., was found shot to death on a lonely road in Yonkers today.

Police officials think the girl was shot in an automobile and that her body was then thrown out of the machine over a four-foot wall and into a clump of bushes.

That the girl was a former resident of Bangor, was considered possible as a result of the finding of a partially filled medicine bottle, the prescription for which had been written by Dr. H. J. Hunt of Bangor. The bottle bore a label from the Sawyer Drug Store Co., also of Bangor.

DOUKHOBORS OUST 'REDS'

Nelson, B. C., April 27 (AP)—Personal belongings of the Sons of Freedom, radical faction of the Doukhobors, have been seized by officers of the main sect after the bombing of "King" Peter Verigen's tomb.

Members of the group, blamed by authorities for various bombings and the burning of school houses, have not been forcibly ejected, but the moving of their property was taken as a warning for them to vacate their homes. The families have refused to leave.

Belongings of more than 200 families living in and near Brilliant Glade and Thrumps have been transported to a section of land near Porto Rico, owned by the main organization.

Hoover Shows He Is a Good Sailor

Washington, April 27 (AP)—President Hoover had the opportunity last night to demonstrate that he was a good sailor.

Returning to Washington from Cape Henry, Va., aboard the Commerce Department boat Sequoia, the party met with rough seas, and the 160-foot boat rolled and pitched vigorously, but put into dock promptly at 9 o'clock as sch duled.

VISAGRAPH IS DEMONSTRATED

More than 100 delegates to the world conference for the blind, now being held in New York city, visited Perkins Institution for the Blind, at Watertown today. While there they were given a demonstration of the visagraph by Rev. Robert E. Naumberg, the inventor.

The visagraph is a system of printing in which aluminum foil is used to raise letters. It takes the place of the Braille system in which paper or pasteboard was used.

The delegates, who numbered 94 from foreign countries and 20 from the United States, were addressed in the chapel by Edward Allen, director of the institution. They spent the day in observing the manner in which classes were conducted. This evening they will attend a concert in Dwight Hall by the chorus of more than 100 students of the institution.

The visitors were joined today by Lady Francis Campbell of Watertown, widow of Sir Francis Campbell, who founded Royal Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind in London. The delegates will remain in Boston through tomorrow.

U.S. LAUDED FOR WAR ON DRUGS

Berlin, April 27 (US)—America has done more to combat the dope evil than the League of Nations which has been allegedly fighting the illicit narcotic trade for 10 years.

The chief result of the League's endeavors to suppress illicit trade in narcotics and to limit the world's manufacture of drugs has resulted only in the erection of new drug factories in France and Switzerland.

This is the criticism against the League of Nations by Dr. Kurt Pohlisch, noted international drug expert attached to the University of Berlin and adviser to the World Narcotic Defense Association.

Dr. Pohlisch today told Universal Service:

"Although the league has been working on the international drug problem for more than 10 years, it was found necessary to organize a new society, the World Narcotic Defense Association, which during the two years of its existence has independently attained startling results.

"The new society was founded and is financed by Americans and, while it co-operates with the League of Nations, it is in no way connected with it. America is doing more to combat the illicit distribution of drugs throughout the world than the league itself."

Dance Hall Kidnapers Sought After Body Is Found in Woods

head, not penetrating the scalp, however.

There were powder burns on the arm, hand and ear, showing the bullets had been fired from close range, and a finger of the right hand was broken. The hand was also lacerated.

BATTLED FURIOUSLY.

"She had battled furiously to protect herself, that's plain," Hier clothing—she was wearing no coat—was torn.

"The head of her right shoe was deeply gouged and her legs were covered with dirt, indicating that she had been dragged to the spot where the body was found. Her left stocking was torn about the calf of the leg.

"She had also been struck with a ginger ale bottle, a broken piece of which was found under her head. Her body was found at 6:30 Sunday morning and she had been dead about eight hours. Rigor mortis had just begun to set in.

"She was not big, but she was strong, and there must have been at least two men involved, very likely three."

Wetmore, the farmhand who was questioned, is a cousin of Clement Wetmore, brother-in-law of the dead girl. The latter was one of the first to reach the spot where the body was found and he fainted.

The crime is the most atrocious in Greater New Haven for many years. Police believe the three strangers seen at the dance were under the influence of liquor and that they seized the girl outside the dance hall, carried her away in an automobile and later took her life to avoid arrest for attacking her.

It is reported she refused to dance with one or more of them as a dance here a week or two ago.

Hamden, a prosperous suburb of New Haven, is aroused as it has never been before, and scores are actually taking part either officially or on their own initiative in the search for clues.

MANY SEEKING CLUES.

Besides the State police and the authorities of New Haven, West Haven and Hamden, relatives and friends of the murdered girl and many outsiders were busy asking questions, surveying the murder scene, reporting clues and theories to the police today.

The girl's mother is prostrated, under a physician's care, and can see no one. It is the second great tragedy of her life. Eight years ago her son, Edward, was crushed to death in a farming machine.

The girl's father, Charles H. Kirk, a farmer, living with his family on West Shepherd ave. was taking it stoically, refusing to talk about it and going about his daily duties as usual.

LOOKED LIKE BANDITS.

The Boston Evening American learned today that three youths, who may have been the same ones seen at the dance Saturday night, made inquiries at a house on West Shepherd ave. a week earlier, asking the way to the fire station, where a dance was being held.

These inquiries were made at the home of Charles and Fred Leavenworth, two brothers. William Avis, who was visiting them and went to the door, was so struck by their appearance that he remarked:

"Looks as if we might have a few holdups around here."

Emilly Kirk was a strong girl as she had proven in tests of strength with workmen on her father's farm, slinging 40-quart milk cans to a truck with the best of them. This fact entrenches the police in their theory that three men were probably involved in the murder.

There are strong indications that the crime was not committed at the spot where the body was found, about a quarter of a mile from the fire station where the dance was in progress.

RECONSTRUCT CRIME

Reconstructing the crime, police said that Emilly probably was confronted by the three strangers as she stepped from the dance hall about 9 o'clock Saturday night to go to her father's automobile to change her clothes.

She had been acting as a volunteer waitress at a chicken dinner preceding the dance which was in the Mix District volunteer fire company's headquarters and was to change into a party dress.

Investigators believe she was then seized, her cries muffled and carried away in an automobile to a deserted spot where she was attacked and slain and later her body was dragged to the place where it was found.

Her absence from the dance hall was first noted by her mother. She asked help and the search began, but it did not end for several hours, until the searchers, in a driving rain, found the body.

Three local youths were questioned early today but were not held and police explained they offered alibis to the reports which they were seen near the death scene.

LOVE LETTERS SOUGHT

Love letters received by the girl from an unnamed admirer are also a subject of investigation, but John Peterson, 21, the only man who called on her at the Kirk home, according to her father, is placed above suspicion by the authorities.

The father, long known as an ardent prohibitionist, blames the crime on liquor, according to friends of the family. A large number of empty bottles outside the hall where the dance took place were mute testimony today of drinking at the affair.

More than 50 persons had been questioned at noon today by the various police investigators, but most of them could shed little new light on events leading up to the crime.

A ballistic expert has been given the bullets for examination and the vital organs of the girl are to be turned over to Yale University experts for examination.

The clothing, which was torn, indicating that she had fought furiously for her honor, has been taken in charge by local police as important evidence. When found the body was clad in the slender white dress and apron which she wore when she left the dance hall to change into a party frock.

The murder was the one topic of conversation in town yesterday, as the downpour kept people from the church. The slain girl attended Mt. Carmel Congregational Church, and the Rev. Theodore Williams of Lathrop, recalled she had never missed a Sunday school session.

RODE HORSEBACK MUCH

She was an experienced horseback rider and was often seen tearing over the country on one of her father's thoroughbreds. Her parents were too shocked to attend church yesterday.

The dance Saturday night was a mecca for scores from all around the countryside. But as at other such affairs here, youths of a rougher element from New Haven or West Haven were not welcome, and it is believed they may have resented this and deliberately set out to "start something."

The town of Hamden is the largest in area in the State, but there is a strong community spirit and the frequent dances and suppers are always well attended. It was because of her activity in connection with these affairs that Emily was so well known and popular.

The dances of the Mix District fire company were the most popular of all the town's affairs and as a member of the auxiliary—her elder brother, Dwight, being a member of the company—Emily took a leading role.

The heavy rain of Sunday handicapped the investigators in their efforts to find tracks which might help solve the mystery of what happened to the popular girl after she ran gaily from the brilliantly lighted hall and its merrymaking into the darkness.

Here's the Grin

LEAGUE COURT SITS IN GREAT PEACE PALACE

Meets and Works in Carnegie Building and Draws Its Pay From Geneva

This is the first of four articles on the league court, now in session at The Hague. Today's describes the peace palace in which the court sits. And the tribunal's dependence on the League of Nations.

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

The Hague, April 27—Two heroic figures, perched high on the wall of the judicial chamber, look down on the sessions of the league court here.

One represents justice, the other truth.

Justice has her eyes closed, her face is sad.

Truth's eyes, likewise closed, are pointed away from the court.

The court is quartered in the peace palace which Andrew Carnegie built. Of red brick, with a jagged, steep-pitched roof of slate, the building is a massive structure, set in a sprawling garden. It resembles a glorified courthouse which the citizens used to erect in the boom towns of the American plains during the eighties.

BUILDING IS FUNEREAL

Inside the building is cold, ornate, funereal. People tread the corridors silently. Conversation is in hushed tones.

Here, in this atmosphere of painful stillness, the court meets and works and renders judgments, or, continuing its function as the legal department of the league at Geneva, gives advisory opinions to the council or assembly.

There's no mistaking here that the court is big and baggy of the League. Court officials are in constant communication with Geneva. The money comes from Geneva. The authority is derived from Geneva. In short, the court could not exist a day without Geneva, its master. And the judges, discussing advisory opinions in private conversation, speak always of the duty they owe Geneva.

JUDGES DOZE IN BIG CHAIRS.

Along the bench, covered with a green and gold cloth, are piles of books and documents. The chairs are large and comfortable. The judges appreciate that convenience. They recline, half dozing, as counsel before them. Voices roll to the vaulted ceiling and are lost.

Not all the work is done in public—far from it. Private sittings are held in a smaller room on the floor above. There an electrical system is used to carry the words of the interpreters.

which he is not concerned. I can find no evidence to support the opinion that Mr. Schwartz was connected with this matter in any way whatsoever.

"According to the records of the police department, an automobile bearing registration plates 558 was tagged by Officer J. F. Dolan for double line parking in Provin...st. An operator who is tagged for violating a traffic rule or regulation should take the slip within 48 hours to the station house; therefore, I am returning it to you, No. A13,814, which should be turned in to Division 2, Milk st., Boston, by the operator of the car bearing registration No. 576."

MAYOR NOTES COURTSY

Mayor Curley replied as follows:

"I beg to acknowledge receipt of your communication received this day requesting that the tag placed upon my automobile be returned by the operator to Division 2 of the Boston Police Department.

"The request will be honored, and I beg you will accept my sincere appreciation for the exceptional courtesy which you have displayed to me and the office which I occupy in this entire matter.

"I recognize that decency, dignity and fairness are necessary to law enforcement, but regret that the essence of common sense in this case at least is lacking."

Doug. Fairbanks Denies Rift Between Himself and Mary

London, April 27—When Douglas Fairbanks, American film star, arrived here late yesterday from Rome, his first act was to deny emphatically any report that all is not well with his domestic relations with his wife, Mary Pickford. He said:

"There are no differences between us; there has been no suggestion of divorce or separation. It is a figment of someone's too active imagination.

Mary Pickford

"Mary and I are quite happy together. She is sailing for London soon. We're going to spend a long holiday together in England."

Edgar Wallace Is Souring on Women

London, April 27—Edgar Wallace, the first novelist to apply mass production methods to mystery fiction, apparently is turning sour on women. Wallace, who has described thousands of the fair sex in his stirring tales, declared "Robinson Crusoe" is a great book because there is no woman in it.

The newspaperman - novelist revealed his misanthropic viewpoint in a radio address on the 200th anniversary of the death of Daniel Defoe, creator of the famous Robinson Crusoe.

Third Bride of Police Adonis Wealthy Widow

New York, April 27 (AP)—George S. Wandling, known as the "Adonis Cop," has sent to the papers in much detail announcement of his forthcoming third wedding. The bride will be Mrs. Myrtle Eugenia Stells, widow of a real estate operator.

Wandling describes her as a beautiful and possessor of a fortune of $5,000,000. The announcement notes his previous marriages ended in divorces, Mrs. Wandling No. 1 being described as Miss Claire Suggs, daughter of a wealthy banker of Buffalo, and No. 2 as Frances Ingram, opera star "rating $8,000,000."

Cupid Great Aid to Health of Women, Declares Doctor

London, April 27 (INS)—"Women, if you want to keep fit and well, fall in love. Cupid is one of the greatest aids to health."

Such is the advice given by Dr. Josiah Oldfield, British physician.

"When a girl falls in love," Dr. Oldfield says, "she already has food better, her hair possesses more sheen and her eyes more gloss. All foods taste good, her intake becomes a modern nectar, and her output is music and laughter, singing and the joyous dance."

Rich Yukon Gold Strike Affirmed

Vancouver, B. C., April 27 (AP)—Recent reports of an important gold strike near Carmacks, Yukon were confirmed today by Anton K. Money, a business man, on his arrival from the north. He said free milling gold, reported to assay as high as $300 to the ton, had been found on the headwaters of Big Creek, 45 miles from Carmacks.

University Will Make Twin Survey

Berkeley, Cal., April 27 (AP)—The University of California is to learn all about twins from 150 pairs located in the vicinity. A survey will be made on such things as the effect of heredity in twinning, whether twins are harder to raise, whether they should be dressed alike.

WIFE, IN TEARS, FORGETS YOUNG LOVE AND TURNS ON GIGOLO

"Legs" Diamond, Shot in Ambush, Again Fighting for Life

IN RUTH-JUDD LOVE TRAIL

GIGOLO'S LOVE NOTES BARED IN SHOOTING

Wife Who Wanted Youth and Gayety, but Who Found Folly, Turns on Suitor

New York, April 27 (US)—Relieved for the time being from the strain of further questioning, Mrs. Amy Conlin, 35, Queens housewife, wept and bo-rated her erstwhile sweetheart, James De Pew, 22, in Long Island City jail today.

Not far away, in St. John's Hospital, physicians removed from the spine of her husband, John Conlin, the bullet that De Pew sent there, last Monday, in a holdup by which he hoped to get enough money for Mrs. Conlin to go to Reno and get a divorce.

Conlin is paralyzed from the waist down and doctors predict for him a lingering death.

Both Mrs. Conlin and De Pew are held on charges of assault and robbery, police asserting that she was aware of De Pew's plan to hold up Conlin.

Today District Attorney Hallinan was to go before the grand jury and, it is understood, attempt to show a love pact between Mrs. Conlin and De Pew, similar to the Snyder-Gray triangle. He will introduce some 25 letters that passed between De Pew and Mrs. Conlin. In most of these De Pew signed himself as "Sonny Boy" and Mrs. Conlin as "Your Baby."

SAYS SHE PLEADED

De Pew, dapper, well dressed, plucking nervously at a sparse growth of sandy hair on his upper lip, told detectives he had staged a fake robbery in the Conlin home, 21-22 37th st., Astoria, to obtain money to send Mrs. Conlin to Reno for a divorce.

But Mrs. Conlin had another story to tell.

"He called me on the phone at my home Sunday night and told me that he was going to rob my husband," she sobbed. "I begged him not to do it. He said he would only use a fake gun. I begged and begged him not to try it. But he came anyway."

As she said it she looked like anything but one who would inspire a violent crime of passion.

She looked every bit of the 37 years she admitted. She is of average height. Her figure is slender—almost skinny. Her pretty face is almost emaciated in its singularity. Her nose is long and thin. Her eyes are dark and clouded. Only in the thin lips and straight lines of her mouth is there any hint of power.

SOUGHT YOUNG LOVE

Her clothes at the time were almost dowdy. A close-fitting black hat covered her jet black hair. A worn velvet coat hung from bony shoulders. Tan silk stockings covered her thin legs and her feet were encased in black patent leather shoes, trimmed with lizard skin.

The story behind the story, the instrument of fate that pulled the strings actuating these puppets of passion, was the same as that behind the brutal murder of Albert Snyder by his wife and her paramour, Judd Gray.

Mrs. Conlin was a bored wife. The last vestiges of her youth were fading. Her pretty face that had been the key to romance in her earlier life was fast losing its beauty.

In her heart was a lust for life and excitement, for love—love of any sort.

Conlin, staid manager of Castle Hall, Astoria, was 41 years old. He was settled. He took pride in his home. He had no love for the gaiety of Broadway night life that held his wife's thoughts and desires.

COMES THE GIGOLO

And then into the life of Amy Conlin there came a gigolo.

Just a gigolo!

Tall, handsome, well-dressed, smooth of speech and manner. He

Other witnesses in the Vaughan case before the grand jury today included Dr. Alfred A. Amendola of Newton, who, like Paliotti, was a depositor in the Nonantum Banking Co., and James B. Melcher, cashier of Newton National Bank. Bank Commissioner Arthur Guy and his predecessor in that office, Roy A. Hovey, were on hand ready to be heard in the inquiry which is being held in East Cambridge court under direction of Asst. Dist. Atty. Volpe.

BULLETS TAKEN FROM BODY OF RACKETEER

Is in Albany Hospital After Attack in Roadhouse at Cairo, N. Y.

Albany, N. Y., April 27 (INS)—Jack "Legs" Diamond, New York gangster and racketeer, battled against death again today. He was shot in the back five times last night.

Dr. Thomas W. Holmes, in a hospital here, early today removed five shotgun slugs from Diamond's back.

Dr. Holmes said his condition is "very serious" and "he may not live." Dr. Holmes declared a buckshot had lodged in Diamond's lung and another bullet may have penetrated his liver.

The racketeer was felled from ambush as he walked from the dining room to the entrance of Arrowtoga Inn at Cairo, 10 miles from Catskill.

The shooting occurred in the region where Diamond maintains a summer home at Acra, N. Y. Two bodyguards were said to have been with the gangster chief but escaped the gunfire.

WOUNDED IN 1930

Diamond had returned to Acra recently from New York, where he was shot five times in a hotel on September 2, 1930, shortly after his return from Germany. He had been forced to return because of his criminal reputation, foreign authorities ordering him back to the United States.

Last week Diamond was released in $25,000 bail on charges of assault and kidnaping. He was indicted by the grand jury in Greene County, New York, after Grover Parks related he had been beaten up by Diamond's men while delivering a load of cider. Parks charged that Diamond's gang roped him up and built a fire under his feet, after severely beating him.

Investigating officers were told various versions today of how last night's shooting occurred. One story was that he had been dining at the inn with several companions and for some unexplained reason suddenly left the table and walked to the door.

Shots were heard and Diamond was found on the floor of the entrance hall. His assailant or assailants had vanished.

ACCUSED OF EXTORTION.

Diamond's shooting closely followed a charge by Frank H. Cook, president of the Catskill Chamber of Commerce, that the racketeer was extorting $1,000,000 annually from liquor sellers and farmers. Cook said most of the huge sum came from farmers of Greene county, who had complained that Diamond's henchmen demanded tribute of 50 cents a barrel for cider they sold.

It was reported here that appeals had been made to Gov. Roosevelt by the farmers to drive Diamond from the state, and the Governor was said to have been closely watching developments in Green county. Roosevelt was understood to have been responsible for sending state troopers to the Acra section.

ACTION BY ROOSEVELT.

Governor Roosevelt today ordered Atty.-Gen. Bennett to investigate the latest shooting of Diamond.

Counsel for Diamond was scheduled to appear before Supreme Court Justice F. Walter Bliss at Catskill and announce whether a demurrer would be filed against the indictment for assault and kidnaping.

It had been hoped to bring Diamond to trial on three indictments next month, but his trial will be delayed because of his shooting.

Two weeks ago Governor Roosevelt ordered Bennett to supersede Gardner to prosecute the investigation of the alleged mysterious death of Mrs. George Rodiger, who was found dead in a bathtub at her home near Freehold.

DIVORCE CANON STIRS CHURCH

New York, April 27 (AP)—The proposed divorce reform canon, drafted by the joint commission on divorce of the Episcopal church and made public yesterday, evoked favorable an unfavorable criticism today.

The Rev. Dr. Caleb R. Stetson, rector of Old Trinity Church and member of the Anglo-Catholic wing here, approved the report in principle. He approved heartily the proposal for a diocesan court to pass upon marital cases.

HIT AS "COMPROMISE"

From the liberal camp, the Rev. Dr. Guy Emery Shipler, editor of The Churchman, described the suggested canon as a "somewhat futile compromise."

"I have, always felt," he said, "that the performance of the marriage ceremony should be divorced from the church, following the early Christian practice."

The proposed canon embodies a radical change in the marriage law of the church. It would eliminate all grounds for divorce, but at the same time create many grounds for annulment.

While waiving the church's centuries-old opposition to remarriage of divorced persons, it would authorize the establishment of ecclesiastical courts to pass upon marital cases, including annulment and remarriage.

E SHOP IN WARNING.

Bishop Herman Page, in issuing his report, warned that the suggested revision did not "throw wide open" the doors to re-marriage of divorced persons.

"Under the proposed canon," he said, "no clergyman of this church can remarry divorced persons unless the bishop, or a duly constituted court, shall declare the purposes of Christian marriage will be best served by the marriage."

SHAPLEY FINDS BIG NEW STARS

Washington, April 27 (AP)—Discovery of stars 40,000 times as radiant as the sun and as much as 186,000,000 miles across was announced today before the National Academy of Sciences.

Dr. Harlow Shapley, astronomer and director of Harvard Observatory, told of the huge new stars in describing explorations into distant reaches of space that may shed new light on the "limits" of the universe and on mathematical theories about the nature of space.

Discovery of the enormous new stars resulted from a census being taken by the Harvard Observatory of the thousands of remote galaxies, giant star clusters that contain tens of billions of stars and are thousands of light years across. The galaxies serve as distant "mile posts" in the night sky, with the aid of which Dr. Shapley is seeking new knowledge of the universe.

TWO WINSLOW GIRLS TO WED

Boston society folk are looking forward to an attractive event for the Newport colony this summer—a double wedding—as a result of announcement of the engagement of Miss Emilie Winslow and Cecil Irton Wylde today.

Two weeks ago, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cameron McRae Winslow of 25 Commonwealth ave. announced the engagement of their elder daughter, Miss Theodora, to August L. Noel of New York, the wedding to take place at Newport in June.

Their announcement today of the younger daughter's betrothal contains the statement that she, too, will be a Newport June bride. In neither case was the date of the nuptials announced.

Wylde is English, his home being at Holbrook, Cumberland, but he is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1927, and is associated with a noted Boston firm of architects. He is a member of several clubs. Miss Winslow is a Junior Leaguer and Vincent Club member.

Every American Is Still Eating Ton of Food a Year

New York, April 27 (AP)—In spite of everything, the average American continues—Standard Brands Incorporated said today—to eat a ton of food a year.

That is the same tonnage the average American consumed 30 years ago, the statisticians explain, but the variety is much greater now than then.

The nation's annual grocery bill is estimated at $20,000,000,000, which is about three times as much as it was in 1914.

NEW AUTO BILL IS ADVOCATED

Advocates of a financial responsibility law and demerit system to take the place of the present compulsory automobile liability law in this State were subjected to grilling today by members of the joint committee on ways and means at the State House.

Representative William B. Baker of Newton said the proposed law would only affect the registration of a car involved in an accident and that the driver would still retain his license, unless, through a separate action, the registrar of motor vehicles saw fit to revoke or suspend it.

Another member of the committee, Representative Daniel J. Coakley of Chicopee, criticized the bill because of the failure to guarantee the rates would be lower.

Representative Eliot Wadsworth, House chairman of the committee which reported the bills, said the compulsory law had not stopped accidents, for drivers don't worry over their record. The legislation proposed, he said, will make them worry and will make them insure their cars.

He said automobilists wouldn't be free to operate without responsibility until they had their first accident either. An order to insure could be made at any time for those found infringing the automobile laws.

The construction of the new George Eastman research laboratories, now almost completed, plans for construction of a new cryogenic laboratory and notable additions to the research staff next year are part of the extensive program.

BODY OF NURSE EXHUMED IN SLAYING

Magrath was present solely as an invited observer. He was present at the invitation of myself and Atty.-Gen. McLyman to observe the proceedings."

Dr. Bryant added that new photographs were made, as photographs made at the autopsy were "faulty."

Before Dr. Bryant came out to make his statement, Dr. Magrath left the inspection rooms and declared to a Boston Evening American reporter:

"Whatever is said must come from Dr. Bryant. I am here as his guest and as a consultant." He added, however:

"This is a very interesting case. No case in recent years has challenged newspapers as this has done. You have stuck to it and your work has been of great assistance."

So incensed were Rhode Island officials over the discovery early today of the exhumation and other scoops made by the Boston Evening American in recent years has challenged Hambly, at the request of Chief Potter of Tiverton and others, ordered the Boston Evening American reporter from the undertaking parlors and locked the doors, while allowing two other newspaper men to remain.

"FOUND" TEETH ARE FITTED

It was learned, however, that two front teeth of the slain nurse, missing when her body was found in Winward lane at Tiverton, and "found" more than 59 hours later by Chief Potter, were fitted to the girl's mouth during today's proceedings.

The mouth was photographed both with and without the teeth, and he dentist made comparisons with his charts while this work was going on.

"Finding" of the teeth by Chief Potter has proved a controversial point in the strange case, inasmuch as the same ground where they were "found" had been gone over previously time and time again.

CHARGE TEETH "PLANTED"

It was openly declared by a number of witnesses in the case that the teeth were not their originally and had been "planted" to refute the Massachusetts contention that the murder was committed in Massachusetts.

The secret exhumation was discovered by a Boston Evening American reporter only a comparatively few hours after the weird scene in the rain-washed cemetery shortly after midnight.

WORK BY AUTO LIGHT

Rain of yesterday and the earlier part of last night had left the ground sodden and the flowers above Verna Russell's grave nodding in the chill wind that persisted after the storm.

Several cars conveyed the party, one of these was backed across the graveled road of the pretty cemetery so that its twin beams gave the silent workmen light.

Although it is a month since the slain nurse was buried, and flowers had begun to blossom in their beds stop her resting place, the earth was relatively soft and the grave-diggers experienced little difficulty in reaching the pine-sheathed casket.

Few were the words spoken by the watchers as the soft thud of earth thrown out beside the opening broke the mournful sighing and whistling of the wind in the leafless trees hedging the graveyard.

TROOPERS ON GUARD

Through openings in the scudding clouds, the moon looked down intermittently on the strange scene—and this and the steady lights of the car were the only illumination, except for an occasional match that flared, to be touched to the end of a cigarette or be crowded into the bowl of Dr. Magrath's pipe.

When the pine covering of the casket had been reached, one of the workmen climbed out of the open grave and lowered the hook-ended ropes, while his fellow workman placed them under the bottom.

Then the casket and case, earth-stained, was hauled up to the surface, and the workmen, aided by the guarding state troopers, carried it to the waiting hearse.

The hearse, with a trooper riding on the seat and another following on a motorcycle, started for Newport, with the rest of the party trailing in their cars.

When dawn came, word of the exhumation spread mysteriously through the neighborhood, and children on their way to the schoolhouse on one side of the cemetery, went into the cemetery and peered into the empty grave.

NO AUTOPSY REQUEST

The body arrived in Newport at about 2 a. m., according to Undertaker Hambly, and was placed in the room where the autopsy was performed more than a month ago, there to wait until the case and casket were opened several hours later.

When Atty.-Gen. McLyman was asked about the exhumation, he at first refused to answer questions, but later said it was at his own order and not at request of Massachusetts authorities, who wished to perform a second autopsy.

The Attorney-General declared, in fact, that no such request had been made of him.

"No request had been made by Massachusetts authorities any time to exhume the body and it was done on my own decision," McLyman said.

"It was done to obtain pictures of the marks on the girl's neck which are alleged to be prints of the slayer's hands."

FIRST PICTURES DIM

Nearly five hours after the exhumation, however, he said he had not been officially notified that his exhumation order had been carried out.

"The pictures taken at the time of the finding of the body with a camera of the Rhode Island bureau of identification did not show clearly these marks," he said.

"I engaged a Fall River newspaper photographer to take the photographs this time, not because I am favoring any newspaper, but because his work on pictures struck me as very good.

"I made up my mind to do this after the first conference and after I was shown the pictures then."

PLANS JURY SESSION

"I planned on Dr. Magrath's being there," said McLyman, "because he is to be a witness for the state and his presence would prevent the defense claiming his testimony was that of hearsay, or second hand."

Samuel R. Jacobs, counsel for Russell Hathaway, held as the girl's slayer, was granted permission today for Dr. Louis Hathaway, brother of the accused man, to examine medical reports on the body.

"I think the report will open his eyes," said the attorney general in stating that he would allow Dr. Hathaway to read the autopsy report.

McLyman said he would not wait much longer to call a grand jury session because his wishes the trial out of the way before summer recess in June.

"I expect to be bombarded with motions by defense counsel and that all takes time," he said.

GIRLS TO TESTIFY

Meanwhile, Dist. Atty. William C. Crossley of Fall River was in Barnstable, Mass., trying cases in Superior Court, but he announced before leaving Fall River that if the detectives' investigations warranted he would call a special session of the Bristol County grand jury to look into the question of jurisdiction.

It is understood that when Atty.-Gen. McLyman presents his case against Hathaway to the special session in Rhode Island he will have as witnesses, in addition to Vernon V. Galvin, several former girl friends of Hathaway who are said to be prepared to admit having gone with him on petting parties.

NANNERY HELD AS SLAYER OF 3

Morristown, N. J., April 27 (INS)—A whimpering and glassy eyed little man named Jim Nannery, once called the "most desperate criminal in America," who escaped from Sing Sing in 1928, today awaited extradition to New York, where he is wanted for three murders.

Held with Nannery is his petite and auburn haired sweetheart, Patricia Smith of Chambersburg, Pa., who was captured with him late yesterday at Dover, N. J. She is being held here under charges of carrying concealed weapons.

Dressed in expensive furs and wearing gaudy jewelry, she wept as she was photographed for the rogues' gallery, and covered her face with her hands.

"This is all terrible. I never dreamed Jim was a really bad character, I thought he was a respectable bootlegger. Oh, my poor mother. What will she think? My family are good people from Pennsylvania. I have disgraced them," she whined.

In the expensive car Nannery was driving were one Thompson machine gun, 100 cartridges, three revolvers and a gas mask. Also in his belt were two .38-caliber revolvers.

His capture came as a result of parking his car in a "no-parking zone."

Notables to Attend Big Dinner

Third Annual Horse Lovers' Event to Take Place at Statler Wednesday

THE IMPORTANT EVENT of the coming week is the Horse Lovers' dinner in the ballroom of the Hotel Statler on Wednesday evening. This is the third annual event since these affairs were originated by a group of Boston horsemen. Last year, horses, with their riders costumed from the time of the Spanish invaders up to the present, rode into the ballroom, which was the arena for the occasion. The governor and his party arrived in a coach-and-four and an imitation horse show was staged in the lobby.

THIS YEAR WE HEAR THAT the entertainment will be quite different, but just as unique, and that about 50 horses will take part in the performance. Governor Ely will be present, as well as Mayor Curley, and all the notables of the horse-loving world. For an innovation women will be admitted to the dinner, which will be quite a departure from previous dinners. It is announced that James F. Young of Quincy will be toastmaster and master of ceremonies.

MISS ELIZABETH B. ELY of Beacon st., member of the board of directors and chairman of the theater committee of the Elizabeth Peabody Playhouse, announces that the annual Gilbert and Sullivan production by her operetta group will be "Iolanthe" and will take place on Monday and Tuesday evenings, May 4 and 5, in the attractive little theater on Charles st. A feature of these performances will be an exhibit between the acts of embroideries and wood-carvings from the Ukraine and the Ukrainian group connected with the settlement-house will serve an urbane evening their beautiful native costumes.

Simplicity Is the Charm of New Style

By ANN ARDEN

WELL-TAILORED suits have every mark of distinction about them this season. Their chief interest lies in their extreme simplicity and in the softness of the fabric from which they are made.

THEN WHEN the tailoring idea is carried to the last degree of perfection and a topcoat is added to match, the woman who is traveling has an ensemble which she will live to glory in. Wherever she goes, whatever she is doing, she will find that this whole outfit, or at least a part of it, fits in with excellent adaptability.

NOT THE least of its attributes is that it can have a number of blouses tucked away into small space in a bag and that, for this reason, it can be kept continually fresh and crisp looking.

SOME OF the blouses should be quite wrinkle proof—these for train dressing and places where pressing is out of the question. The suit seen recently had a jersey blouse tailored in strict accordance with the character of the suit.

THE COSTUME pictured is ideal for travel by rail or steamer, or for the long motor trip. Of an imported Scotch tweed in beige mixture, the skirt has low front flare; the jacket is double-breasted, has two capacious pockets, long roll revers, and notched collar.

THE MATCHING topcoat boasts the comfortable raglan sleeve, patch pockets, and self belt. The scarf striped orange, brown and gray adds interest, and the hat is of brown straw, with beige ribbon band and pom-pom. Gloves and hose are beige and the pumps brown and beige.

THE WAYS of tying the silk scarf are almost too numerous to mention. Suffice it to say that you wind it about your throat according to the number of inches that member of your body measures. For the long, tail neck a stiff bow at the side looks perky or tied demurely in a bow under the chin it does much for the spring suit. Those with shorter necks will want their scarfs hanging straighter in line, either flying loosely in the breeze or tied in Ascot fashion.

* * *

MME. SCHIAPARELLI is one of the smart Parisiennes who clings to the black and white alliance. Recently she wore a tailored black coat accented by white buttons, a short white scarf and a white turban. She also sponsored the wide topped gloves in pull-on style that are so chic at the moment.

Clubwomen to Discuss Safety

By NANCY BREWSTER

The Massachusetts Safety Council, holding its 10th annual state conference at the Hotel Statler Wednesday and Thursday, will include a session devoted exclusively to the discussion of safety problems pertinent to the interest of women.

At the governor's luncheon Thursday noon, Mrs. Eva Whiting White, president of the Woman's Educational and Industrial Union, will speak on "A Woman Views a World Once Safe for Democracy." Mrs. David A. Westcott, first vice-president of the Boston City Federation, is to preside at the afternoon session.

Particular interest is being given the innovation of the safety conference by Bay State clubwomen. Their consideration of safety methods and preventive suggestions as especially necessary for children has been of paramount importance on club programs.

Information on the problem of accidents in the home will be given by Dr. Henry H. Faxon of the staff of the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Capt. George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles, will answer the question "Are Women a Problem?" Playgrounds will be discussed by Prof. Ernst Herman of the Sargent school.

Mrs. Carl Schrader, state president of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Willard Woodbury, president of the City Federation, have indorsed the program.

Bowen Heiress Bride Today

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER
Universal Service Society Editor

New York, April 27—In the drawing room of the truly magnificent Bowen apartment at 910 Fifth ave., Mary Cochran Bowen becomes the bride of John Thomas Hjorth, this afternoon.

Due to the fact that the bride's mother, Mrs. Cochran Bowen, is in mourning for her brother, the late Gifford Cochran, Sr., the wedding ceremony is extremely simple and the guests are confined to members of the two families.

Mary is one of Gotham's more important heiresses. She is a grand-daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Francis Cochran and her great-grandfather, Alexander Smith, founded the great carpet mills that have provided millions of dollars for the Smith and Cochran families.

It will be recalled that one of Mary's uncles, the late Alexander Smith Cochran gained international publicity at the time of his marriage to Ganna Walska.

Another uncle, William F. Cochran resides down in Baltimore and among her aunties today's bride numbers, the Princess Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurs and the philanthropic Mrs. Percy H. Stewart.

Mr. Hjorth is a Dane and has resided in Honolulu since his boyhood days. He is well known there as a civil engineer and for his sporting activities.

Legion to Honor 16 Gold Star Mothers

Sixteen Gold Star mothers will be tendered a testimonial dinner next Thursday night in International Hall, Roxbury, by Roxbury Post, American Legion and auxiliary. Past Commander Edward O'Dowd will be toastmaster.

The Gold Star mothers to be honored are Mrs. Margaret Corey, Mrs. Andrew Coyle, Mrs. Agnes C. Dickie, Mrs. Mary Flynn, Mrs. Mary S. Hanley, Mrs. Bridget Hayes, Mrs. Ellen Isbester, Mrs. Mary Langen, Mrs. Bertha Libby, Mrs. Marion Martell, Mrs. J. J. MARY ASTOR CHOSEN FOR LEAD IN "HOLLYWOOD PASSIONAL"

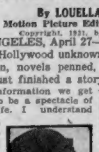
'The Smiling Lieutenant,' With Song Aplenty, Is Chevalier's Next

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, April 27—Soon there won't be any secrets of or about Hollywood unknown to the great public. Plays are being written, novels penned, movies filmed. Howard Estabrook has just finished a story called "Hollywood Passional."

The only information we get is that it is to be a spectacle of Hollywood life. I understand it's a serious and will include picture making and the life in the studios.



Louella O. Parsons

Mary Astor is already chosen for the lead. Perhaps she is the little girl who comes to Hollywood and makes good or maybe she comes to Hollywood and doesn't make good.

I wonder if all the world is as interested in Movieland as the people in Movieland seem to think.

ERNST LUBITSCH lingers on and on and on in New York. When is he coming home? I wish I knew. I don't think it will be for a long time for Oscar Straus is now in New York conferring with him on "The Smiling Lieutenant." Maurice Chevalier's next picture. Claudette Colbert and Miriam Hopkins both sing in the picture so it looks as if "The Smiling Lieutenant" will be pretty much song. The Strausses, both Oscar and his wife, were very, very popular out here in Hollywood. Mrs. Straus' Hungarian dinners were famous but I might add, also fatal to the figure. Friends of theirs say that they will be out here before many months. Let's hope it's true.

THE WAR OVER Ben Hecht's plays will cease now. Samuel Goldwyn has signed the former Chicago newspaper man on a five-year contract. Little did I think when I used to know Ben Hecht in Chicago and he was a reporter on the Chicago News and a very good one, earning $55 a week, that one day he would get his own price in the movies.

SWIMMING, tennis playing and even rehearsing for his next picture, is out for Lew Ayres for a few days. He went to the hospital yesterday morning to have his tonsils removed but Lew assures us tonsils or no tonsils he will be on the radio next week. I think we have had as many letters asking for Lew Ayres as any star who has appeared on the radio, he is so popular with the youngsters. When I told him how many requests we received he couldn't believe it. That is one of the nice things about him, he is so unassuming.

THE LAST TIME I saw Joan Crawford was down at Marion Davies' beach house. Joan looked a bit wan and weary. She is making two pictures at once, "Girls Together" and "The Torch Song." Her mind, she said, was filled with cameras, stories and movie studios. Poor Joan! She was all ready to go to Europe with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. In fact, they had their reservations when the studio called her back for retakes. The same thing happened to William Haines who would have been on his way if he hadn't had to remain to make some changes in his picture.

LUNCHING HERE, lunching there, traveling to this studio and that studio I hear that Thomas Meighan has signed for three more pictures at the Fox Company after "Skyline." I hate to tell on Tommy but his mind goes to that new home in Great Neck and I wonder how he will like to stay in California when he makes no secret of his love for the East. Earle Foxe has just signed for the heavy in Transatlantic." Earle, when he isn't acting, is running a military academy and doing so I hear, a very good job of it. Nothing like being versatile. Edward Anthony Brown has been signed to write Frank McHugh's newspaper stories for RKO-Pathe.

RADIO FAVORITES COMING

Mrs. Phillips H. Lord as Lizzy Peters, and Bennett Kilpack as Cefus as they will appear in "An Evening With Seth Parker" at symphony Hall tomorrow night.

Strong Acts Top Bill at Boston

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Excellent stage fare easily eclipses the film offering at the RKO Keith-Boston this week. Top liner of the vaudeville program is that exceedingly clever lady of song, Aileen Stanley, well known to radio audiences and star of musical comedies. Possessed not only of looks and personality, Miss Stanley has dramatic and lyric ability; so her renderings are put across in splendid manner. She wins hearty applause, and must needs come on for the encores. She delivers her lines in telling manner, and her whole turn goes big.

Art and comedy are intermingled in the balance of the bill. Among the good acts are Ray Huling; a skit, "The Life of the Party," with Jean Maddox and Florence Clark; Ernest Hiatt, with songs and fun, and the very nimble Dance Aristocrats.

The photoplay is "Road to Paradise," with Loretta Young and Jack Mulhall. It is a tale with fantastic twists, too strange sometimes to be believable. Miss Young has a dual role. She is twin sister—the twinship is something that is revealed along toward the end. At first the beauteous Loretta is seen as a lass who has been brought up by a couple of crooked "gents" who use her in their crimes.

The trickiness of such film life, however, is more than made up by the sterling stage entertainment.

'Dirigible' at Majestic May 4

Plans are under way to make the premiere of "Dirigible," at the Majestic, next Monday night, a notable event. Columbia Pictures, makers of this thrilling film, expect to have many notables in attendance, it is announced. In the cast will be seen Jack Holt, Ralph Graves and Fay Wray. The latter was chosen after one had been made of a number of actresses. Miss Wray, who is five feet, three inches tall, weighs 114 pounds, and has light brown hair and blue eyes. She was born in Alberta, Canada. Before she was old enough to go to school her family moved to California.

Fay Wray

Veteran of Stage at Franklin Park Theater

Leon Blank, veteran Yiddish actor, now a guest star with Aaron Lebedeff in "A Village Wedding," Jewish operetta at the Franklin Park, is appearing in his 500th legitimate play, which milestone has been reached by him in the 47th consecutive year.

'Gun Smoke' on Twin Screens

"Gun Smoke," starring Richard Arlen, is at the Beacon and Modern. The action takes place in a trading center in Idaho. Arlen is seen as the enterprising young, wild broncho hunter who makes a living by rounding up choice stock from among the cattle that roam the wild regions of the State.

Into this community comes William Boyd, a gang leader from a big city in the East, with a half score of his henchmen. Mary Brian is fascinated by their big city manners. She falls for Boyd. She jilts Arlen. After a series of thrills, Arlen rescues Mary from the treacherous Boyd. And the sweethearts are happy.

On the same program is "Are You There?" musical farce, with Beatrice Lillie, Lloyd Hamilton, Olga Baclanova, Gustav Von Seyffertitz and John Garrick.

Bowdoin Square

There is another topnotch pictures and vaudeville bill at the Bowdoin Square. The big feature for the first half of the week is Charlie Chaplin in "City Lights."

Sally Blane in Park Feature

The leading feature at the Park is "Women Men Marry," featuring Sally Blane and Natalie Moorhead. "Women Men Marry" attempts to show the pitfalls that beset newly married life in a great metropolis. A young couple arrives in New York from the South and quite innocently become involved in difficulties that require a way of escape. Others in the cast are Kenneth Harlan, Randolph Scott, Crawford Kent, Jean Del Val and James Aubrey.

The second feature is Tom Tyler in the "western," "A Rider to the Plains." Also in the cast are Andy Shuford and Lillian Bond.

"Hills of Erin" Held Over

That famous Irish minstrel, Emmett Moore, is showing his latest Irish talking pictures which he calls, "Hills of Erin," at the Tremont Temple for another week because of popular demand. "Hills of Erin" as one might expect, offers views of Ireland's pictorial beauty of the Emerald Isle. From these settings, Mr. Moore has brought forth a story of romance, comedy and sentiment. The wit, humor and simplicity of the Irish race are the high spots of the picture, which constantly relieved the tear with a smile or a good laugh.

At each performance Mr. Moore makes personal appearances singing his minstrel songs, the latest of which are: "My Own Natal Cot by the Lee," "A Little White Cottage in Clare," "My Old Donkey Car" and others.

Bananas in Delicious Salads

BIG DOINGS in the Martha Lee Cooking School this week!

A banana party, in addition to our regular cooking lesson.

Having heard of our cooking matinees and evening school, the Fruit Dispatch Co. very kindly sent us five whole bunches of bananas which were distributed to our guests together with a little talk on the virtues of this versatile fruit.

We also hinted—just hinted—about a banana recipe contest that you'll read more of in these columns very soon.

In the illustration on this page today you'll see just a few of the many delicious ways in which bananas may be served as salads.

In the center of the picture we find a banana rolled in nuts, garnished with mayonnaise and served on lettuce or watercress. This gives us a salad satisfying enough for a main luncheon dish.

The same thing is true of the banana split salad, illustrated in the lower right-hand corner. Here as you see, the split banana is placed on crisp salad greens and the center filled with cream cheese topped with pineapple and orange sections.

2 cups cabbage.
¼ cup mayonnaise.
1 pimiento.
2 sliced bananas.

Shred cabbage, mix lightly with mayonnaise, and arrange in ring as in photograph. Fill with bananas. Garnish with strips of celery and pimiento.

And in the upper left-hand corner a banana frozen salad than which we have tasted nothing more delicious for many a moon.

BANANA FROZEN SALAD.

1 tbsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. salt
2 tbsps. mayonnaise
½ lb. cream cheese
9 tbsps. crushed pineapple
½ cup cut cherries
½ cup cut walnut meats
1 cup cream, whipped
3 well ripened bananas, cut in cubes
Lettuce

Add lemon juice and salt to mayonnaise and stir into cheese. Mix with pineapple, cherries, nuts and fold in cream. Last, add the bananas cut in cubes. Turn into trays in automatic refrigerator, or place in mold and pack in salt and ice, and freeze about three hours. Serve with lettuce, as shown in photograph.

There's a brand new banana recipe book just out that I'd love to send you. Not only does it contain almost endless new and delicious ways of using this healthful and economical fruit, but it contains well-balanced menus for breakfast, luncheons and dinner. Recipes for hot breads and cakes, salads, desserts, sandwiches and what-nots. May I send you your copy today?

Spaghetti Now Americanized

The American people eat 8 pounds of spaghetti per capita per year. Most of the spaghetti, macaroni and kindred products used to be imported from Italy; but 99 per cent of what we eat is now manufactured in the United States. Spaghetti in the convenient canned form is even exported to Italy as well as many other countries.

New Black Bottom Pan Big Hit

WHISPER IT—we had a birthday this week and, appropriately enough, came four of the beautiful new "black bottom" enamel ware cooking utensils to match the collection of beautiful Cream City utensils that I told you about last May.

We love these new black bottom pans, first because they save fuel since the food can be kept at the boiling point with a very low flame or heat. You see, the bottoms of the pans are finished in a dark enamel, which absorbs the heat very readily and the rim and cover form a water-seal that conserves the steam and speeds up the cooking.

ADDS TO EFFICIENCY

The handsome triple-coated ivory enameled body striped with apple green also retains the heat and adds to the efficiency of these beautiful, endurable utensils. They are made of extra heavy sheet steel so that the bottom will not warp and are used to fit all stoves. They are especially fine for electric stoves, as the flat bottom insures direct contact with the heating element.

Our pet is the "black bottom" combination steamer and cooking pot that can be used as a regular cooking pot without the tray or as a steamer by inserting the steaming tray. It's handy to melt chocolate or steam cereals, vegetables, etc., in a refrigerator dish or other container placed on the tray with water below it. And especially fine for steaming infant foods.

There's a stewpan that's seamless, with a water-seal cover and rim, and an oval hollow side handle. Wish you'd drop in and let us show them all to you.

The rest of the Cream City family in our possession includes a beautiful juicy-kring roaster, handsomely decorated cake covers on handled porcelain enamel trays, a set of round refrigerator and utility dishes, a fascinating "easy-pour" pitcher that can be used with electric waffle irons as it positively will not drip; oval and round seamless ring molds, a six-layer cake set of cake pans to make the famous Egyptian six-layer cake that we made for our evening cooking class recently; a kitchen waste automat.

MANY HANDY PIECES

Other pieces in the set are a heart-shaped spring cake pan for Valentine, birthday engagement and what-not parties, a handy saucepan set of three enameled round pans with perfect fitting covers and detachable handles; an enamel French fryer with glass-like surface that's as easy to wash as a china cup; a handsome coffee percolator in ivory and green, a decorated canister set with fancy glass knobs and perfectly fitting covers, a "scoops-all" ladle with a flat edge, checkerboard cake pan, spring angel cake pan with two bottoms, a set of easy-grip mixing bowls, a spring doughnut cutter, and a handsome green confection box.

Do drop in and let us show you the whole assortment some time if you're thinking of replacing some of your time-worn utensils this spring. Good cooks deserve good tools, don't you think?

Time and Fuel Savers

For you! A new recipe book on oven cookery. Thirty fuel-saving menus, with recipes. Planned by a food specialist to save time, trouble and gas. Many of the recipes show appetising uses for left-overs. Imagine having 30 delicious meals planned without a bit of strain on your thinking machinery. Yours for a thin two-cent stamp and a request to Martha Lee.

Household Hints

Quite new in the way of a sandwich spread is honey butter, made from fresh cocoanuts and sugar. A tropical delicacy to use on waffles, ice cream, as a cake filling or in sandwiches. Fifty cents a big jar.

Currant jam with finely-chopped nuts is another novel sandwich spread.

A famous English recipe is used for a new sauce for hot or cold meats, baked fish, game or salad. Prepared from choicest fruits, vegetables, spices and malt vinegar. Forty cents a bottle.

Shaved maple sugar with chopped nuts make a nice sandwich filling with thin slices of brown bread.

Quite, quite new are buckgammon biscuits imported from England. Clever biscuits, in cream and chocolate, in exact form of backgammon men. Up-to-date hostesses please take notice!

For Tasty Spreads

Quite new in the way of a sandwich spread is honey butter made from fresh cocoanuts and sugar. A tropical delicacy to use on waffles, ice cream, as a cake filling or in sandwiches. Fifty cents a big jar.

Chapter 35

A Cue From "Uncle"

PATIENTLY and gradually, the William couple made headway with Uncle and his friends, until at length they were accepted without question as a gang consisting of one wise guy and a smart jane, of the exclusive aristocracy of crookdom, who took no one into their confidence and made a very great deal of money.

Long before we got even a clue that was more than a mere suspicion as to the identity of the gang we were pursuing, I had attained the honor of meeting all the most distinguished denizens of the underworld.

Rising to higher levels, we also made the useful acquaintance of policemen, lawyers and politicians, and I came to know such eminent citizens as Police Chief Morgan A. Hollies, Atty. Patrick O'Connelle, Hinky Dink Henna, and Billhouse John Conklin.

We worked Chicago chiefly by reason of our hopes founded on the encyclopedic knowledge of Uncle, but we spent weary weeks and months in New York, San Francisco and other cities, which the rest of our clues enmeshed.

One one occasion, we all set off to Buenos Aires, and thence to Rio de Janeiro, on the trail of a gang of white-slavers known to run kidnaping-for-ransom as a side line.

It was in the lovely city of Rio de Janiro that William made the acquaintance of the individual who was unconsciously to lead us to success.

Clever Doctor

This was a brilliantly clever and unscrupulous doctor, a Portuguese named Manoel Machado, whose scoundrelly trade was dope-peddling on a large scale the removal, by untraceable poisons, of his clients' inconvenient friends or enemies, highly insured relatives, or aged and wealthy testators.

Disappearing from Rio, this man fled to Chicago, where he went to earth and, in due course, appeared at Uncle's.

And Uncle, one evening, perfectly sober, but as nearly drunk as it was possible for Uncle to become, was in expensive and reminiscent mood.

Even so, as well we knew, sharp question would have received short answer. But on this occasion, when Uncle was alone with us three crooks of highest grade, William led and gently held the conversation.

We talked of ships and sealing-wax and cabbages and kings (of crime)—particularly of the latter. Anon Uncle made allusion to the brilliance and success of one, Lionel Simon, an English doctor, and his gang.

Yawning deeply, and scratching his head idly, William observed:

"Haven't heard of that outfit for a long time. (We knew the name, of course.)

"No, and you ain't like to," smiled Uncle.

"Reetin' up?" murmured William.

"Columbia Jail, Ohio, two of them, Doc Simon and Chink Dorson. Five-spot stretches," said Uncle . . . "spider Schlitz only took one year . . . But I guess Doc Limey'll work his ticket. He's got a pull and he's goth the dough."

Mrs. William H. William drew a mighty bow at a venture.

Held His Breath

"Tell you a thing always got me guessin', Uncle," she observed, "and that's whether Soapy Simon got that big sparkler cut up, or sold it whole."

"What, the St. Clair shiner, The Unsetting Sun?" mused Uncle.

I held my breath in hope.

"Ah! I always said Limey Doc Simon over-reached himself that time," continued Uncle. "I told him he'd brought a white elephant when he showed it to me. Who'd buy the thing, and no questions asked? Who'd cut it up and no questions asked? Very pleased with himself, he was—and so was Spider Schlitz and Chink Dorson. 'Oh, we'll sell it to some millionaire or Rajah, bye-and-bye, when the hunt-and-cry's over,' says English Doc Simon, 'in his big way . . . 'You won't,' says I, 'and you won't try' . . . 'Well, we'll put it in cold storage a bit, and see who's right, Uncle,' says Simon, and I was never quite sure whether they didn't get themselves jailed for an alibi and safe hide-up."

I can not speak for myself, but I can testify that the acting of Williams H. William and his wife was at fine as anything ever done on the stage.

The closest of observers would have sworn that they were a thoroughly bored pair of idle gossips, talking for the sake of talking, and wholly different to the subject of conversation.

I scarcely breathed, and for the want of better disguise for my excitement, feigned slumber.

"Well, well, Willy," yawned William. "They ought to of listened to you, for when you talk you ain't only say something."

Bright Boys

"Yes, they was three bright boys," said Uncle "and Gunman Gryde, Young Jimmy, you know, was real healthy for all their enemies."

"Let's see, Gunman Gryde . . . Didn't he shoot up the Frafelli family, that time? . . ." murmured William.

"Yep. Did you know he's Doc Simon's son? . . . And 'Frisco Fanny's?"

"Sure," lied William. "Bad boy, young Jimmy."

"No another Fosmano if he don't get put on the spot first," observed Uncle, "or if he doesn't double-cross Louie the Lady."

"He in stir, too?" asked Mrs. William.

"Nope. Runnin' with the Hudson Dusters till Fop runned out."

"When he does, I guess he'll see Europe, eh? With the big sparkler in his pocket. Wonder where he cached it?" mused William as he yawned again.

"Ah!" smiled Uncle knowingly. I cannot begin to describe how I felt that night.

I was almost happy, for hope dawned in my darkened soul—even though it were but the miserable hope of vengeance on these devils who had murdered my Rosemary.

(Copyright, 1931, Frederick A. Stokes Co.)

AMONG HIS SOUVENIRS

The wooden identification tab which was attached to the American Linden tree which Governor Ely plant on the State House grounds in observance of Arbor Day is being carefully preserved as a souvenir by the governor's secretary, DeWitt C. DeWolf.

OLD COIN COLLECTOR

Lawrence R. Grose, assistant clerk of the House, having passed the recent bar examinations, finds he has more time now to devote to his hobby of collecting old coins.

CEREMONY DISCARDED

The old custom under which messages from the governor to the Legislature were delivered with pomp while the two branches were sitting, had fallen into disuse during the present administration. The messages are now informally handed to the Senate and House clerks either before or after the sessions.

BAKER HEAVY SMOKER

FIREMEN'S BAND REHEARSE

The members of the Boston Fire Department Band will hold two rehearsals in Symphony Hall this week. The first will be held tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock and the second on Friday evening, at the same hour.

SCALLY APPOINTED

Gerald F. Scally of 41 Belfort st., Dorchester, has been appointed in the health department for a period of three months by Mayor Curley.

PEDONTI PLANS PARTY

Frank Pedonti, assistant secretary to Mayor Curley, is arranging for a party which he will tender the children being cared for at the Home for Italian Children in Jamaica Plain next month. He plans to present the youngsters with ice cream, candy and fruit.

MISS RYAN TRANSFERRED

Miss Eleanor T. Ryan of the public department of public health has been transferred to the city health department.

OUTING LEAVES GRANTED

Fire Commissioner Edward F. McLaughlin has granted the employes of the maintenance division of his department leave of absence with pay on June 25 in order that they may attend the fifth annual outing of their division.

POWER IS CHAMPION

City Councillor Leo Power of Ward 30, Roxbury, is the champion bowler of the St. Alphonsus A. A. of that district. He has been a member of various teams representing that organization since 1919.

HEIN TO SEEK OFFICE AGAIN

HEAVY DAMAGE IN GALE, MANY ARE INJURED

Unusually heavy seas caused by yesterday's southeast gale which swept New England, accompanied by snow, hail and rain, continued to seriously interfere with shipping off this coast today.

The Cunard liner Lancastria, which was due to dock in Boston 6 p. m. yesterday, had been held 22 hours at quarantine in the lower harbor at 1 p. m. today on account of the mountainous seas. The sea was so rough that newspapermen who went down the harbor early today to board the liner were unable to do so.

The Lancastria, from Liverpool, Galway and Belfast, has 50 passengers to debark at Boston.

CAPE COD SUFFERS

Storm warnings, hoisted last night by order of the United States Weather Bureau, were still aloft today between Eastport, Me., and Atlantic City, N. J.

According to the local weather bureau's unofficial forecast, fair weather will continue through tonight and tomorrow, with somewhat colder temperature tonight. The wind will diminish during the night.

The rainfall in Boston yesterday was 1.56 inches, according to the official figures of the weather bureau.

The high wind continued to do extensive damage throughout New England today.

The driver of an express wagon had a narrow escape when a 100-year-old chestnut tree, 50 feet high and four feet in diameter at the base, was blown down on Second st., near E st., South Boston, today.

BLIND HORSE ESCAPES

A blind horse attached to a coal wagon narrowly escaped being injured when a large limb was blown from a tree in Norfolk st., Cambridge, near Hampshire st. The falling limb took many telephone wires to the ground with it.

Shortly before noon the high wind blew in a 6 by 4 foot plate glass window in Quality Lunch, Fields Corner, Dorchester. At about the same time a 50-foot elm tree, eight feet in circumference at the base was uprooted in the Strandway, South Boston, near H st. It was cut up and removed by the city park department.

A heavy section cross on Sacred Heart Church, Mt. Auburn st., Watertown, was toppled to the ground by the wind.

An automobile parked in an alley at North and Cross streets, North End, was crushed when a 25-foot piece of galvanized pipe fell on it. Another piece of pipe fell on another car at the same place, but did no damage.

Damage from the high wind was reported from Lowell st. and Park ave., Arlington Heights, where a flagpole, three telephone poles and an electric pole fell to the ground, each within a few minutes of the other.

Traffic was delayed for about a half hour on both thoroughfares, and telephone an delectrical light services was temporarily halted until repairs were made. No one was injured.

Cape Cod suffered considerably in yesterday's storm. The work of repairing damage in Falmouth was on in full swing today. That town was without electric light last night. It was expected the necessary repairs would be completed for resumption of service by nightfall.

BENEFIT TO CROPS

Farmers, however, reported that the storm was of great benefit to their crops. Many districts also reported that the storm had ended the forest fire menace, serious throughout the state for the past two weeks.

Three men, one suffering from exposure, were driven ashore in a motorboat at Beverly Farms. Two others were rescued from Chubb's Island by coast guardsmen. Another man was rescued from a drifting barge by keepers at Race Rock lighthouse.

Shopping with Priscilla Price

Dearest Anne:
First of all—

Let's Visit

The Chic Gown, that shop where individuality reigns supreme! I ran up there and arrived just as Miss Rubin blew in from her last buying trip to New York. She's now bubbling over with news from the city, and her delight in the new ideas she's brought back. So I perched myself up on a table corner and listened, while she told me all about the rest of the staff to a breathless description of colors—trimmed effects, dashing jacket frocks—new polka dots—And she's brought home the cream of them all. Her frocks have a winning way. It's th. lashing fabrics and the lines that make them so very, very smart! You'll be delighted by the exclusive fashion points of these individual models at only $16.50 and up. The Chic Gown Shoppe is on the fourth floor, 41 Winter St.

Spring Fever?

What you need is an exciting new hat—a creation straight from Paris and Spring! — That will make you look your perkiest, your prettiest. Here it is — the Spring season's latest millinery thrill—at Wetherby's and I predict it's greatest sensation. It's adorably flattering to young and matrons will like it too, for it's one of those "becoming" hats that matrons find so hard to get. Comes in black, Antiebeige, blue, and other tones as light, summery colors. At first I couldn't believe my eyes when I saw the price tag—$3.95. It's really a $4.98 value! This charming hat is of soft, rough straw braid trimmed with a flower and ribbon. Can you resist it? I couldn't. Wethern's, Tempie Pl., thru to West St.

Spring Brides, Please

Just listen to your Priscilla a minute. The 1931 Spring bride is cutting her invitation and announcement expense just about 50 to 85 per cent—for she's having them done by the new Relief Process which society acknowledges is so much in vogue. This process makes it possible to produce correct wedding stationery without the expense of an engraved copper plate. You'll love the gorgeous new ivory stationery which the Relief Printing Corporation is showing! You may choose from many styles of exquisite lettering in this new Relief Process. Samples and further information will be sent to your home if you just drop a card—or telephone the Relief Printing Corporation, 37 Summer St., Lib. 9256.

The Eugene Wave

Upon the method and experience alone depends the success of your permanent wave! Miss Cunningham's leadership in permanent waving has been built upon the foundation of experience—she has had 20 years' experience in hairdressing—she is a supervisor of every wave and helps you choose the one most suited to your type. If you care about your hair as you really should—you'll be awfully careful in the choice of a permanent wave—and Miss Cunningham and you'll go to the shop whose waves have earned a reputation! Miss Cunningham gives a $20 Eugene wave for only $10—using genuine Eugene eaches. You may have your choice of the Eugene, Frederic or Bonat methods. All waves are wrapped for ringlet ends. Her prices are $6—$8 and $10. Lillian Cunningham, 661 Boylston St., Com. 6069.

Are You Dreaming

of that new silver fox scarf? And do you dream how many hard-earned dollars you'd save by selecting it this Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday at Scott Furriers, New England's largest Fur Establishment, 69 Summer St.? Imagine gorgeous Silver Fox scarfs marked at only $79! (Last year's scarfs of this quality were selling at $145.) And you don't have to pay cash if you purchase it at Scott Furriers—just select your scarf, make a small deposit, and wear it home. Enjoy small weekly or monthly payments while wearing it by joining the Scott Unique Payment Club, the only one in New England! No delay—No investigation—No inconvenience. You know that you may purchase your cloth coat and dresses, too, and enjoy this most unique arrangement. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday a group of cloth coats is specially priced at only $16.50. These coats reveal a silhouette less flaring—lines moulded to the figure—sleeves dramatized—collars of a master cut and endlessly varied—They contain every new style detail! Adorable galspin Ascot scarfs are only $3—You'll want one to wear with your new suit or your collarless coat. Dresses for every occasion—street, business, school or evening wear are marked at only $9.95! These dresses will make the heart of many a miss flutter—Sheer and chiffony in ravishing shades, flowered chiffons, polka dots and georgettes. Scott Furriers' New England stores are at 69 Summer St., Boston; 809 Westminster St., Providence, and 51 Pratt St., Hartford. At the "Sign of the Climbing Leopard." Open evenings until 6:30; Saturdays until 9 P. M.

75c Cleansing

My dear, if you want to see your last season's coat rejuvenated—just take it to a House of Lederman Cleansing Shop. There's one in every town and neighborhood. Also two town stores, one at 8 Winter St., Room 1100 — and one at 106 Causeway St., North Station. Terminal. They will cleanse any garment, except fur coats and fancy evening gowns, for 75c at all their shops. To help you with your Spring cleansing they will call for and deliver, at no extra charge, domestic rugs for $3.75! Curtains, at 75c a pair. Just call Highlands 4000 and they will do the rest. Parcel Post packages receive prompt attention. The House of Lederman, Inc., executive office, 1095 171 Norfolk Ave., Roxbury, Mass.

Sample Dresses

$3.75—$6.75!

First you'll fall in love with the dresses at the New York Dress Mfg. Co., and then you'll fall in love with the price—They have only two prices—$3.75 and $6.75! These dresses were made to sell for three and four times as much! They are sold to you at wholesale prices, and less. There are always thousands and thousands to choose from—lovely frocks for all occasions—They are mostly samples in sizes 11 to 19—but there are also sizes 36½ to 46½. They guarantee to give you dress, any dress if you can duplicate it in any other store at their price. Plenty of salesgirls and 20 private dressing rooms. Refunds and exchanges within 5 days if tags are not removed. The New York Dress Mfg. Co., 515 Washington St., 2nd floor, (Near West St.). This is their only store.

'Anne, Now Is

the time to start that course in beauty culture you have been so anxious to take, so that you'll be a thoroughly finished operator when the busy, prosperous fall season starts. Miss Anna M. Gohr of the Practical School of Beauty Culture—one of the most efficient beautyclans I know, gives you individual instruction. Her price is most reasonable. Miss Gohr gives a marvelous Eugene permanent wave for only $10. And now, I'm going to tell you a way to save money! Let one of Miss Gohr's advanced pupils give you a manicure, finger-wave or a permanent at half price. For instance, your manicure would cost only 25c instead of the usual 50c. The students do perfect work! The Practical School of Beauty Culture, Room 606, 26 West St.

Evelyn's Having

a timely sale of her lovely, new Spring frocks! Her charming shop is fairly overflowing with fascinating dresses for all occasions! She has marked them at $4.95—$7.95 and $12.95! They're marked at values, Anne! Just think of it! You want—and the materials you adore! Dainty embroidered new frocks—Charming lace gowns with tiers and capes—Bewitching Sunday night frocks in sheers and chiffons. You'll love the twin prints, polka dots and the gay flowered chiffons—Nifty jacket frocks from the brief evening bolero to the romantic redingote. Striking suits in the new rough weave tweeds—The fascinating bridal and bridesmaids' gowns. Evelyn's Dress Shop, 8 Winter St., Room 302.

Once Upon a Time

we'd spend a sleepless night on knobbly curl-papers for a wave, hoping no rain would not come and take the curl out. Remember, Anne? But now! We simply call the Beauty Shop at Houghton & Dutton Company, and make an appointment for a permanent. An hour or two in their shop, and then lovely rippling waves that last—and laugh at rain. Their lovely waves are only $6.50. This price includes shampoo and setting wave. If your years are showing up in graying hair, their Inecto Notox hairdye will restore the original color and beauty to your hair in one treatment. They also sell it for home use. Try a Komplex Facial ($1.50). It does wonders in removing wrinkles. The Beauty Shop at Houghton & Dutton Co. is on the second floor.

And So, My Anne

I've given you news of wonderful values—and exciting new fashions! Isn't this weather glorious? Doesn't it fill you with a longing to stroll out in the scented countryside—a vagabond stopping to gather the first venturesome blossoms that lift their lovely heads to greet the May time. I have the wanderlust—and my wanderlust has taken me in and out of the smartest shops, that fairly dance with gay, Spring and Summery things to add to the glory of Milady Beautiful! Adios, my Anne, for another week.

Devotedly yours,
Priscilla.

SECOND SECTION

FIVE AND TEN

By FANNIE HURST

Rarick's Children Always Make Their Appeals Through Their Mother

A scene from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking picture, made from Fannie Hurst's famous story, "Five and Ten," showing the chain store multimillionaire Rarick and his daughter, Jennifer. The latter is played by Marion Davies and the former by Richard Bennett.

What Has Happened So Far

John G. Rarick has made millions as a chain store operator. His wife, Jenny, shortly after their marriage, lent him $2500, all she had when he was near failure, and out of this money he built riches. But Jenny resents his far-from-imposing appearance, and no longer feels real love for him. She plans the social education of their children, Jennifer and Avery. The thought is always in her mind that without her $2500, Rarick would have achieved nothing. Her goading results in Rarick's agreeing to go East and to buy a magnificent home, but, secretly, he finds himself cursing her.

Now Go on With the Story

By Fannie Hurst

Whose Novels Have Given Her a Reputation as One of the Foremost of Modern Writers.

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

AS MOTHERS went, Jenny would have stood impeccable before any jury. She wanted passionately for her young. She was forever baring herself to his scorn by asking in their name. She was a doting, gloating mother, fierce for her offspring, yet withal, sweet with them.

Many a night through she had sat unnecessarily, but tirelessly, beside the bed of Avery, whose first years had been precarious ones. The death of two infants had gone hard with her. Jennifer was her doting, her waking, and her sleeping thought.

Rarick, whose manner was not fortunate with his children because he was seldom at ease with them, could not have formulated into words, except in vague fashion to the effect that she spoiled them, the stubborn wall of opposition which he erected between himself and Jenny's plans and dreams for her children.

"It is as if you were jealous of them," she had barked at him once, hysterically, when he was opposing an indoor roller-skating rink across the top of the house.

No. No. No.

Drifting Away

Without his knowing how to reach out a hand to stay them, except in vague fumings and contingent conversations, the entire kingdom of his household was drifting like a bit of land disassociating itself from the mainland to become an island, out into some high tide beyond his reach. Jenny and Jennifer and his boy Avery were on that island. He was back helplessly on the mainland; and Jenny, mark you, mind you, no otherwise to it, was to blame. The bitterness of that tore at him constantly, like a flame pulling itself off the candle.

Jennifer, for a time, while she had been a little pupil at Mary Institute, had been something of an eager student, with a hint of her mother's old air of desire to know, about her. Rarick had said little, but her school reports had been a source of deep private pleasure to him; and once he had carried about in his pocket an essay of hers, written on ruled paper, called "Why We Love Ruskin." He had filched it off her desk and returned it there a few evenings later when he observed the child scrambling among her possessions for what might have been the essay.

Suddenly that brownish, rather studious Jennifer of those days back in the solid square house on MacPherson Avenue had slipped from her little-girlhood into a high-strung, mature-faced disciple of her mother's ambitions for her. The home in Westmoreland Place. Finishing school in Tarrytown.

The little brown jug of a Jennifer of the MacPherson Avenue house was now the slip of a young miss, straight as a paper-cutter, with the sophisticated eyes that for the life of him her father could never catch and hold in a glance.

And now that brown child back there, whitened because her freckles seemed to have come off, this Jennifer whom he was casting about, in his futile way, to save, what was left of her, for himself, must have her fifteenth birthday in a house on Fifth Avenue that almost faced the Metropolitan Museum.

To think that he, John Rarick, who had once dreamed dreams no bigger than that walking trip through the Pyrenees, should be in a position to give her such a house.

Complex Appetites

Could his dreams for Avary, the boy, slip between his fingers, too, as this mother of his began to demand his rights for him? Would Avery grow up alien to a father who seemed to have no shred of youth left that would enable him the better to understand the youth in his children?

From what was it he was struggling to save them?

Success had done its share to teach Rarick himself new and complex appetites. He was a philatelist of elaborate and expensive tastes. There was in one of the pockets of his waistcoat, which was hanging over the foot of the bed, a famous Gnostic gem, heliotrope, engraved with the sacred name "Abrasax." A museum in Boston had been bidder against him for that gem.

There were in that same pocket, result of those same tastes acquired through his growing wealth, an ominous and lumi-

HOVEY AND GUY ON HAND TO TESTIFY

Missing Man's Successor as Bank Receiver on List of Witnesses

Five witnesses were questioned by Middlesex County grand jury today in its probe of the affairs of Atty. Guy L. Vaughan, missing receiver of five banks, while Bank Commissioner Arthur Guy, former Commissioner Roy A. Hovey and the past and present girl secretaries of Vaughan waited to testify.

A warrant charging Vaughan with larceny of $20,600 has already been issued and he is being sought throughout the country.

The five witnesses before the afternoon recess were Attorney George R. Grant, Frederick D. Bonner, James B. Melcher, cashier of the Newton National Bank; Dr. Alfred A. Amendola of Newton and Angelino T. Annicelli, Newton real estate and insurance broker.

SPEAKS FOR DEPOSITOR

Attorney Grant represented his gardener, Thomas Angelo Pellotte, a depositor in the Nonantum Banking Company, one of the banks for which Vaughan was acting as receiver. Dr. Amendola was also a depositor in that bank, while Annicelli is a member of the depositors' committee.

Bonner has been appointed receiver for the five banking companies by the Supreme Court in place of Vaughan.

Many officials and others have been summoned to testify in the investigation which Assistant District Attorney Frank G. Volpe has launched, saying the Vaughan disappearance and alleged theft indicate neglect by public officials.

OTHERS SUMMONED

to appear include Norman S. Chadwick, junior bank examiner, and Eugene Bremmer, assistant bank examiner of the commissioner's office; Paul J. Cotter and George W. Mastagilo, Jr., associates of Vaughan in his receivership; Mrs. Angelina DiCecco Biunda of Worcester, a former secretary in Vaughan's office, and a Miss Biunda of Saratoga st., East Boston, present secretary.

Medway Will Vote on Building Purchase

Medway, April 27—A special town meeting has been called for Friday night in Sanford Hall, when an attempt will be made to rescind the vote taken at a recent town meeting, which made possible the purchase of Sanford Hall building by the town for municipal purposes at a cost of about $18,000.

WOMAN SOUNDS ALARM ON HER 74TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Emma Pilkington Discovers a Blaze in the Rear of Home; Probe Under Way

A 74-year-old Chelsea woman celebrated her birthday today by discovering a two-alarm fire of suspicious origin which drove five families to the street and caused damage estimated at $5000.

The blaze was discovered by Mrs. Emma Pilkington from the second floor home of her daughter, Mrs. Edna S. Adenauer, at 39 Bloomingdale st., Chelsea.

Two sons of Mrs. Pilkington, members of the Chelsea fire department, were among the first to respond to the alarm, but found the members of their family safe.

CALL FIRE APPARATUS.

The blaze started on the first floor of a six-family apartment house at 39 Bloomingdale st., part of a six-family two and a half-story house numbered 39-41 and 43, during the absence of the occupants.

Mrs. Pilkington was on the rear piazza of her daughter's home when she saw smoke rolling up from below. A second daughter, Mrs. Rupert Lake, who lives on the first floor at 43 Bloomingdale st., who was also present, ran home and telephoned the fire department.

On the arrival of Chief David Hudson, he ordered a second alarm sounded, because of the congested neighborhood, apparatus from Revere and Everett responding with the remainder of the Chelsea fire fighters.

OCCUPANTS SAFE.

Recognizing the location of the box, Hoseman John F. Pilkington and his brothers Fire Inspector Thomas H. Pilkington, rushed to the house, but found their mother and sisters had reached the street safely together with other occupants of the house.

According to Chief Hudson, the blaze started in the rear of the first floor apartment at 39 Bloomingdale st., either in the kitchen or back porch, and spread rapidly.

WIFE 'TRAILED,' SAYS IN-LAW

Mrs. Marie Scott, of Spring st., Medford, sued by her husband, Andrew C. Scott, was "shadowed" by detectives a month after she was married, Scott's father admitted today in Middlesex court as the hearing on the suit was resumed.

Last week Scott testified to trapping his wife in a Boston hotel with Albert E. Wilson, Boston business man who is named in the suit.

Today, Andrew F. Scott, who accompanied his son on the raid, said he put detectives on the trail of his son's wife in 1928, a month after the wedding.

"My son confided in me that he was suspicious of his wife and the detectives were hired to follow her," the elder Scott testified.

He then described the details of the raid and insisted that four minutes elapsed before the knock of police was answered. They then found Mrs. Scott with shoes removed, smoking a cigarette.

"Meet my new boy friend," Mrs. Scott said as she introduced Wilson, the father said.

MISS COLLINS HEADS WOMEN

At the annual state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America, which closed last night at the Hotel Somerset, Miss Marianne Collins was elected state regent.

Other state officers elected include Miss Lillian Clark as vice state regent, Mrs. Anne Bullard as state secretary, Mrs. Lillian Murray as state treasurer and Mrs. Anna Murphy as state monitor.

The officers, with Mrs. Josephine Donnelly, Miss Mary Cahill and Mrs. Elizabeth Danehy, were chosen to represent Massachusetts at the supreme international convention of the order to be held in Atlantic City in July.

The charity committee reported that $45,000 has been added to the charity fund of the state organization. Yesterday morning the members attended mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, the Rev. Neil Cronin being the celebrant. A letter from Cardinal O'Connell congratulating the order on its work was read. The state choir, under the direction of Miss Cahill, sang.

High Honor

One of the highest honors that can be achieved by an undergraduate was bestowed upon Marion F. Ingraham, of Newton Highlands, who was elected president of the Student Government for 1931-32 at Boston University's college of practical arts and letters.

300 FLEE FIRE IN CAMBRIDGE

More than 300 men and women, guests of the Hotel Commander in Cambridge, fled their rooms early today when fire broke out in a fourth-floor suite.

The blaze was discovered by the night clerk, Richard Winsor, who heard the crash of glass and, running to the street, saw flames licking from the window. The suite was occupied by A. S. Young, who was away at the time, and R. T. Dunn, a Harvard Law School student.

Winsor notified the fire department and then returned to the switchboard and notified the guests and asked them to leave as quickly as possible.

The lower quickly filled with scantily-clad men and women, many of whom were assisted downstairs by Archie Johnson, a janitor, Charles P. Haven, a Boston newspaperman, and Mrs. Haven, were awakened by their pet Pekingese, who smelled the smoke.

Dunn had considerable difficulty in getting out of the burning suite. He told police he had been visited by several friends last night and thought the fire might have been caused by a cigarette.

Damage to Dunn's suite was estimated at $700. Further damage was done throughout the hotel by smoke.

84 Women, 175 Men Made U. S. Citizens

Eighty-four women and 175 men pledged allegiance to the United States with upraised hands at an impressive ceremony behind closed doors in the Federal Building today. It was the largest naturalization class of women to be obligated in the duties of citizenship for several months.

Judge James M. Morton, Jr., presided.

West End Man Ends Life by Hanging

Peter Konparion, 47, married, of Myrtle st., West End, committed suicide today by hanging in a garage at 119 Portland st., North End, according to the police.

His body was suspended from a stairway on the sixth floor of the garage. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Haymarket sq. relief hospital.

POLICE AT RITES FOR BLACKBURN

A detail of 22 policemen, under Lieut. Thomas F. J. Cavanagh, acted as escort today at the funeral of Patrolman Vincent W. Blackburn, heading the cortege from his home at 90 Wood ave., Hyde Park, to St. Angela's Church, Blue Hill ave.

The pastor, Rev. Francis J. Ryan, celebrated high mass of requiem. Schmidt's mass was sung by the choir, under direction of Miss Mary E. Munier, organist.

The bearers were six fellow officers from Station 13, George Stelver, Daniel Sullivan, Walter Butterworth, Cornelius Callahan, Fred Donnell and James Hanley.

After the service the police detail acted as escort to Morton st. and Blue Hill ave. and lined up in double rank as the procession rolled on its way to Oak Grove Cemetery, Medford.

DUTCH SHIP IN RECORD RUN

The Dutch steamship Bilderdyk made a record run from Rotterdam to Boston, arriving yesterday, and carried about 350 aquatic fowl for the John T. Benson animal farm at Nashua, N. H.

The fowl, one of the largest consignments to arrive in recent months, came from Stierpark, Germany, and included 120 swan, 70 ducks, 60 teal, 50 widgeon, 10 white-fronted and 3 pink-fronted geese and a number of other varieties.

TALKATIVE THUG GETS ONLY $20

An armed gunman of the conversational type held up a chain store on Lawton ave., Lynn, today, taking $20 and making his escape as a customer entered.

Shortly after Manager Harold P. Duggan of Lawton ave. opened the store a well-dressed man walked in. Without warning, he produced a pistol and ordered Duggan into the back room.

As the gunman was rifling the till he carried on a conversation with Duggan.

"I was here three weeks ago and got $60," the gunman said, as he stuffed the bills into his pockets. "I missed an envelope with $153 in it because the bank car got here ahead of me. This time I came earlier."

"Well, you're out of luck again this time," replied Duggan, "because the bank car was here Saturday night."

As the robber left, Mrs. Mary Manville of Henry ave. entered.

The police described the lone robber as about 30 years old, five feet five inches tall, smooth faced, with a flat nose, and wearing dark clothes.

Roxbury Man Is Hurt in Auto Crash

James J. Harrington, 23, of 38 Lamont st., Roxbury, was held for treatment at the City Hospital for severe lacerations of the head, face and hands following a collision at the corner of Heath st. and South Huntington ave. today.

Police say Harrington was turning into South Huntington ave. from Heath st. when the auto he was operating was in collision with a truck operated by Courtland A. Trimbis of Garden st., Brighton.

"Al" Friedman Is a Happy Papa Now

"Al" Friedman, Roslindale, ex-heavyweight boxer, is very happy running around Boston today telling the glad tidings. There is a new Al Friedman, which the stork conveyed to the Friedman family yesterday, Mrs. Friedman and the bouncing boy, who weighed in at 8½ pounds, are doing fine at the Memorial Hospital under the care of Dr. J. J. Elliot.

MELROSE MAN MISSING AT SEA

British and American naval vessels, aided by hundreds of Chinese craft, are today combing the waters near Hongkong for George J. Lavin of Melrose, reported to have fallen overboard from the freighter Golden Mountain as the ship was sailing for Siam.

Mrs. Louisa Lavin, of 84 Forrest st., Melrose, today said she had heard from her son only last week and that he was on his way home. She ridiculed the idea of suicide and expressed hope that she would hear from him.

His sisters, Mrs. Phyllis Lamb of Malden, and Miss Pauline Lavin, also were certain their brother would be found safe.

A... from the offices of the American-Hawaiian Line in San Francisco notified the family that Lavin, who was chief officer of the Golden Mountain, had been missing since a half hour after the ship left Hongkong for Siam.

N. England Council Sees Business Better

was 22 years old by the calendar, but far older than that in experience. He had knocked about all over the country. He had served at least four terms in jail. He knew about life. He knew about women. He could make love.

It was in January that fate drew these two strangely assorted people together. They met in the murky gloom of an East 38th st. speakeasy. To Mrs. Conlin it was romance. To De Pew it was—

"I met her in a speakeasy in January and she fell for me in a big way."

Mrs. Conlin clutched at this counterfeit of love. De Pew reached out his hand, too, but it was for the money that the vagrant wife gave him.

Just a gigolo!

There were secret meetings. Secret love trysts. False gaiety in places strange to the wife who had forgotten that once she vowed to love and honor another man.

PROMISED TO WED

Then the lure of Reno. Easy divorce in a city of gay gambling halls and a continuous round of pleasure.

Mrs. Conlin believed this youth, "who wore a little mustache because it made him more mature," loved her. He had promised to marry her if she obtained a divorce.

The nature of her husband's business made it necessary for him often to carry large sums of money on his person. He held the soft drink concession in Castle Hall. Often he returned home late at night with several hundred dollars on his person.

She told her lover of this and the plan was conceived in the dark places where they touched hands together as she listened to the ardent and expert love-making of her youthful gigolo.

In one of De Pew's letters, to be read into the court records, he says:

"Sweetheart I hope something turns up soon so I can be with you. I love to hear your voice and look at you, dear. I love you so, baby, no one in this world can mean so much to me. I adore you, worship you, sweetheart. Love is such a small word to describe what I feel for you.

"You are so infinitely sweet and lovable in my memory, how I wish you were free and everything was rosy. I would do anything to make you happy. I will do everything to make up for your unhappiness.

WANTS ONLY LOVE

"For my part, my happiness would be complete in having you and knowing you would be mine forever.

"I do not want anything else in this world, but you and your love.

"Since I found you I am happy. I only feel unhappy when I cannot be with you. I do hope that something will happen soon so that we can be together.

"How nice it would be if we could be together this summer.

"In my mind I can picture nothing more beautiful than to be by ourselves somewhere up the Hudson, some place with the sunshine, the grass thick and green, trees in full leaf and with no cares or worries.

"Well, darling, it may be yet. I hope so, anyway. How is my baby feeling today? In the best of health I hope. By the way sweetheart, I ran across an old folder from San Francisco. I am going to send it to you. How I love that city. What memories return when I look at this folder.

"Well, darling mother, how I love you. I think I will say good afternoon, God, how I love you. Amy. God bless you, darling. Love and kisses, from your Sonny."

HER FERVID REPLY

Mrs. Conlin wrote of her love, too, but more guardedly and, apparently, with more interest in her financial state. She wrote:

Dear Sonny Boy:

"I sure was glad to hear from you, but could not make out the reason your letter came so late Thursday afternoon. I was tempted to call you on the phone several times on Wednesday. I was waiting for a later mail which of course brought your letter.

"I am so glad that your friend, John, and his wife are so nice to you, but of course, dear, I think it might be hard for you to be without funds. But, dear, I have been in the same fix myself. I am nearly crazy worrying over money. I borrowed a great deal from my sister already.

"DARLING, SONNY"

"I just got the sad news that I am only to receive $28 a week for my alimony. Isn't that terrible? And, besides, I can't get that only 16 days after papers are served on me. That will occur today or tomorrow.

"So there you are, dear. I will keep up the good work and maybe I'll get some sort of a break. I know it is hard on both you and I, but I suppose it is the only thing to do, isn't it, darling Sonny Boy?

"You say you don't know how I will take it because you have no money. Let's understand one thing: I love you (underscored). I love you, not your money, dear boy, and I know you love me. Nothing else matters now, dear. Answer this letter and I'll write you again, and also tell me where it is best to call you on the telephone.

"Hoping this finds my Sonny in good spirits and with lots of love and kisses, I am always your baby and sweet mother.

"P. S.—Goodby, Daddy. Write me at the old address, Lewis Publishing Co. Pardon pencil, Love."

In other letters, extracts of which were made public by police, Mrs. Conlin wrote more of her motherly affection. In one she wrote to her "Sonny Boy":

"It has been made known to me that you are in trouble. I want to help you.

"I want to mother you..."

Then the letter comes nearer to the romance which, police say, was the motive for the shooting of Conlin:

"It means nothing to me (this is not explained further) our future is also the same path . . ."

Again the motherly affection of a woman many years older than her sheik:

"I should like to help you."

Each blames the other for the terrible denouement of the plot.

But the machinery of fate which was to throw the searching spotlight into the secret labyrinths of their love ground slowly into motion on Sunday night.

Conlin returned home from his business about 2 o'clock in the morning. De Pew knew he was coming, knew he would have a sum of money on his person.

In the dark hallway of his home the husband was suddenly confronted by the secret lover. A pistol was in his slender gigolo's fingers. Conlin raised his hands over his head when he faced the robber.

He was carrying $285. But it was divided into three separate bundles. De Pew searched him and could only find $65. He took this and an Elks' ring and demanded the rest. Conlin said there was no more. The robber slugged him with the pistol. Conlin frightened, ran down the hall.

There was a crack and a bullet went crashing into his spine. De Pew fled as his victim dropped twisting in agony.

DIARY IS CLUE

Mrs. Conlin came running out of the apartment to the side of her fallen husband, hysterically mumbling terms of endearment.

And, while Mrs. Conlin spent hour after hour at the bedside of her dying husband, they searched her apartment.

Their search was rewarded by a telephone number they discovered in a diary she kept. They traced De Pew to the Hotel President, 234 W. 48th st., Manhattan.

Detectives found De Pew and questioned him about the shooting of Conlin.

"I don't know what you're driving at," he said. But the sparse sandy mustache trembled.

De Pew had just been released from East View Penitentiary in Westchester, where he served a year of a one to three-year term for burglary.

Gradually the persistent questioning broke down the resistance of the pair. De Pew was first to crack.

"She wanted money to go to Reno to get a divorce," he said. "We planned to hold up her husband and get the money from him. We didn't mean to harm him."

"I LOVE HIS YOUTH"

The shooting of Conlin, he said, was an accident. He had never intended to squeeze the trigger. All they wanted was the money.

When Mrs. Conlin was finally told of her lover's collapse she refused to believe that he had unfolded the brutal story.

"There must be some mistake," she said.

She clung stubbornly to her original story—that she knew nothing. Samuel C. Prescott, chairman of the faculty and head of the department of biology, participated, with Prof. Dugald C. Jackson, head of the department of electrical engineering, acting as guide.

THEY DEPART TONIGHT.

Prof. Jackson renewed an acquaintance with the Prince, which he began last year at Tokio while attending a world engineering conference.

One of the sights at the institution which the visitors found most interesting, was the "Stroboscope," developed by Harold E. Edgarton to photograph moving machinery.

Outside the building the Prince reviewed the cadets of the R. O. T. C. drawn up in parade in his honor, and greeted ten representatives of the Japanese undergraduates of the institution.

The party returned to the Copley-Plaza to rest, before proceeding to Wellesley, where President Ellen F. Pendleton tendered the royal visitors a lunch.

They will leave North Station tonight on a 12-day visit to Canadian cities.

GIVING ROYALTY A BOSTON 'LOOK-SEE'

Tech Holds Many Wonders for Prince and His Bride; See Artificial Northern Lights

Perched on the windswept summit of the Custom House tower, Prince Takamatsu and Princess Kikuku of Japan today obtained a bird's-eye view of Boston on their last day as guests of the city.

The dainty princess, wearing a green ensemble of summer weight, shivered in the raw half gale blowing across the city, and commented in Japanese.

The party were escorted to the tower by W. W. Lufkin, collector of the port, who welcomed the royal honeymooners on their arrival at his office.

ARMY BASE INTERESTING.

Accompanying them were Standish Willcox, social secretary to Mayor Curley; Courtenay Crocker, honorary consul for Japan at Boston and head of the Japan Society of this city; Lieut.-Comdr. Ellis M. Zacharias, naval aide, and several prominent Japanese of Greater Boston.

Gazing from their lofty vantage point, the Prince and Princess expressed much interest in the Army Base at South Boston and in the bustling shipping of the harbor.

From the Custom House they were taken to Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Cambridge, where they were met by Prof. Shinji Togo of the University of Tokio, a graduate student of physics and electrical research here.

He demonstrated an experiment on which he has been working for some time, in which he produces an artificial Aurora Borealis.

A tour of the buildings of the institution followed, in which Dr. Samuel C. Prescott, chairman of the faculty and head of the department of biology, participated, with Prof. Dugald C. Jackson, head of the department of electrical engineering, acting as guide.

DEATH AUTO FINGERPRINTS IDENTIFIED AT BAGNI TRIAL

'Orses! 'Orses! Here's the Way for the Mayor to Stop This Tagging

SCHOOL STREET MAY BE A SPEEDWAY —OR JUST A SPOT FOR A JOLTING STAGE COACH

"They're out putting pep in the Lord Mayor's show." Who is? Why—bless me, the king's 'orses! Or at least that's what it may come to with Mayor Curley if police continue to tag his car. But you can't hang a tag on a hoss unless he's up for auction, or something, and the mayor, knowing well his equines, would make a spanking turnout trotting smartly down School st. and pulling up his spirited steed, where the animal would be safe from the sly wiles of motor vehicle taggers. And the department heads could all be equipped thus for transportation, the exercise in holding back a high-headed hossie being not at all bad for that equatorial enlargement. At the left here Mayor Curley is shown in snappy track attire just before driving in a trotting race. At the right, with his daughter Mary, he is shown in a novel Bermuda equipage, but merely as a passenger.

IS THAT OF MAN ON TRIAL, SAYS STATE EXPERT

Marks Found on Bottle in Car Compared With Record on Exhibit

A fingerprint on a bottle, found in the auto alleged to have been used at the killing of Evangelista L. Bagni, Somerville gas station manager, was identified today in Middlesex court as that of one of three defendants on trial for the slaying.

The defendants are John J. Oliver, 19; John D. Wall, 20 and Walter Souza, 19, all of Somerville.

Under resumed questioning of Asst Dist. Atty. Charles G. Volpe Sergt. J. Warren Toelken, state police fingerprint expert, identified the print as that of Oliver.

He had previously testified that the bottle was turned over to him by Sergt. Daniel M. O'Connell of the Somerville police who told of finding it in the stolen auto alleged by police to have been used in the tragic holdup at the gas station.

"Were you able to form an opinion between Exhibit 3 (the police record of Oliver's fingerprints) and the fingerprint on the bottle?" Volpe asked.

"The fingerprint on the bottle is identical with the left thumb on the record marked Exhibit 3," Sergt. Toelken replied.

Oliver sat unmoved through the testimony, as did the other two defendants.

Friday, Sergt O'Connell had identified "Exhibit 3" as the fingerprints he made of Oliver at the Somerville police station directly after the arrest.

Large photographs of the prints were then shown to the jury and marked as exhibits.

Today started the second week of the trial following the slaying of Bagni at the filling station at Myrtle ave. and Shore Drive, Somerville, on the night of Feb. 24.

VITALE TO FACE MURDER CHARGE

A warrant charging Guiseppe Vitale, under guard in Haymarket Relief Hospital, with the murder of Samuel Sciafini, "Czar" of the Eastern Packet pier, was issued to Inspector James A. Dennessey today.

The warrant was taken to the hospital and turned over to the officer on guard for service when Vitale's condition warrants it. He is suffering from a bullet wound in the abdomen, but is expected to recover.

Although police are convinced that Vitale killed Sciafini in revenge for the killing two years ago of a cousin of Vitale, the wounded man refused to even admit the shooting when questioned. To each question put to him he whispered "I didn't shoot anybody." To all other questions he simply shook his head

NOVICE SLEUTH IS FINED $5

A would-be detective was fined $5 in East Boston court today by Judge Barnes on a charge of loitering and sauntering during a two-alarm fire at the junction of Brooks and Bremen sts., Saturday night.

"Is it true that you want to be a detective?" asked the Judge as George Fullerton, 18, of 8 Paris pl., East Boston, formerly of New Jersey, was arraigned.

"Yes, I'm studying to be a detective now," replied the youth.

"Well, you'd better go back to New Jersey and practice there," said the Judge as he imposed the fine and then suspended it for six months.

According to the testimony of Patrolman George Harnois, he and Patrolman Patrick Mulvey arrested Fullerton after the youth had been warned to keep out of the roped area in which the firemen were battling the fire.

Baker Foundation to Re-enact Juvenile Court Case

The inside story of court treatment when a juvenile is ensnared by the law may be enacted May 5 by the Judge Baker Foundation at the City Club as part of their public demonstration to illustrate the need of funds to carry on work among juveniles.

The demonstration will mark the 25th anniversary of the opening of juvenile courts in Boston.

FIVE SAVED IN NAHANT FIRE

Five children were rescued when fire swept the waterfront cottage of Mr. and Mrs. John Boyer at 129 Castle rd., Nahant, early today, with coast guardsmen and Lynn apparatus assisting in fighting the flames.

Fanned by a northwest wind, flames shot high in air and sent showers of sparks on nearby roofs which were wet down to prevent spreading of the fire. The loss was estimated at $5000.

PET DOG UNHARMED.

A pet dog, Trixie, remained in an upper bedroom during the fire, coming out unharmed after the blaze was extinguished.

Awakened by smoke, Mrs Boyer aroused her husband who found the lower half of the 2½-story cottage in flames, apparently started by sparks from the fireplace.

The couple hurried to the street their five children, George, Irma, Carol, John and Winnie, ranging from six to 11 years, and they awoke neighbors who telephoned the fire department.

HELP SUMMONED.

On the arrival of Chief Charles F. Leonard, he ordered a bell alarm sounded and summoned help from Lynn. The Coast Guard station, a short distance away, also sent assistance.

The fire worked its way up through the whole house to the roof.

Julian C. Woodman, of Melrose, Is Dead

Julian C. Woodman, 57, descendant of Mayflower stock and a prominent trial lawyer, died today in his home at Bellevue ave. and East Emerson st., Melrose, after a long illness. He was operated on at Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital, in December. The funeral will be Thursday afternoon at 2.30 from the First Congregational Church, Melrose. Born in North Andover, Woodman was a graduate of Bates College and of Harvard Law School. He was a 32d degree Mason, past master of Fidelity lodge of Melrose, past commander of Hugh de Payens Commandery, Knights Templars, and had held various municipal offices

'Missing' Boy Hurt in Auto Accident

Less than five minutes after Mrs. Edward B. Keyes, of 11 Lithgow st., Dorchester, had reported her son, Robert, five, missing, Fields Corner police received a report of an accident in which a boy answering Robert's description was seriously injured.

A check-up revealed that it was Robert, and Mrs. Keyes was rushed to City Hospital in a police car.

According to the police, Robert was struck by an automobile operated by Triston Leavitt, of Beachwood rd., East Braintree, near Codman sq., Dorchester.

BUSINESS USERS OF THE TELEPHONE

MACHINE TOOLS

The Simonds Saw and Steel Company at Fitchburg, Massachusetts, is a leader in the manufacture of machine tools, including knives, saws, files and special cutting-edges. It uses the Key-Town Plan of selling-by-telephone, which has been developed by the Bell System for the use of business men.

SALES in the machine-tool business consist of many small orders. Jobbers buy as their stock is sold; consumers, only when replacements are necessary.

One hundred and twenty Simonds representatives cover the trade four to six times a year. Between visits they telephone customers from "key cities." On one trip, half of the customers may be called by telephone instead of being personally visited. Next trip the schedule is reversed.

This plan reduces selling costs. It assists in keeping volume at a high level by allowing calls which a salesman would not otherwise make.

* * * * *

THE Telephone Company has developed for customers many successful sales plans in which the telephone plays an important part. It invites you to investigate the possible savings resulting from adopting some of these plans, or of adapting them to your special needs.

We would like to show you how many successful businesses conduct a major portion of their buying and selling by telephone. A request to any Telephone Business Office will secure the services of a representative qualified to explain these plans

Lorrimers Go to Palm Beach

By FAITH BALDWIN.

JENNY HAD refused to accompany her parents to Palm Beach for the entire season, promising them vaguely to "run down for a week or two later," and so, after a conference with Mrs. Lorrimer, she had moved over to Westwood, with bag and baggage, while the Wynnes were away.

This was nice for Larry, who continued to tear out when he was able, and when he was not able, to frantically phone Jenny that as he would have an hour off she'd better meet him in town!

But the Wynnes insisted that Jenny come South for the two last weeks in February.

"I don't want to," said Jenny to Mrs. Lorrimer. "It's too stupid! Can Delight come too, and Travers? That wouldn't be so bad. Why don't you all come, Aunt Margaret, for two weeks' holiday?"

"I can't," Mrs. Lorrimer said, smiling. "I've too much to do here, for, since Travers has been so like himself, I've taken upon my ancient shoulders the burden of several chairmanships of charity committees. I think the change would do you both, Travers and Delight good, however. Suppose they go down with us, if your mother has room for extra guests."

"Room!" The place is a barn," sighed Jenny. "A Spanish barn—or don't they have barns in Spain? Do persuade 'em to come with me, Aunt Margaret. I can't imagine anything quite so swell, as long as I have to go at all!"

Mary Lou was approached with the proposition. Her eyes shone like a child's. Two weeks at Palm Beach—the place she'd read about, even dreamed about —two weeks!

"If I had known you would have liked to go so much," Mrs. Lorrimer told her, "I would have arranged to take a house there. Well, next season, maybe."

Next season! Mary Lou's heart almost stopped beating. Did Mrs. Lorrimer expect her to stay on indefinitely, now that the upstairs seemed so like himself? But she couldn't stay, once the truth was known. And when was he to be told the truth? She murmured something of this, and Mrs. Lorrimer looked at her, affectionately.

"Not yet," she said. "Doctor Mathews thinks now that we've come so far we mustn't risk losing ground."

But Mary Lou wondered—so much more she could endure, with his nearness and his unspoken wooing, his mute plea for response. She was getting a little thin, losing some of her bright color and sleeping rather badly. It was very difficult when every thing in her, every nerve and fiber, called out to Lorrimer, to snatch at happiness if only for an hour, to tell him she did love him, to feel his arms about her and then, if need be, to run away, where he could never find her, to flinch the fact of her deception in her face.

Lorrimer consented easily o the short holiday. He thought that perhaps in that atmosphere of blue and gold and rustling palms and soft, fragrant winds, this little obstinate love of his might succumb, might listen to him, might answer as he desired. For South, all Nature would conspire with his longing and against her pride.

The Wynnes, telegraphed to, responded nobly. Their lovely, big house on Lake Worth was open for the three who arrived there one February morning. Mary Lou had come armed or armored with new frocks, of the fragile, pastel evening and afternoon sort, and the gay sweatered sport kind, for which Mrs. Lorrimer had wildly shopped a few days before they left.

She was instantly popular with Wynnes' many friends, and had a perfectly wonderful time—dancing and tea, sailing and motoring, fishing and, swimming. She wished the two weeks could last forever, despite Jenny's fidgetings for Jenny's heart was back in town. But Larry took no chances of being forgotten. Wires came to his Jenny every day, and absurd letters scrawled with a thick blue pencil on yellow paper. He was forever warning her, I "Beware the idle rich, of the male and susceptible variety. Larry wires. They are up to no good. Remember I am waiting, poor but dishonest, for your return

Lorrimer was glad to be once more in the sunshine. He golfed, played tennis and swam. But he was disappointed, in that he never seemed to be alone with Mary Lou. She attracted young people in amazing and light hearted numbers. And so he complained to her, one night, when a moon rode silver over the lake, and they were coming back in the Wynnes' fast boat from a houseboat party.

"I never see you alone."

"Oh, yes, you do Lorry!"

"When?" he inquired.

"We golfed alone this morning," she said.

"With about six hundred other people, not including caddies," he reminded her. "Delight, are you purposely avoiding being alone with me?"

Tomorrow—Lorry trembles when Mary Lou wants him to go by airplane with her to his injured mother.

Rainy Day Is Aid to Beauty

By MISS HUDDLESTON.

ONE OF the most trying experiences the fastidious woman faces during the present Spring season is the ever-present possibility of rain, which splotches and mars the immaculate appearance she has just devoted considerable time and thought to achieving.

Umbrella help of course, to prevent these sudden downpours from doing too much damage. Then, there is rainproof raiment which can be donned if the shower is in full sway at the time one must go out. It is of the smartness and suitability of these new rainproof ensembles that I wish to speak today, for certainly the woman who wears suitable clothing under such conditions appears far more attractive to the eye than the woman who insists upon dry finery, despite the downward state it soon gets into when the elements have full swing.

Soft rain on the face is good for the skin and complexion if you have no makeup on that will spoil. Then there is a waterproof makeup.

Incidentally, before we go into some of the newest suggestions for rainy-day apparel, let me remind you that waterproof makeup is indispensable during these whimsical spring days.

To all outward appearances, such make-up is the same as any other, but it certainly is a blessing to know that despite sudden downpours, which catch us unaware, our mascara isn't going to run into our eyes to add redness and burning to the black rivulets that course down our cheeks. And that all of our powder isn't going to be washed from our face while we are seeking shelter

And the clothes that are possible for rainy days! Of course, attractive coats and hats in rainproof material whether they be frankly rubber or of rubberized or treated cloth, are not new to us. But has anyone told you yet that the very newest ones follow the changed fashions, are a bit longer and fuller and smarter in every way than before? Therefore these can be worn without detracting from the smartness and beauty of your ensemble.

Coats and Knickers

Coats and knickers that are part of a four-piece outfit which can be worn to business, too, are a practical idea, so many men find. Others prefer windbreakers in flannel trousers on knickers.

A few hardier souls are doing the course in a sweater instead of a windbreaker or coat. But at this time of year, the coat and trousers, or knickers to match the coat, are usually more comfortable.

Soft Materials

Materials are soft and both heat and cold-resisting. Like tweed homespun, shetland, flannel, gabardine, camel's hair or cheviot. They have small self-weaves, herringbone stripes or conservative checks.

A few men wear the bolder black-and-white checks liked by the Prince of Wales, or the Glenurquhart plaids — but nowhere near the number that choose the quieter patterns.

The most fashionable golfing color is gray. Brown and tan come next, with bluish effects following the greens and gray-ish-greens last.

Easy-Fitting Coats

The coats of these golf outfits are easy-fitting. Most of them have plain backs, but some are made with half-belted backs. None of the three button single-breasted models are preferred

Knickers this year are a little less full than they used to be. A little less baggy. And they'll be worn by most golfers.

But very few wear trousers. More men are going to wear them this year than ever before. Most of the knickers will match the coat—part of the same suit. But some will be of flannel-gray and white checks.

Sweaters and Hose

Most golf hose are plain. And so are sweaters. But small, all-over patterns add larger diagonal designs and other novel, good-looking effects, especially when these are of silver tinsels.

A few men are wearing leather pull-overs instead of sweaters.

Shirts—what can you say of them under sweaters and coats—are white or blue with soft collar attached. They are patterned in small, allover or spaced designs, rather bright in color. And there are quite a few striped ties and plain solid colors.

Fashionable golfing shoes are the sturdy ones that make no note of Spring dampness under foot. Scotch grain with wing tips or plain tips. And a great many of those comfortable moccasin types, too.

What's in Fashion for Men

By AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, April 27—Did you ever stop to think—all you would-be Bobby Jonses—that the clothes you wear now while you're getting the Winter kinks out of your shoulders and wrists may help make the difference between breaking—or not breaking—90 this Summer?

You need clothes free in shoulders, arms, waist and seat. Free enough to let you wrap a club clear around your neck.

Clothes warm enough to keep you comfortable when the sun begins to drop. Clothes quiet enough to keep your attention firmly on the ball when you're putting.

Coats and Knickers

Coats and knickers that are part of a four-piece outfit which can be worn to business, too, are a practical idea, so many men find. Others prefer windbreakers in flannel trousers on knickers.

Hints From the Beauty Box

UNDERGARMENTS that have not been rinsed free of soap may set up a skin irritation. Soap clogs the skin surface of the body rough and reddy. The proper laundering process is to soak the garments in cold or tepid suds, to wash in warm suds, to put through at least four clear rinsing waters. Powder pads must be washed carefully, rinsed well, else they too will produce an irritation of the epidermis.

Facial massage has a value aside from its beautifying effects; it is a stimulating influence to the peripheral nervous system and it acts as a tonic to the blood streams. An hour in the facial chair, together with the administrations of an operator who knows her beauty oils, will put a tired woman on her toes. Nothing like it.

Anything that keeps the scalp warm interferes with the growth of the hair. Heat is depleting. Girls who wear their hats all day will find their topcrests wilty and depressed. At least once a week the hair should have a sun bath and the scalp be rubbed briskly for 10 or 15 minutes. Brushing cleans the hair but is no special stimulant to the growth.

Fity the poor prodigal daughter who carries her face cream with her. She hates her bulky legs. She longs for those slender devil-like arms sported with so much vanity by the slimpy sisters. Let her lie flat on her noble back, lift her feet in the air and pedal in imaginary bicycle. High kicking is a good stunt. It stirs the muscles to action and the muscles kick off adipose tissue. Gymnasiums are equipped with electrical machines for leg reducing that jiggle dimensions down to normal. Massage will help, if continued long enough.

EASY-TO-PLAY-IN SUITS

PEN AND INK

Today's True Story

PROBABLY NO young lawyer who had just hung out his shingle ever started practice with a more hopeless case than that which confronted Hugh Morely.

Allen Dinsmore was his first client, a client without a fee. He came in three days after Hugh had opened his office and motioned for Hugh to send his stenographer, who had yet had no work to do, out of the room

"Hugh, I'm in a jam," he said bluntly, when the stenographer had left.

"Well, what is it now?" asked Hugh.

This he knew wasn't the first "jam" that Allen had been in. But none of them had been very serous ones, and the only trouble of Allen's was bound to be one for Hugh. Because Allen, in addition to being a young man seemingly predisposed to getting himself into tight corners, was also the fiancé of Ellen Dinsmore. And Allen was the one and only so far as Hugh was disposed. Therefore, as any good legal business, he intended to ask her to marry him And, somehow, he believed that she wouldn't say no

No Fooling

"This is no fooling," said Allen, answering Hugh's question. "If I get out of this one, I'm through. It'll be the straight and narrow for me. To begin with, you know that I'm engaged to Helen Brooks?"

Hugh nodded. The engagement had been recently announced.

"Well," continued Allen, "you know how her father is—one slip and you're out. He likes me, all right, but I know he thinks I'm somewhat of a lightweight, and if he hears about this, woman, I'm afraid it will be all off."

"What woman?" asked Hugh.

"Hortense Bliss," answered Allen. "She's a dancer at the Silver Swan. Well, I met her a few months ago, before I became engaged to Helen, but it looks as though I made a fool of myself. Anyway, I wrote her some crazy letters. Nothing wrong, understand. But I can't afford to let them get out. And now she's threatening to sue me for breach of promise. She wouldn't get anywhere and she knows it. So does her lawyer. But they also know I couldn't stand the publicity. And I haven't got the money."

"How much does she want?" asked Hugh.

"Ten thousand dollars," said Allen.

"Let me see the letter," said Hugh. Allen handed him a letter from the dancer's attorney. Hugh recognized the name. The lawyer, he knew, had narrowly escaped disbarment several times and specialized in "shake-down" suits, such as this.

The more Hugh thought about it, the touchier it looked. The dancer, he knew, would show no mercy. If Allen didn't pay the ten thousand to settle out of court, she would file her suit, even though she knew she couldn't win it. But, for her, it would serve as a warning to other men who might be disposed to fight her claims once she was in a position to threaten them

There wasn't anything in the law books to help Hugh. And there wasn't anything in the bank to help him. He didn't have the ten thousand to lend Allen. All he had was his legal training and his experience in the army.

His mind seized on that thought. Letters—he ought to know a lot about letters. He turned the thought over in his mind. And then, suddenly, something clicked. He had it

The next day, in response to calls from Hugh, all the principals assembled in his office; Allen, the dancer and her attorney.

"I suppose you have brought the letters, as I asked you to do?" said Hugh, addressing the dancer's attorney.

"Right here," said the attorney, patting his pocket.

"All right," said Hugh. He drew out a check book, filled in a check for $10,000 and handed it to the attorney.

Want Cash

"No checks," said the latter. "We want cash."

"We're not that foolish," answered Hugh. "The canceled check will be a receipt in case you forget you've been paid. And you know I wouldn't dare give you a bad check. Then you'd have me just where you've got my client."

The attorney looked at the dancer. She nodded slightly

"All right," said the lawyer.

He took out a packet of letters and handed them to Hugh, who gave them to Allen. Allen quickly examined them and then said, "They're all here."

Hardly had the door closed behind them before Allen was on his feet.

"I don't know how to thank you, Hugh," he said. "But I didn't know you had $10,000 in the bank."

"I haven't," said Hugh. Then he laughed at Allen's look of astonishment.

"It was easy," he continued. "You don't think I was going to let that pair get away with anything, do you? We've those letters now, and they can't do a thing."

"But the check," said Allen.

"Oh, that," answered Hugh. "Well, you may remember that I was in the Intelligence Service during the war. And I learned a lot about how to write letters and secret messages. One of the things I learned was how to write in disappearing ink, and the ink on that check has already disappeared."

His Naps Make Her Angry

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

When I married my husband, who is eight years older than I am, I just worshipped him, but he has several habits that are very trying. He doesn't hold his knife and fork correctly and after dinner he always dozes off to sleep and usually snores. He looks so homely that I hate to see him. Another thing, he doesn't want to take me out with him evenings, saying he is tired. Don't you really think he should take me out? LONESOME BRIDE.

Dear Bride: Aren't you quite a bit spoiled, my dear Lonesome Bride, to take a few of life's crumpled rose leaves so seriously? As to that knife and fork trouble, get one of those illustrated books on table setting and table manners. There you will see knives and forks held in the correct position. Diligently ask your husband if you hold yours correctly. Make a little fun of the business—but for goodness sake don't correct him, as that would hurt his feelings. When he takes his afternoon nap, go into the next room—a man working hard all day is entitled to a nap and to do a little snoring on his side. Don't go through life looking for trouble—you'll find plenty of it if you do. Yes, I think he should take you out occasionally.

Shall the Family Be Broken by Adoption?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Since the depression, we've had a hard time to provide for our five children, my husband's work often being irregular. I've tried to help out by doing a little substitute teaching, but it's been a severe struggle. I have a great-aunt who is very well-to-do, and she wants to adopt legally our oldest daughter, aged 14. It would mean that the child would live in Canada and that we would see her but seldom, if at all. As an impartial person who is used to considering things, I'd appreciate what would you think of such an arrangement?

ANXIOUS MOTHER.

Dear Mother—I'm afraid that I believe so heartily in homes and family affection that I'm incapable of giving you very worldly advice. Your letter, which is too long to print, tells how happy you've all been and how you have devoted your children are The girl is 14 and is being well trained in the home, by which she will be able to do in a few years. In your place, I'd try to keep the family together, and with this advice may not suggest the modern urge toward money, but to me, and many other things seem more important.

They Object to a Stepmother

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

Mother died six months ago and our father, aged 65, shocked us terribly when he told us that to marry almost immediately and bring his wife to our home. We have a pleasant little home in the suburbs of this city, which belonged to our mother. It was given to her by her father as a wedding present. When she died she left to us girls outright, but asked us to let father remain with us during his lifetime. He has been very unfortunate in business and with other money matters, and has been in a good deal of trouble one way and another, which accounts for mother leaving her house to us outright. Now we girls are willing to look after father as long as he lives, but we don't feel like taking on a step-mother. Father calmly tells us that, as we please, it will prevent his marrying and he will feel like King Lear

THREE SISTERS.

Dear Sisters—Be thankful, Three Sisters, that you have it in your power to prevent your father from getting into this latest trouble. You would be very weak and foolish if you allowed him to foist an unwanted stepmother on you. As for King Lear, a second wife was the least of his misfortunes—he never even suggested one.

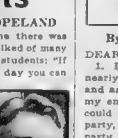
Let Years Temper Sports

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

ONCE upon a time there was a philosopher who talked of many things. He told his students: "If you lift a calf every day you can lift it when it gets to be a cow!"

Alas! There comes a day when, try as you will, sweat and strain, you just can't get the heart off all four feet. There is a limit to human endurance.



Dr. Copeland

Another man was sure that regular exercise of the eyes by daily reading would make it possible to go on to the end of life without spectacles. But, sure as fate, the day comes when the type blurs beyond possibility of recognition.

Natural law operates to defeat our will and fondest hopes. Age is inexorable. We must bow to the inevitable.

What makes me say all this?

A letter from the editor of the Toronto Star called my attention to four sudden deaths from heart disease among Canadian curlers this past winter. This wise man is worried over the dangers of strenuous exercise for men past middle age.

He has a right to be worried

My friends, men and women past middle life, cannot do with safety what they did in early life with ease.

There comes a time when the calf is too heavy and the eyes too feeble to do what our minds try to make us believe we can continue to do.

The other day I had a letter from a famous retired officer, a general in the World War. In reciting his ailments that he participate in a public function he whimsically said: "The old gray mare, she ain't what she used to be!"

Why can't other wise men realize this?

Curling, bowling, polo, tennis, and even swimming and golf, can be a menace to the welfare of those along in life. Some of these sports make too violent demands on heart and blood vessels; others, if too long continued, produce dangerous fatigue

As we advance in life, the warnings that stop the youth become less compelling. Pain is not so acute in age. We are not so aware ourselves of what the onlooker may observe. In short, we can easily overestimate ourselves and yet be unconscious of what we are doing until we wake up in the hospital. Unfortunately, the awakening may be in another world.

As we grow older, the blood vessels walls become harder just as lumber hardens with age. The vessels are brittle and easily broken. Sudden exertion throws such pressure on the inelastic tissues that they may give way, causing bleeding into the brain perhaps, with sudden death just ahead.

Don't gamble with your appearance and feeling of health. Age has its compensations, but physical intemperance is not one of them. It is better sometimes to be an excited onlooker than to face the dangers of participating in a strenuous contest.

Proper to Invite Mother

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I have been engaged for nearly two months and a half, and as it was impossible to keep my engagement a secret until I could give an announcement party, I am planning to give a party in about three weeks to announce the month of the wedding, which will be in June. I would like this very much, and am wondering if it would be correct to have my fiance's mother present?

2. Will you be so kind as to give me some suggestions as to the way to make the announcement?

G. C.

1. Yes, you should invite your fiance's mother to your announcement party, if the party is for women guests only, and, if you are including both men and women, then you should invite his father, too

2. This depends on what kind of party you are to give. In the best form, the announcement is made as simple as possible; sometimes, often indeed, the fiance simply puts on her ring after the guests have arrived and then the news is "announced." If your party is to be a luncheon or dinner or a seated supper, you could have some simple kind of announcement favor. I always admire the girl who does this without a "stunt" form of announcement. The favor at luncheon or dinner or seated supper may be a card case of white or golden leather.

Showing Your Appreciation

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When your escort takes you to his home the first time, what should you say when leaving?

M. R.

When you start to leave, you should say good-by first to your friend's mother, or whoever is the hostess of the home in which you have been visiting. You do this, before you go to get on your wraps. Tell your hostess what a "happy time" you had, how much you appreciated her hospitality, how appreviative you are of her invitation, or something of this kind. Be sincere, that will show that you are an appreciative person. Then say your goodbyes to your host, and to any other member of the family there is. Be sure to make them feel that you have enjoyed yourself, and that you are anticipating seeing them soon again.

USE OF BREAD GROWS, SAYS WILSHIRE

By FRANK H. MELOON

President Joseph Wilshire of Standard Brands, Inc., gives us a study revealing that seven cents of every dollar spent for food buys bread. The food bill of the United States today, he says is about 20 billion dollars annually, or three times that of 1914. While the average American eats a ton of food a year as he did 30 years ago, the diet is more varied and the proportion of bread stuffs is increasing.

These estimates are from a nation-wide survey just completed by the Fleischmann Co., a Standard Brands unit, according to which the average American family spends $60 a year for baked goods of which $45 is for bread and rolls. Bread eating is on the increase says Mr. Wilshire.

Site of Stone & Webster's new 25-story home, opened today in New York, was, early in the 17th century, a part of a canal leading from the East River to Wall St. It was along the banks of this canal that the first ship built in America was constructed in 1614. Later a brewery was conducted by the West India Co. near the site and there in 1642 the first school in New York was built.

Westinghouse Electric showed a loss of close to three million dollars. U. S. Steel and Bethlehem will report first quarter earnings and take dividend action this week.

Professionals were as a rule committed to the selling side of the market last week, as evidenced by the large increase in the short interest. But "strong box" selling was also indicated in the decrease of only $5,000,000 in brokers loans for the week. This investment selling may be replaced later on, many investors now entertaining the view that they can buy back their favorites at lower prices.

Another New York Stock Exchange house will open in Boston May 1, occupying quarters in the Lee, Higginson Building. The rather numerous expansions are due to a number of causes, one being the expectation of better trading markets in near months. Another cause is the rapid growth in relative importance of Boston financial business.

Recently American Tobacco's remarkable success was attributed largely to newspaper advertising. Now we find Paine, Webber & Co. saying, in a discussion of the R. J. Reynolds Company

"Reynolds, through persistent advertising, has achieved second place in the industry and, on the basis of present rate of expansion and gradual improvement in existing economic conditions, longer term commitments in the stocks of the company should be attractive," they state.

Speculative interest is today centered on the meeting of the directors of the Steel Corporation tomorrow. Bethlehem meets on Thursday and Standard Oil of New Jersey a little later. Favorable statements from these quarters will go a long way toward restoring investment buying of stocks.

Union Carbide Net Income $4,613,670

Union Carbide & Carbon Corp. reports for the quarter ended March 31, 1931, net income of $4,613,670 after taxes, depreciation, interest and preferred dividends of subsidiaries, equivalent to 51 cents a share on 9,000,743 no-par shares, against $6,472,783 or 72 cents a share on 8,995,208 shares in the first quarter of 1930.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Wall Street concensus of opinion today was that stocks are passing into stronger hands. Weak holdings, whether by pools, individuals, "investment" trusts or trading and holding companies, or firms, are being rapidly eliminated. Only the strong can survive the constant depreciation which has been witnessed.

Two Views Held in Current Market

That prices of numerous stocks are the lowest in years, some of them the lowest in decades or in their history, suggests that there are two views of the current market.

First, prices have not yet met sufficient buying to stem the downward trend, despite the long decline.

Second, stocks today are cheapest in many years.

How Stocks Move Against the News

Atchison sold lower today, illustrating how stocks move against the news. The road today issued its report for March, showing net profit of $1,469,016, against $634,817 in the like quarter of 1930. At the same time it was announced that in the week ended April 25 Atchison handled 30,655 revenue cars against 29,156 a week ago.

Some Rails Show Gains of Income

While the railroad group sold off in sympathy with the general market, some rails showed gains of income. Carriers reporting today net operating income for March, with comparisons with last year, included

Oil Stocks Are Especially Heavy

Oil stocks showe[illegible] particular heaviness today. St[illegible] N J. soon dropped $3 to a [illegible]w since 1924, at $33.50, but [illegible] regained part of its loss.

Selling Precedes Suspension News

An active flurry of liquidation today preceded the announcement of the suspension of West & Co. during the morning. With the announcement out of the way, selling grew quieter.

Tire and Rubber Selling Checked

Reorganization of Continental Shares, the Otis-Eaton holding company and the election of four Cleveland bankers to the board stopped the flow of selling orders for the tire and rubber stocks, which upset Saturday's market. Goodyear soon advanced 3 points and Continental Shares rallied 1¼ to 5¼. Republic Iron & Steel also moved up a point. Gains were not uniformly held.

BOSTON MONEY RATES LOWER

First National Old Colony Corp. and Shawmut Corp. have reduced rates on bankers' acceptances ⅛ of 1 per cent; new rates are 30, 60 and 90 days 1⅛-1⅛ per cent, 120 days 1⅛-1⅜ per cent, and 150 and 180 days 1⅝ to 1½ per cent.

Leading dealers in New York reduced bid and asked rates on all maturities of bankers' acceptances ⅛ of 1 per cent. The cut is the second in five days.

Present acceptance rates are equal to the lowest levels ever in effect, which prevailed from February 5 to February 14.

New Office Opened

C. D. Parker & Co., Inc., announce the opening of their new office in the Cunard Building, 25 Broadway, New York.

'L' ISSUE IS AT NEW LOW IN BOSTON

Stock prices were worked to lower levels in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. Practically the entire list took part in the decline. Boston Elevated preferred dropped over 3 points to a new low for the year while the common and first preferred issues were unchanged from previous closing levels.

Edison dipped 3 points and Eastern Steamship was 2½ lower. New 1931 lows were made by Pond Creek Pocahontas and United Founders, while American Pneumatic equalled its low for the year.

American Telephone was down nearly 3, while First National Stores and Pacific Mills sagged 1½. United Shoe dipped fractionally to a fresh low.

Wheat Is Higher in Chicago Market

Chicago, April 27 (AP)—Wheat scored early advances today after a wavering start, but corn touched new bottom levels. Upturns in wheat were influenced by relative firmness of Liverpool quotations and by frost reports from Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska.

Opening at ⅛ cent off to ⅜ up, wheat later gained all around. Corn started a ½c decline to ⅛c advance and subsequently underwent a general sag.

Colorado Fuel in Red for Quarter

New York, April 27 (AP)—Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. for the first quarter reported net loss of $247,214, against profit of $1,294,157 before federal taxes in the first quarter last year.

EATON HOLDS CONTROL OF REPUBLIC

New York, April 27—Announcement was made today of the resignation of Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier and a prominent figure in the steel, rubber and public utility industries, from the chairmanship of Continental Shares, Inc., the investment holding company.

At the same time, Otis & Co., the New York Stock Exchange house which had been associated with Eaton in several enterprises, in an official statement, announced the segregation of its investment from its commission business.

All of the brokerage activities were to be turned over to E. A. Pierce & Co., while Otis Co. in continuing its membership in the stock exchange will operate hereafter in an investment capacity only.

Eaton, despite his retirement from an official capacity in Continental, was reported to have retained undiminished his stock holdings in that company and he remains a powerful figure in many other concerns.

He continues as principal partner in Otis & Co. and as the controlling power in the Republic Steel Corporation, third largest producer of steel in the world.

In addition, he is chairman of the board of United Light & Power Company, which controls $1,500,000,000 utility holdings. He is chairman of Continental Gas & Electrical Corporation, and of Commonwealth Securities, Inc., and is a director in 12 other companies.

CURB MARKET OILS LOWER

New York, April 27—Weakness of leading oil shares featured rather active selling in the curb market today. Utilities offered a fair degree of resistance and the more prominent industrial specialties gave evidence of some support, but in the main the list was heavy.

Opening quotations were firm, except for the petroleum stocks. During the first hour prices generally came under pressure, however, although the suspension of a member firm for insolvency passed unnoticed.

Standard Oil of Indiana suffered a 2 point break, while Cities Service, steadily offered, broke below its previous 1931 resistance level for a loss of more than a point. Vacuum and Gulf were heavy. Humble steadied.

Electric Bond & Share, turning over briskly, fluctuated in a narrow range. United Light "A" was firm. St. Regis Paper and other trading favorites eased.

Preferred issues of Continental Shares rallied in small sales, the convertible rising several points. The "B" showed less substantial ad[illegible].

Penn. Electric Co. Earnings Increased

New York, April 27 (AP)—Pennsylvania Electric Company reported for 1930 a balance of $3,975,883 available for dividends and surplus, compared with $3,457,984 reported for the preceding year.

President Edward A. Filene of Wm. Filene's Sons Company at the annual stockholders' meeting today presented a good report on operations for the fiscal year ended Jan. 31. It showed a net profit, after depreciation and federal income tax provisions, of $1,935,412.20.

After payment of $509,974.79 in dividends on preferred stock, there remained an amount equivalent to $2.55 a share on the common stock outstanding.

OVER $5,000,000 SURPLUS

The annual report as previously submitted showed the company in a very sound condition with a surplus of over $5,000,000.

It has more than $4,900,000 in cash and municipal bonds. Current assets total $13,124,959.32, and current liabilities are only $1,573,413.72—a ratio of 8.3 to 1. This is a large improvement over the figure for the previous year of 4.3 to 1.

The items of cash, government and municipal bonds increased $1,027,314 during the year, which is a continuation of steady trend towards an increasingly liquid position. A material reduction of inventory has been accomplished during the year. The company eliminated an item of $600,000 of notes payable as well as greatly improving its cash position.

DIFFICULTIES OVERCOME

President Filene said in part:

"As we have proved before, notably during 1920 and 1921, it is not impossible to increase sales and profits even in the face of the most adverse business conditions. Certain definite step may be taken to meet any such contingencies as may arise due to bad times, falling commodity prices, etc. In the first place, an increased turnover rate will greatly strengthen the chances for increased profits in a falling market. The turnover rate of your company increased slightly during 1930.

"Secondly, the question of mark-up has important bearings on good will. It has always been the basic policy of our business to give people merchandise of reliable quality at the lowest possible price, provided that the merchandise is made and sold under just conditions. This policy should be continued and vigorously re-enforced.

"A third step valuable in meeting difficult times is the more intensive development of an efficient research and forecasting organization. Effective fact-finding research for the elimination of waste and development of better methods and the application of these facts and knowledge to the further strengthening of our organization will help us to give still better values in 1931 and give the better service to our customers on which any safe increase in total net profits must depend."

General Printing Net Is $208,393

New York, April 27 (AP)—General Printing Ink Company and subsidiaries for the quarter ended March 31 today reported net profit of $208,393, equal to 77 cents a share on the common stock, compared with $217,457, or 81 cents a share, in the first quarter of 1930.

FRESH SELLING IS ABSORBED IN WALL ST.

New York, April 27—Heavy selling of stocks in Wall Street subsided in the late afternoon trading today, permitting striking reductions in extreme losses of 1 to 5. Rallying tendencies were good and the market closed with a better tone.

U. S. Steel and Standard Oil of New Jersey halved 3 point declines and 2 to 3 point drops in American Can, Case, Johns-Manville and others were moderated.

SALES UNDER 4,000,000

New York Central, the weakest rail, rallied slightly after a 5 point loss. Sales were well under 4,000,000 shares.

The market pointed upward for a few minutes in the initial transactions, with Continental Shares, Inc., and related issues rising briskly, in response to the announced reorganization of the management of Continental.

Large scale liquidation soon appeared, however, and, although there was a brief letup after announcement of the West & Co. suspension, fresh waves of selling soon swept the market.

One of the more encouraging developments of the day in world finance was the budget message from Philip Snowden, chancellor of the British exchequer. Mr. Snowden spoke hopefully of the general trade outlook, and proposed only temporary expedients to tide over the exchequer pending the arrival of better times.

ACTION ON OIL

While selling of the oil shares was in such volume as to suggest necessitous liquidation, the Snowden message proposed a 50 per cent increase in the tax on gasoline, which may restrict British consumption. Petroleum issues were weak on the London as well as the New York market.

Wall Street bankers explain that Mr. Snowden's proposed appropriation of $100,000,000 of the British dollar exchange fund kept in New York will have no appreciable effect upon the local money market.

As a matter of fact, reductions in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's bill buying rate both last week and again today, have tended to speed a flow of funds from this center to London.

Weakness in the steel shares, while also of such proportions as to suggest forced liquidation, may have been partly a reflection of nervousness over the quarter dividend and earnings announcements to be made by U. S. Steel tomorrow. Recent comment has indicated a general expectation that the corporation will declare its regular $1.75 dividend.

SUSPENSION FOR WEST & CO.

New York, April 27 (AP)—West & Co. was suspended from the New York Stock Exchange today for insolvency.

The firm, a well-known New York and Philadelphia house, maintained several branch offices in Pennsylvania, including two in Philadelphia.

The suspension, announced from the exchange rostrum, was the second in a few days.

Pynchon & Co. was suspended last Friday.

The company has 11 general partners and four special partners. The special partners are William West, Elmer E. Rodenbough, Granville D. Montgomery, Howard W. Hunter. The general partners are Harry C. Thayer, William W. Watson, Jr., J. West Rulon Copper, Hugh R. Partridge, Samuel Cochran Finnell, Charles Sheridan, Bryce Blynn, William W. Hepburn, Thomas G. Stockhausen, floor member, and W. Knowlton Hoag and Edward C. Cassard.

Manager Penfield Moore of the Boston branch of West & Co. had no comment to make on the news of the suspension preferring to await developments from the main office in Philadelphia.

Recovery Abroad Is Noted by Otis

New York, April 27—President Van Alstyne of Otis Elevator told stockholders today:

"In Europe the conditions have greatly improved. In France we had a profit of $119,000, against a loss of $71,000 in 1929. In Germany our profit was $149,000, compared with a loss of $52,000, while in Italy, where a loss was shown in 1929, we went into the black in 1930."

Corn and Oats Are Lowered in Chicago

Chicago, April 27 (AP)—Corn whizzed downward today to within a cent of a half a dollar a bushel, almost equaling a record of 50½ cents in 1921. Oats went the lowest since 1901. Wheat maintained comparative steadiness, although at times hovering near the season's bottom level.

Indiana Standard's Dividend Ordered

Standard Oil Co. of Indiana declared regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents, payable June 15. Three months ago the rate was reduced to 50 cents quarterly from 62½ cents.

RUTH BACK IN N. Y., HOPES TO PLAY ON FRIDAY

FANNING

With GEORGE UNDERWOOD

HAWAIIANS WIN IN WATER, MAY ON LAND

WHEN YOU think of Hawaii what do you think of ' Across the screen of the mind flashes the beach at Waikiki . . . The curling combers come pounding in snaking their white manes like sea-horses . . . They are ridden by bronzed, raven haired swimmers . . . Golden skinned maidens dance the hula-hula . . . Moonlight and palm trees . . . You hear the ukeleles and steel guitars throbbing the passionate South Sea strains . . . Alohoa Oe, that wonderful melody of hail and farewell

KAHANAMOKU

Yes, Hawaii to you and to me means love, song, moonlight, palm trees, hula dancers, ukeleles. Soft, seductive, languorous, we never associate Hawaii with boxing. It would seem sacrilege to let the clang of the ring gong jar on the soft, tropical silence.

Yes—O Tempora! O Mores!—a group of Hawaiian boxers have come 5000 miles just for a scrap! They have just completed the long journey from Honolulu to New York to swing mits in the annual national amateur boxing championship, which will begin its Madison Square Garden tonight

ELSEWHERE you may see photographs of these Hawaiian boxers. They do not look very warlike with their native leis around their necks One of them boxes in his bare feet. Some of us may smile and scoff at their chances. Shorty, the Office Boy, looking over our shoulder, as we glanced at the photograph of the Hawaiians, snorted:

"Huh! A lot chance those Chinks would have with an O'Brien or a Murphy! Why our boys will knock their blocks off!"

Perhaps they will Shorty—perhaps they will. But it doesn't do to be too overcome by the Nordic complex. The boys were inclined to laugh when Duke Kahanamoku first entered Olympic swimming competition. The Duke had the last laugh. Some of the remarkable Hawaiian swimmer's records still stand, along with those made by another amphibian from Honolulu, Warren Kealoha.

SWIMMING comes natural to the Hawaiians some may argue. The water is their natural element. Why in Hawaii some of those little round, rolly-polly bambinos even can swim before they can walk. Swimming is one thing, boxing another. Boxing is a sport distinctive for the rugged races. Natives of the tropics are not fitted for it.

Yeah? And again, Yeah?

LET us tell you a story. Rather let your Dad, or your Uncle Pat, or some one of the "boys" who shouldered a Krag when Uncle Sam was playing bare and hounds with Aguinaldo on the rice paddies of Luzon, tell it to you. Perhaps Dad or Uncle Pat will tell you of Felipe

PANCHO VILLA

Every outfit which served in the Islands had a Felipe. His name might have been Pancho, or Lope, or something or other but he always was the same. Like Gunga Din, "The uniform 'e wore was nothing much before, and rather less than 'arf o' that, behind." Dirty, unkempt, naked as he came into the world, he used to sit up on the mess kit, dangling his little brown legs, twiddling his toes and singing for his dinero:

"Non hablo tabacco,
Non hablo papel,
Non hablo dinero .
Gol durn it to 'ell!

Who would have thought Felipe or any of the ten-thousand-thousand little brown bambinos more plentiful in the Philippines than cooties later were on the Western Front ever would win a world's professional boxing crown?

But that is what one of those little brown brothers, Pancho Villa, went and done!

The little aloe-eyed saffron skinned Filipino came to this country and proved that for his ounces and inches he was the greatest little fighting man in the world. Fast as a mongoose, with a punch short as a Betty Compton honeymoon and as savage and vicious inside the ropes as a pit bulldog—please Mister Compositer don't change that to "pet"—he went through our flyweights like a miniature cyclone and wound up by fairly annihilating Jimmy Wilde, the little Britisher, who the whole sports world claimed couldn't be beaten.

PANCHO Villa, Lope Tenorio, Young Dencio, Clever Sencio, Elino Flores, Silver Jamito and other Filipino boxers showed us that when it came down to the hole in the doughnut boxing belonged just as much to the Moro and the Taglog as it did to the Celt, the Anglo-Saxon, the Teut and the Latin

The Hawaiian race, if such an admixture of blood can be called a race, is sturdier than the Filipino.

So, remembering what Panco Villa, the Filipino, did to the world's best professional ringmen, we reckon we better not laugh or scoff, Shorty, at what the Hawaiians are likely to do when the gongs clang in the national amateur boxing championships, tonight and for the next few nights, in Madison Square Garden, New York.

BUD TAYLOR

WE HOPE Tragedy does not stalk on the trail of the Hawaiians as it did on the Filipino boxers. Villa, Dencio, Sencio all killed in the ring. A couple of the other Filipino boxers, if what we hear is true, are facing something worse than death. Those who went back to Manila went back broken in health and purse. Money, prosperity, an unscrupulous manager, were too much for poor Felipe. Like Poor Lo, poor Felipe found out the white man's ways were not the ways of the redskin or the little brown man

Pancho Villa died shortly after a bout with Jimmy McLarnin, now a welterweight, but then a flyweight. Sencio died in a ring combat with Bud Taylor. Two of Bud's opponents died in the ring. The other was poor game little Frankie Jerome

NOT SO long ago Mason Anckor, sporting editor of the Manila Times, here on a visit, dropped in to see us. In talking over the numerous Filipino ring fatalities Mason said:

"It all was due to a mistake in anatomy. Trainers of Filipino boxers labored under the misapprehension that the skull of a Filipino is as hard as a Negro's. Filipino boxers were taught to protect heart, stomach and wind. They paid no attention to the head. That was a mistake. Science tells us that a grown Filipino's skull is as soft as a child."

Interesting, if nothing else The truth is that Villa entered the ring against McLarnin in no fit physical condition. The Taylor-Sencio affair, like the Taylor-Jerome bout, was prolonged beyond the danger point. We have seen six men killed in the ring. Not one of the death's was excusable. All could have been averted with proper care and direction.

Al Mamaux, the pitcher, and your columnist sat at the ringside in Newark the night Micky Shannon was killed in his bout with Al Roberts. Shannon's head hit the ring floor within two feet of us. We pushed our hands under the canvas. Not a bit of padding of any kind.

Billy McCarney, now associated with Joe Jacobs in the management of Max Schmeling, was associated in the management of Shannon. Another of McCarney's fighters, the late Luther McCarty, was killed in a bout with Arthur Pelky, in Calgary.

Billy Gibson managed Frankie Jerome. Gibson also managed Al Roberts. The McCarney-Shannon-McCarty-Gibson-Jerome-Roberts [illegible] coins under the head of strange coincidences.

HAWAIIANS TRAVEL 5000 MILES---JUST FOR A FIGHT!

FIGHTS IN BARE FEET Benny "Flash" Akahuela, Hawaiian lightweight, to fight in the national amateurs, is also a star football player, but whether in the ring or on the grid, never uses shoes.

HAWAIIAN BOXING TEAM WEARING LEI WREATHS Here is the complete Hawaiian boxing team who have crossed ocean and continent to compete in the national amateur boxing championships which start in New York today. They don't grow 'em big in Hawaii and only contenders in classes to the welterweight have been entered in the championships. Left to right they are: Willis Sylva, flyweight; Jiro Sato, featherweight; Ben "Flash" Akahuela, lightweight; Felix Bochenek, lightweight, and Walter Mackey, welterweight. They hope to capture ring crowns.

A FIGHTER TWO WAYS Walter Mackey, a trooper in the Hawaiian division of the U. S. Army, who is a member of the invading team. He is a welterweight and made quite a reputation overseas.

FIRST GAMES ON IN EASTERN LEAGUE

New Haven, Conn., April 27 (AP) - Eight baseball clubs of a greatly revamped Eastern League today awaited the cry of "Play ball!" for the opening of the 1931 campaign in two widely separted sectors.

With four more new clubs added to the roster since this circuit closed its 1930 season, Fred J. Voss, chairman of the executive committee of the league, expressed confidence the league would prove a success this year

Four of the eight teams which started the 1930 season dropped out of the league before completing their schedules. Two other clubs, Providence and Pittsfield, have been replaced by Norfolk and Richmond The other two, Hartford and New Haven, are again members of the circuit.

The opening of the season today will bring Hartford and New Haven together at the latter city. Richmond and Norfolk will line up on their home diamonds against Allentown and Bridgeport, respectively, while Springfield will open the home season for Albany

A tablet will be unveiled before the New Haven-Hartford game in memory of "Wild Bill" Donovan, star pitcher of the Detroit Tigers, who managed the 1922 New Haven team.

Yale, Penn to Test Columbia Crew

New York, April 27 (AP)—Columbia, ruler of the eastern rowing roost by virtue of its triumph over Navy a week ago, faces its second test this week in the fifth annual Blackwell cup regatta on the Harlem

Yale and Pennsylvania, both untried in competition this season, furnish the opposition for Columbia in next Saturday's race.

Yale's varsity with an inexperienced stroke oar, Bob Gooddale, looks like a powerful opponent for Columbia. The makeup of the Penn eight still is uncertain and the Quakers seem to be third choice in the varsity race. Each college will have three crews in the regatta. Their 150-pound, freshman and junior varsity eights will meet as well as the big crews.

World Soccer Champ to Play Here May 30

The famous Glasgow Celtics, acknowledged world soccer champions, will play the New York Yankees at Braves Field on May 30 to open their New England campaign.

The Celtics will play three matches in New England. On May 31 they will oppose the Fall River eleven at Tiverton, R. I., and on June 6, they will clash with the Pawtucket Rangers at the Cyclodrome, Providence

"Doc" Gautreau Is Hitting Ball Hard

Montreal, April 27—Doc Gautreau, former Holy Cross and Braves star, now playing second base for the Montreal Royals, connected for a homer with two runners on base that gave his team victory over Baltimore recently.

Sears Cup Tennis Tourney June 5, 6

New York, April 27—The women's tennis matches for the Sears Cup, a trophy donated by Miss Eleonora Sears of Boston, for intersectional rivalry, will be played at the Westchester Country Club, on Friday and Saturday, June 5 and 6.

The field for the Sears Cup matches is certain to be a representative one.

The Boston contingent should be strong, as it will include Miss Marjorie Sachs, national indoor champion, and Miss Sarah Palfrey.

OFF FOR NEW YORK

ARTHUR CROWLEY JOHNNY IGOE

SUPT. CROWLEY BABE RUTH MRS. RUTH

Blackwell Cup Races to Be Held Saturday

New York, April 27—The first big regatta of the intercollegate rowing season will be held on Saturday on the Harlem river when the Blackwell Cup races are rowed.

Columbia, Yale and Pennsylvania are the entries in the fifth annual Blackwell Cup regatta. Columbia beat the Navy in decisive fashion, but will get a real testing from Ed Leader's Blue boat and Rusty Callow's Pennsylvania eight.

SHARKEY AND CARNERA TO SIGN TODAY

New York, April 27—Contracts for a 15-round bout between Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion, and Primo Carnera, Italian champion, to be staged at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, on June 10 under the direction of Jimmy Johnston, will be signed here today.

Leon See and Billy Duffy, managers of Carnera, and Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's pilot, are on the job ready to place their signatures on the dotted line.

The actual signing of the contracts was delayed until now on account of the fact Carnera has until recently been under the ban of the New York athletic commission. It is understood, however, that all terms for the bout were agreed upon shortly after Carnera arrived in New York following his victory over Jim Maloney in Florida.

Signing May Start Legal Battle

The signing of Sharkey and Carnera is expected to result in a legal battle, in which the Illinois Madison Square Garden Corporation, which has Primo signed to meet the winner of the Schmeling-Stribling bout in September, will apply for an injunction in the federal courts against Primo battling Sharkey.

Carnera says there is not any consideration for his contract with the Illinois Garden, and that it will not stand up in a court of equity.

Red Sox Players to Attend K. C. Degree

Bill Sweeney and Al Van Camp of the Red Sox, will be guests at Pere Marquette Council, K. of C. tonight, when 15 candidates will take their first degree.

Many of the members are looking forward to greeting Sweeney, who is a member of the Pere Marquette council. Van Camp is a member of a council in the western part of the country. The baseball players will each make a short address, following the initiation rites.

Berlin May Be Site of 1936 Olympics

Although there was no official announcement concerning a secret vote on the site of the 1936 Olympic games, it was believed Berlin and Barcelona were the leaders and stand the best chances of being awarded the classic. Berlin was understood to be the leader in the voting.

Old Dominion Golf Title Play Starts

Hot Springs, Va., April 27 (INS) —Golfers from all sections of the country were to start today in the 18-hole qualifying round in the first Old Dominion golf championship.

T. Philip Perkins, former British amateur champion and now of New York, is among the favorites.

BABE LEAVES BOSTON IN TEARS

New York, April 27 (US)— Drawing more attention than the King of Siam, George Herman Ruth, the king of slam, came home last night after a three days' visit in the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital at Boston, where he was recuperating from his injury caused when he collided with Charley Berry at the plate last Wednesday.

Ruth limped badly as he alighted from the Shore Liner. He was tired. He crawled into the waiting wheel chair almost eagerly. The trying ordeal of the past few days seems to have sapped his energy.

A crowd of several hundred people, who had hoped to get a glimpse of the Sultan of Swat, were disappointed. Ruth's attendants, and there were many, wheeled him to the baggage lift at the track level, up a flight to where his automobile was waiting for him. Transferred to the car, he and Mrs. Ruth, who accompanied him from Boston, drove home immediately

To the all-important question, Ruth answered:

"I feel O. K., but I think I'll be lucky if I get back in the game within a week or 10 days."

Babe's Decision May Be Reversed

Mrs. Ruth, who has been with him constantly since the injury, was more emphatic.

"It will be at least two weeks," she said.

Ruth's injury has been diagnosed as a deep muscle bruise. He will be under the care of Dr. Edward King, who attended him during his sickness three years ago.

Informed of Dusty Cooke's injury at Washington yesterday, Ruth said:

"That's mighty tough. The jinx certainly has been after us this spring."

Blind Boy's Wishes Bring Tears to Babe's Eyes

A touching little incident before Ruth left for home caused Babe to forget the cheers of the bystanders.

Just before Babe started for the taxi, seven-year-old Walter Kent of Bradford, who is stone blind, was wheeled up to say "Good-bye"

Ruth's eyes filled with tears as the youngster wished him the best of luck on the diamond this season.

"I thought I was in pretty bad shape before seeing that poor little kid," said the Babe, "but now I know I am one of the luckiest fellows alive. Never again will I complain about any illness or hard luck on a ball field."

Before he left Boston on Saturday, Joe McCarthy, Yankee pilot, had no intention of using Ruth until the Yanks return to the Stadium to meet the Red Sox next Sunday, at the earliest

Yesterday, though, Dusty Cooke, Yankee outfielder, who was taking Ruth's place in the batting order, suffered injuries which will keep him out of the game for two weeks, and Myril Hoag, who was taking the Bambino's place in the field, was injured in Friday's game at the Fens

School Track Meet at Worcester Saturday

The first major outdoor interscholastic track meet of the year will be held Saturday at Worcester. This will serve the coaches as a trial for the big games of the spring season, the Harvard interscholastics, which come a week later at the Stadium.

English High, champion of the indoor season, hasn't been doing so much on the cinders and the title at Worcester might slide along to Brockton, Newton, Brookline, Lawrence, or perhaps, Watertown, which has shown plenty of class in this sport of late.

Argentine Courtmen Win Davis Cup Play

Santiago, Chile, April 27 (INS)— An Argentine tennis team swept to victory over Chile's court aces with three straight triumphs here in the South American Zone Davis Cup finals, and today stood ready to battle the North American Zone winner.

The Argentinians captured two singles matches yesterday, and won a doubles match Saturday. There were five scheduled matches.

Harvard Crews to Be Picked Tomorrow

Harvard's freshman and junior varsity entries in the triangular regatta among Harvard, Princeton and Technology on the Charles river Saturday afternoon will be selected following trial races on the Charles late tomorrow afternoon.

Providence to Play H. C. Wednesday

Providence, April 27—Three ball games are listed for the Providence College varsity baseball team for the coming week, with the Holy Cross game at Worcester on Wednesday.

MACK CONFIDENT A'S WILL WIN TITLE AGAIN

CONNIE SEES RED SOX AS IMPROVED

By JOE CASHMAN

Connie Mack, never looking better, sat watching the rain which washed out the scheduled opening of the Red Sox-Athletics series.

Fifty years in baseball has made the beloved leader of the world's champions from Philadelphia a philosopher as far as the weather is concerned. He takes it as it comes without comment.

When the elements give him a day off, however, he does talk baseball. His duties as manager of the A's keep him r.s busy that he has little time to make public his views about his team, the big league race and the sport in general. Consequently, the legend has grown that the tall tactician dislikes to give interviews.

That is not so. Connie gladly will and does speak when he has the opportunity, and his observations are most interesting for he knows baseball as do few others.

Mack Looks for Third Straight Title

He's looking forward to his Athletics winning their third straight world's championship next fall, something no big league team has ever accomplished.

He admits that the journey will be plenty rough and rocky, but he is confident that his boys will overcome all obstacles and succeeded.

"The American League appears better balanced this season than for several years," he began. "Most of the clubs have improved and the race should be close and hard-fought right down to the finish.

"Hank McDonald, rookie righthander from Portland, Ore., should win a lot of games for us, and the acquisition of Phil Todt and Jimmy Heving from the Red Sox makes us stronger in reserve strength than we were last season.

"I intend to stick to the lineup that won the world's championship in '29 and '30. It would be ridiculous to break up a winning combination, no matter how classy some of the bench-warmers happen to be.

"Find if any of my stars get hurt we have the reserves to carry on and keep winning.

"We have been without Jimmy Foxx for a spell but with Todt on the job we have held our own, being only two games back of the top despite a very slow start.

Earnshaw Can Still Pitch Great Ball

"My regulars, with the exception of Foxx, and he is almost fit again, are all in fine shape. There were rumors that Earnshaw was ill but he has proved otherwise by pitching great ball from the start.

"Washington had a fine team last year and has again this season. Now York and Cleveland have improved and will give us plenty of trouble.

"None of the other clubs rate as pennant contenders, yet all should prove more bothersome than last season.

"But my club is strong in every department of the game, and I see no reason why it should not repeat unless it becomes overconfident. It is my job to see that it doesn't make that fatal mistake.

Mack Sees Red Sox as Dangerous Club

"I haven't seen the Red Sox play this season, but from all accounts the appointment of John Collins as manager and the acquisition of several promising rookies have made the club a most dangerous one.

"I know Collins too well to regard his entry lightly. 'Shano' is plenty smart and a real fighter and he is bound to have a smart and fighting ball club.

"I would like to see the Sox up there long for the sake of Boston, one of the country's finest baseball cities, and Bob Quinn, one of the squarest and ablest magnates in the business.

"I know how it feels to be at the bottom of the heap. I was down there myself for a long time. There are a lot of tough jobs in this world but let me tell you, the toughest is being the owner of a last place ball club.

"It is remarkable how Quinn has stood up and he deserves a lot of credit and plenty of luck. I certainly wish him a full of both.

"He had a mighty tough break when Ruth got hurt and another when calls came for Foxx on Sunday. He'll forget these, though, if his team wins a few ball games. That's the kind of a guy he is. Always an optimist."

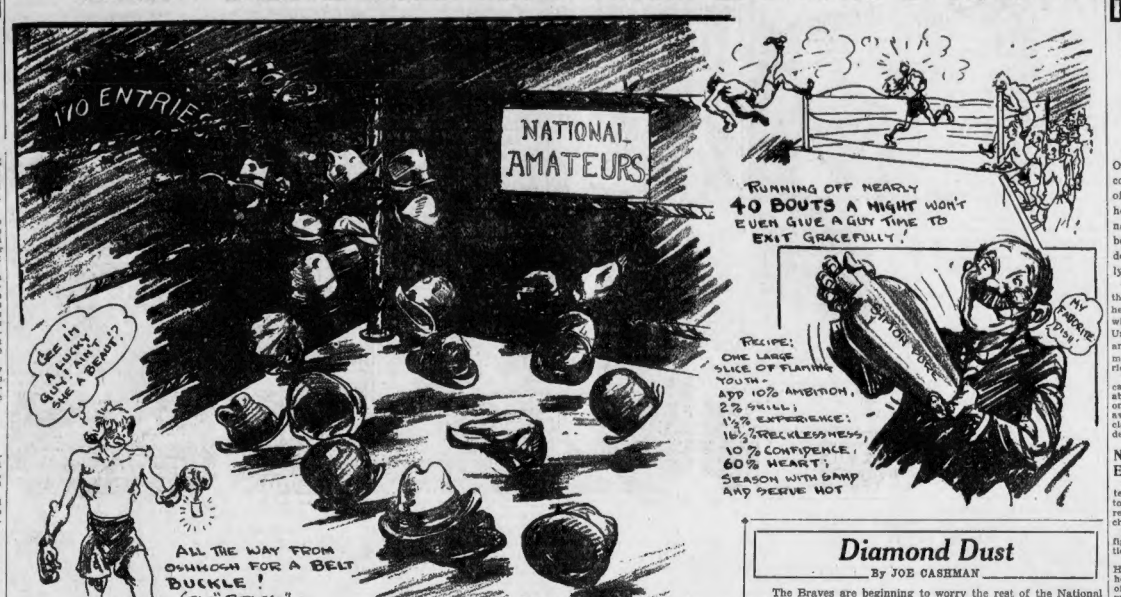
Harvard to Play Colby Tomorrow

Harvard's baseball team plays three games this week winding up on Saturday with an important contest against Dartmouth at Hanover in the first of the big games on the Crimson schedule.

Tomorrow Harvard stacks up against Colby at Soldiers Field and on Thursday combats New Hampshire on the same diamond. Harvard should score victories in both contests.

MacHale will start the week off against Colby, while Devens will get the turn against New Hampshire. On Saturday MacHale will again take the mound against the Green.

ACTION GALORE WHEN SIMON PURES TOSS HATS IN RING



BUSY WEEK FOR B. C. TEAMS

Four Boston College teams swing into action this week, either at the Heights or away from home. The baseball nine engages St. Bonaventure College at the Heights on Thursday afternoon, the one baseball game of the week.

The Maroon and Gold track team takes part in the Greater Boston intercollegiates, which are to be held at the Harvard Stadium on Friday and Saturday afternoons. The varsity tennis outfit meets Boston University at Nickerson Field, Weston, and the yearling tournamen opposes Newton high school and Boston English at the Heights on this afternoon and Wednesday.

Coach Jack Ryder has entered 46 varsity and 26 freshmen in the Stadium meet and prophesys that they will give the other teams a hard battle for the championship of the city.

Ryder is depending upon his stars to gather in enough points to keep Boston College on the top of the heap. Donald Fleet will run the quarter-mile and is a sure victor. He may also run the half.

Ryder is counting on Moynahan in the mile, Tom O'Brien in the dashes, Joe King in the quarter, Jack O'Brien in the half and the mile, Tommy Meagher in the mile, Ralph Ward and John Moynahan in the two mile.

Clarendon Handicap Feature at Jamaica

By ED CURLEY.

New York, April 27—The Clarendon Handicap, for members of the claiming division, will feature the card this afternoon at the Jamaica course.

Sun Forward may be the lucky one to get down in front.

Deedie, which was third in his last outing, will probably land the place. Bubsy C will make his initial start and should finish inside the money.

THIRD RACE—Claiming. Handicap; three-year-olds and upward; mile and seventy yards.

Horse	Wt.	Jockey	Fr. Odds
Sun Forward	106	Munden	3-1
Deedie	114	Curran	6-1
Bubsy C.	105	Kefover	8-1
Cesare	106	Sherry	7-1
Spanish	111	Adams	4-1
Kiss Off	113	Malley	8-1
Javris	109	Kummer	20-1

FIRST RACE—Two-year-old fillies, five furlongs.

Horse	Wt.	Jockey	Fr. Odds
Madrayne	118	Rose	3-1
Sky Alight	118	Remillard	8-1
Indagon	118	Walters	8-1
Stepping Sister	112	Malley	—

Steak	112	Garner	—
Miss Swiftmine	118	Harvey	12-1
June Bride	107	Resick	—
Anthem	118	Burke	10-1

Mordawn looks the winner of the first race. In her race last week she finished a close second to Dark Victory, and beat as good as she is meeting here, Sky Alight will be the contender.

SECOND RACE—Three-year-olds and upward; claiming; six furlongs.

Horse	Wt.	Jockey	Fr. Odds
Pass in View	107	Fisher	4-1
Reet's Grey	107	Snyder	4-1
Montauk	117	Leischman	6-1
Emily O.	107	Malley	8-1
Fair Enough	117	Kelsay	6-1
Night Extra	117	Gilbert	6-1
Lindy	122	Meek	10-1
Polydon	112	Adams	20-1
Rich Test	112	Burke	6-1

Pass in Review may capture the second heat. Was a disappointment the other day, but has worked fast enough to outrun this field. Reet's Grey, on last year's form, figures to win second money, keep out of the money.

FOURTH RACE—Three-year-olds and upward, claiming, six furlongs.

Horse	Wt.	Jockey	Fr. Odds
Zombar	108	Snider	5-2
Miss Brown	107	Steffen	4-1
Peach Bowl	102	Adams	4-1
Omero	112	Garner	3-1
Great Hopes	116	McGovern	15-1
Disappointer	107	Harvey	8-1
Wesths	112	Resick	12-1
Igloo	112	Meek	8-1
Airliner	112	Rose	10-1
Bribon	112	Calrose	15-1

Zamber won his last race so handily that he figures to win the fourth. He outran better horses than he will meet here, and likes this course. Sun Broom can do better than he showed Friday, and will be up there fighting it out.

FIFTH RACE—Two-year-olds, maidens, five furlongs.

Horse	Wt.	Jockey	Fr. Odds
H. McCallan, Jr.	118	Garner	—
Scion	118	Munden	—
Urgency	118	Burke	—
Eagleton	115	Malley	—

Danny Boy	118	Pascuma	—
Winning Ways	118	Remillard	—
Magical Image	118	Steinhardt	—
Brandon Rud	118	Baker	—
Despoil	118	Kelsay	—
Johnny	118	Harvey	—
Dexterity	118	Kummer	—
Wild West	118	Barnes	—

Hugh McCallan, Jr., will win the fifth unless there are a few stars among the non-starters. In his first appearance here he ran Sir Jonothan to a head, and a few days ago was a bang-up fourth. Scion was a length behind Hugh in his last start, and that is where he should finish here. Urgency looks the best of the others.

SIXTH RACE—Three-year-olds and upward, claiming, one mile and seventeenth.

Horse	Wt.	Jockey	Fr. Odds
Simone	119	Remillard	6-5
Rock Dun	111	Bradley	2-1
Fountwain	112	Malley	4-1
Garlic	116	Kelsay	6-1
Wellet	122	Phillips	15-1

LEWIS WANTS LONDOS MATCH

Chicago, April 27 (INS)—Ed "Strangler" Lewis, who claims that he and not Jim Londos is the heavyweight wrestling champion, will defend his claims against Jean Le Deaux, French giant, at the Coliseum tomorrow night.

Lewis asserted he will post a $25,000 guarantee to meet Londos, who, he says, he has defeated 12 times.

Diamond Dust

By JOE CASHMAN

The Braves are beginning to worry the rest of the National League. The clean sweep which the warriors gained over Brooklyn in the opening series was looked upon by rival clubs as a mis take, but the natives' feat of splitting even with the Giants and then taking two more out of three from the Robins has convinced all opponents that the local club has the class to cause plenty of trouble this season.

Today, the Tribe will open a three-game series with the Phillies in the Quaker City bandbox. It should take at least two of the three tilts if the twirlers can keep Charlie Klein from knocking the ball over the short fences. Harry "Socks" Seibold, who has two victories to his credit to date, and "Jumbo" Elliott are fisted to be the opposing flingers in the opening encounter.

The Yankees are getting more unlucky and dumb every day. While in Boston they lost the services of Babe Ruth and came up Saturday with one of the dumbest baseball exhibitions ever. Yesterday, in Washington, Outfielder Dusty Cooke sustained injuries which will keep him out of the game for two weeks when he crashed into a fence chasing a fly and Lyn Lary pulled a boner which was worse than any of the three his mates made here the day before.

The shortstop was on base with two out in the first inning when Gehrig hit a home run. The ball bounced out of the centerfield stands and landed in Harry Rice's glove just as Lary was rounding third and the latter believed the side to be retired.

So he stopped running and started for his position at shortstop. Gehrig kept right on going to the plate, Lary was called out, so reports say, and he could have been forgiven for the error. He could have Gehrig for passing a baserunner.

And the Yanks lost the game by a margin of two runs they had made, the final score being 9 to 7 in favor of the Senators.

Equipoise Better; "Foul Play" Denied

Havre de Grace, Md., April 27 (AP)—Equipoise, Kentucky Derby and Preakness favorite, which ran last in a field of six three-year-olds here Saturday, showed signs of rapid recovery today from the attack of the kidney ailment blamed for the upset, but his trainer said the colt might not be started in the $50,000 Pimlico classic.

Both Dr. Henry J. McCarthy, veterinarian for the Maryland tracks, who diagnosed the colt's trouble as azoturia, and Edward Burke, manager of the track, scoffed at suggestions that the favorite was a victim of foul play.

"A man might as well try to get into the United States Treasury legally as to get into the Whitney stables, if he did not belong there," Dr. McCarthy said. "No stable keeps it horses under better guard."

$273 for Each Windsor Player

Windsor, Ont., April 27 (AP)—The 13 players and Manager Herb Mitchell of the Windsor Bulldogs, champions of the International Hockey League for 1931 will receive approximately $273 each as their share of the players' pool from the playoff games.

Windsor was given $8829 as the lion's share of the 12-game, round robin, series receipts. Buffalo, which finished in second place, has $3282 to be divided among the players, Cleveland $2185 and Pittsburgh $1641.

No "B" Teams

No "B" teams in sports can be organized at the University of Oklahoma because of the governor's economy program.

TECH CREWS IN DRILL FOR MEET

Far from satisfied with the showing made by his M. I. T. varsity crew against the Navy oarsmen on Saturday, coach Bill Haines, the Beaver mentor, is hoping for good weather on the Charles this week so that he can put his oarsmen through intensive daily drills in preparation for the triangular meet with Harvard and Princeton on Saturday.

BOSTON BOYS IN NATIONAL AMATEURS

New York, April 27 (US)—One hundred and fifty of the country's best amateur boxers of all classes from flyweight to heavyweight are here for the national championships, which begins in Madison Square Garden tonight and continues nightly through April 30.

This is the first time in 31 years that the nationals have not been held in Boston. Twenty provinces within the jurisdiction of the United States have representatives, and Canada also has a team of two men coming to take part in the richest event amateur boxing offers.

The Hawaiian team of six men, came 5000 miles at an expense of about $6000, for the chance to win one of the gold belts, which will be awarded the champion in each class after the final bouts are decided.

New England Team Expected to Win Honors

The New England A. A. A. U. team, which was selected from Boston and its suburbs, is expected to return home with its share of the championships.

In past years local talent has figured prominently in the disposition of crowns.

The New England team will have Henry Surette of Leominster in the heavyweight class, Dick Madden of Roxbury in the light heavyweight division, Joe Delmont of Boston and John Renda of Fitchburg in the 147-pound field, Steve Salek of Lowell in the 135-pound class, Joe Pacino of Roxbury in the 126-pound class, Joe Ferrante of the North End in the 118-pound, and Henry Burns of Somerville in the 112-pound division.

Boston will be without the services of a middleweight and the team's chances would have been greatly strengthened if Milton Bishop, Gordon Hathaway or Billy Mignault of West Bridgewater were included.

No N. E. Middleweight Team Entered

None of the latter three were able to be away from business for so long a period, but the class will have Vic Allen of Hartford, Ct., as the New England representative.

With the exception of Salek, Burns and Ferrante, the others are all junior champions. Burns and Ferrante were not contestants in the junior events, preferring to hold off for the national series.

Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

After five weeks in the Baker Memorial Hospital, Jack Lowe, the veteran amateur golfer, is back home. Thousands of Jack's friends were at a loss to understand why he was not in the Woodland four-ball team lineup last week, for few of them knew that his usual good health.

Although Jack Lowe will be obliged to take things slowly for some time, he will be back at the old game as soon as the warm weather arrives.

As usual, the first Massachusetts Golf Association open tournament will be staged by the Marlborough Country Club. If the weather is inviting, there will be an exceptionally large entry at Marlborough on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week for the boys are all anxious to win a decision over this tough nine holer.

Fred Rolfe, the club champion, led the field at the end of last year's three-day Marlborough open handicap medal play tournament. If the wind is puffy and strong as it was last season, the new and lighter ball will be making forced landings in all sections of Middlesex County.

One of the most laughable complaints registered against a caddy was made by a member of the W. G. A., who was all unstrung because her caddy did not tell her how legally as to get into the green. Incidentally, the cause of the complaint was hidden by a hill and only about 75 yards from her ball and three times that distance away from the green.

One of the first names Fred Corcoran, the state handicapper, will work on tomorrow is Ralph C. Welland. Mr. Welland, better known as "Cooney," came up with an 83 at Sandy Burr on Saturday and his 17 handicap resulted him to 66 and gave him the low net.

Incidently, "Cooney" was only two strokes away from the low gross, which was taken by Alex W. Chisholm. From now on, Welland will save time if he devotes his mathematics to the difference between 13 and his gross scores.

Walter "Dido" Falvey and E. T. "Buddy" Ryan are beginning to go places as a four ball team. They were the runners up at Waltham on Saturday. Falvey and Ryan owe their success in golf to their uncanny ability to concentrate not only on every shot, but also between shots.

Some of our more temperamental stars are developing "nerves" over the new and lighter ball. Handicapped by not being able to "press," these victims are going to have difficulty reaching their former standard.

The Metropolitan four ballers displayed considerable something when they refused to hang out the International signs and went through with their opening matches yesterday.

The undefeated Southern District team will play Central at the Belmont Spring Country Club today in the fourth round of the W. G. A. team match championships. The pacemakers must win in order to hold their lead for a defeat will drop them into a tie with their opponents.

One of the best matches of the season is in the offing at Belmont, if Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr. meets Miss Martha Brewer.

UPSETS IN W. G. A. PLAY

WESTERN, EASTERN, CENTRAL WIN

By BILL GRIMES

Three upsets occurred today in the fourth round of the W. G. A. team match championship.

Central went into a fire place tie by defeating Southern 6 to 3 at the Belmont Spring Country club, Eastern pulled up on even terms with Northern by winning a 5 to 4 verdict over the Hicks team at the Country club, and Western came through with its first victory of the season by trimming Beach Midland at Woodland.

Mrs. W. G. Quimby won her fourth straight match of the season, defeating Mrs. D. M. Belcher in a 20-hole match. Mrs. Belcher was 2 up at the turn, lost three of the four holes, but went into the front again at the 17th only to loose the home hole by virtue of a putt which squared the match.

After they had halved the 19th hole Mrs. Quimby pulled her drive out of bounds at the 20th and Mrs. Belcher's tee shot caught the trap. Mrs. Belcher was short of the green with her third, while Mrs. Quimby's 4th was six feet short of the pin.

Mrs. Belcher's chip was short and then she lost the hole and match when she needed 3 putts to get down. One of the hardest fought matches at the Country Club was Miss Edith Stevens' 1 up victory over Miss Margaret Curtis. It was ding-dong battle from start to finish, the Eastern player winning on the home hole.

Mrs. W. J. Hainan won her first match of the season which included a spoiled Mrs. K. Boynston's clean slate of three straight victories.

Due to the terrific wind the Belmont Spring Country Club was too much of a test for the Southern District which went down to its first defeat of the season, losing a 6 to 3 verdict to Central.

Mrs. H. Baker, Jr., hung up her fourth consecutive victory of the season by defeating Miss Rosamond Vahey 3 and 2. Mrs. R. M. Gifford and Mrs. George Wrenn, 2d, were the only other Southern winners.

WILLIAM HENRY SHERDEL

Braves' pitcher.
Born, Hanover, Pa., Aug. 13, 1896.
Height, 5 feet 10 inches.
Weight, 160 pounds.

Wee Willie broke in with his home town team, then a member of the Blue Ridge League, back in 1916. In 1918 he was sold by Hanover to Milwaukee, for $750.

That same season the St. Louis Cards secured him from Milwaukee, and he remained in the Mound City until he was sold to the Braves last June, along with Fred Frankhouse for Burleigh Grimes.

This is his fourteenth season in the majors and in only three years did he fail to win as many games than he lost. His best season was 1925 when he won 15 and lost but six and his next best was '26 when he won 21 and lost 10.

He has seen in two world's series and both times against the New York Yankees. In neither did he win a game, losing twice in '26 and twice again in '28.

His poorest season as far as winning and losing is concerned was 1918, his first year in the majors when he won six and lost 12, but his earned run average of .372 that year is his best mark even in that respect.

Last year he won nine and lost seven.

Like the averaje pitcher, he's not an outstanding hitter but he has been known to win ball games with extra-base blows.

FIVE AND TEN

nous opal, a tiny agate ring with a nic inscription of the late-Saxon period, and a transparent aquamarine cut en cabochon with the figure of a hump-bull. In his library, at this period, were celebrated "firsts" upon the shelves; a Tintoretto, a Greuze, and a triptych of the Cimabue period upon his walls.

What Jenny was demanding for herself and her children were the equivalent of the runic gems, the celebrated firsts, and the costly Greuzes.

His children, even the small boy Avery, approached him only through their mother. The mother herself approached him as a diplomat goes to the conference table, his points carefully tabulated in the portfolio of her mind.

A man, if he loved them, could hold out only so long against his children . . .

The Ficke House

He swung himself to a sitting posture on the side of the bed, and reached for a shirt. It slip on over his nightshirt. He was short, somber, gnome-like, and a little fierce. He wore a nightshirt; and he never forgot it.

"I'll buy you the Ficke house, Jenny."

During the last six months of his six years of life Rarick had occupied the Ficke mansion a man by the name of Dr. Felix Gerke had lived on the top floor of the house. He occupied two rooms and a green bathroom with a frieze of mermaids over the tub.

His meals, for the most part, were brought to him and served on a card table beside a window that overlooked Central Park, which separated him in a diagonal from a museum, where he had spent 21 years in the archaeological department. He was also a Indianologist of first-rank repute, a man who had been frequently endowed with honorary degrees in the realms of scholarship and science.

He was the author of numerous brochures and pamphlets, a text-book on geology that was in general use throughout American colleges, had written three books on amulets, precious stones and meteorites, and was regarded as the foremost authority on semi-religious uses of stones among primitive peoples.

He was a lean, shabby fellow, with a walrus-like mustache and a conspicuously prominent forehead, with thin stringers of hair brushed sidewise across what threatened to become a bald horseshoe. His clothing, so loosely it hung, seemed to have no points of contact with his body.

Rarely Seen

The women of the household, even though they might pass without them so much as encountering him, and then only in a hallway or on the rare occasion when he dined with the family, thought him repulsive, and considered it disgusting of Rarick to insist upon having him there.

A curious bond existed between these two men. They had first met when Rarick had been directed to him for advice concerning a contemplated purchase, for his collection, of a necklace of banded and variegated agates, onyx, carnelians, and sards, attributed to the first century, A.D.

Rarick, who had just returned from Atlanta, where he had contracted for the sale of a ruined Ohio mill output of two million cotton handkerchiefs of the three largest concerns in the South, and in the musty little office of Gerkes, which was laid out at the moment with stone arrowheads of a Navajo collection, and let the wisdom of this slow man flow against eardrums that were still throbbing with the barter for the delivery of the two million cotton squares that were to be sold in eleven hundred and eight stores at five cents apiece.

The thirteenth richest man in the world sat in that musty pocket of an office with Gerkes until museum attendants began to turn off the lights and rattle keys. Then Gerkes, who loved talk, and who, deep in the midst of a discourse on amber deposits in the Stone Age, had found a listener, clapped on his shapeless hat and walked home with Rarick across the twilit park, depositing him at his door, without so much as a glance up at the pale splendor of the facade of the Ficke house, which John Rarick had purchased by sealed bid at sensational auction seven years before. That meeting was the beginning of an implacable friendship between these two.

Invited to Lunch

A week later, Rarick invited Gerkes to lunch at a downtown business men's club. Gerkes did not belong to the world of men to whom lunch is a social or business ritual. He either took his off a lunch-stand in the vicinity of the Museum or cut slivers with a pocket knife off the small loaf of American cheese he kept in a desk drawer along with a box of Swedish biscuit.

His imperviousness to surroundings was colossal. He had once lunched with the King of England over a matter pertaining to the Jubilee jewels, and was unable later to describe the occasion in any respect except the contents of the discussion.

Here was a man who had a decayed-looking green circle on the front of his neck, from a brass collar button, which he was never to discard, even after Rarick had sent him precious ones, but to whom, on the other hand, a thumb on the crystal flesh of an art object was something to cause his own flesh to crawl upward.

A Strange Man

Some five years after these meetings between the two, Gerkes fell ill of a flaying neuritis, and, tracing him to the lair of his brother-in-law, Rarick found him in a small room in the half-up rear of a 23d st. rooming house, books stacked from floor to ceiling, and exactly three personal objects in evidence. A wooden-backed hair brush, a pocket-comb and a tooth-brush, sharing the dresser top with an assortment of Aztec arrowheads, prochotsky of an article on scarabs for the Encyclopedia Britannica, a copy of Plato's "Phaedo" and William Langland's "Pier Plowman" and a World Almanac.

If Rarick had expected protest when he suggested the move from these quarters to the suite at the top of the house, nothing of the sort happened. With his imperviousness to environment or even to the issue of personal obligations, Gerkes took up residence under his friend's roof. One had to live somewhere. Money was something you shared if you had it, or you accepted it if you had not.

Within a week the walls which Jenny had recently had done in yellow Empire, were plastered with maps and the furniture itself littered, as the lodging-house room had been, with the story of the dawn of the human race as told by flint-head, axe and spear littering the floor, decorators' idea of a perfect example of a suite done in the manner of the Second Empire.

Rarick, who had just returned from Atlanta, where he had contracted for the sale of a ruined Ohio mill output of two million cotton handkerchiefs of the three largest concerns in the South, and in the musty little office of Gerkes, which was laid out at the moment with stone arrowheads of a Navajo collection, and let the wisdom of this slow man flow against eardrums that were still throbbing with the barter for the delivery of the two million cotton squares that were to be sold in eleven hundred and eight stores at five cents apiece,

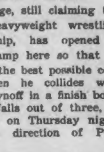
GEORGE WILL CLASH WITH ZARYNOFF

By JACK CONWAY

Ed George, still claiming the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, has opened a training camp here so that he will be in the best possible condition when he collides with Count Zarynoff in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Arena on Thursday night, under the direction of Paul Bowser.

Jack McGrath, manager of George, insists that the meeting between Ed and Strangler Lewis on the Coast was a non-title affair. He says George did not put up his $10,000 diamond studded belt. He adds that Lou Daro, the promoter and Lewis agreed to the non-title angle as George was bothered with eye trouble when he entered the ring.

George defeated Nick Lutze in his last Boston appearance. He does not intend to permit his setback at the hands of Lewis to bother him. He will keep in action as much as possible and is confident he will prove himself to be the best of the heavyweight wrestlers.



Jack Conway

Count Zarynoff, a wrestling acrobat, says he will defeat George on Thursday night. The Count won from George Mamos in his last start and does not intend to permit George or anybody else to halt his victory habits.

Lutze and DiGiane in the Semi-Final

Nick Lutze and Henry DiGiane, French heavyweight, will furnish the action in the semifinal, which will be run off as a finish.

Al Morelli, Boston College athlete, will also appear on the Arena card. Bowser is trying to secure somebody equal in ability to Pat McKay to oppose Morelli.

U. S. Stars Break Japanese Records

Tokio, April 27—American track stars, on a tour through Japan, shattered two Japanese records in the second day's events of the eastern Japan semifinal Olympic tryouts.

George Simpson of Ohio State won the 200-meter dash in 21 seconds, while Harlow Rothert of Stanford University was a winner in the shotput, casting the weight 46 feet 11½ inches.

Listening Post

WITH ALL THE clocks stepped up, talk about Daylight Saving Time will cease until the clocks are moved back again in the fall. Artists and announcers are nearly every program have been advising listeners to adjust timepieces properly. There's no excuse for any one being behind the times today.

JAZZ IS DEAD! Who said so? That's what we asked. Emma Redell, Chicago Civic Opera star (this is her first year) made the assertion, claiming quite naturally, that Opera is the magic word spreading over the radio-minded nation with lightning-like speed. Emma, we're surprised at you! Listening Posters seem to accept Opera on the air as all very fine, but a little goes a long way. Furthermore, Syncopation is vigorously alive.

BROADCASTING moves in the direction of higher standards with the announcement that Oglethorpe College, down in Georgia, includes courses covering microphone technique. Particular attention is given to crooning.

CROONERS are plentiful, it would seem, with scores of applicants every week. Ability to talk well and register personality through conversation commands more money in a school producing performers like Will Rogers, Lowell Thomas, Floyd Gibbons, Amos and Andy, McNamee, Kaltenborn, Phillips Lord and others, should prove successful. Talk is not cheap, not idle talk.

* * *

ADRIAN O'BRIEN, heard on WAAB and WNAC, is being dubbed "New England's Morton Downey." His regular periods are his at present. Only one unfortunate phase attends his broadcasting—too little of it is scheduled.

LOTS OF letters received concerning the Ficke reception. Remember, there are two five dollar cash awards on these. One is for the letter coming from the farthest point and the other is for the most constructive comment.

* * *

ONE selection that a Chicago taxicab company will not permit is H's program is "Walkin' My B-by Back Home."

On the Air

A TOSS of a coin and our problem is solved. Amos 'n' Andy and Rudy Vallee make bid for the spotlight simultaneously and after much forensic dilly-dallying in which news was should deliver first the nickle handed on the A & A side. Which will perturb Vallee-ites, no. At any rate the boys are coming to Broadway and points east. They have signed for personal appearances at the N. Y. and Brooklyn Paramount Theaters, beginning May 1 and continuing through May 7 and then. if all goes well the boys will scoot over to Boston for a week's engagement at the Met.

. . . Rudy's bid for notice is the announcement that he will broadcast his next evening May 3. Over a NBC-WJZ network each Sunday, at 7, he and his trusty megaphone will offer a half hour of music in the CONCERT style . . . The Lowell Thomas b'dcast, WEEI at 6:45, continues for another 13 starting tonight . . . Seth Parker, aided and abetted by Lizzie, Cetus Peters, Ma, Prayer, Lafe Pettigal, Capt. Bang, John, Jane, Mrs. Hooper and Organist Polly, will cavort on the stage of Symphony hall, tomorrow eve . . . George Bernard Shaw, who won't come to the U. S. because, he says, the cream of the U. S. comes to him, will, nevertheless, be heard on the air in this country (N. Y.) . . . Morton Downey is expected at the "Met" in a few weeks. And did you hear Norma Talmadge, current attraction at that theater in their p'gram from WBZA this a. m.? Such a Bubbles. African dance duo, will be heard next week at the same time .

TRY these tonight: "Bole-Rumba" music by the Rhythm Makers over WJEE at 8:30. "Bole-Rumba" is the result of a merger of the popular present day themes, the Bole Fantasy and the rumba . . . Grace Moore, first American lady to score successes in grand opera, concert and sound films.

Local radio stations are as fidgety as the proverbial one armed paper hanger who was suffering from a cutaneous disturbance. They can't stay still. First WNAC shifted about at the Buckminster and then went to WAAB to leave Lexington and join them. Next, WEEI shifted to the top of the new Edison Building where the city is at their feet. And now WBZA is migrating. Some time before July 4, the Atlantic broadcast headquarters will be a thing of the past.

YOU DO NOT HAVE TO MORTGAGE YOUR FURNITURE TO BUY YOUR CAR FROM US.
You can buy a car of any make or description on our plans to pay off in 52 weeks or in 20 monthly payments. The title to your car is yours at the time of purchasing, so that you needn't be afraid of being repossessed. Your first payment is made one month after the car is in your possession. These terms cannot be duplicated. Come in today and let us explain it more fully to you.
To out of town buyers, we are sorry we cannot send a complete list of our used cars on hand, because they sell so fast they are always changing. Some people may think because we sell our cars with a no down payment, that we raise the prices on same. This is not so. Our prices are lower than elsewhere. Compare them yourself. All our cars are sold with a 90-day guarantee.

New Leadership Needed

To Stabilize Prosperity

The prolongation of the business depression in the United States emphasizes the need of new machinery for stabilizing prosperity.

Modern big business and high powered engines of production have rendered obsolete old-fashioned notions about individualism in business.

Primitive competition no longer furnishes the key to economic balance, on which the welfare of tens of millions of persons hang.

If individual corporations were conducted in as haphazard a manner as general business, they would soon drift into bankruptcy.

The next step in social control must be a technique for coordinating the activities and aims of numerous competing business enterprises.

The present lack of co-operation and long-term planning has brought about a state of economic anarchy.

As a result, many human beings are hungry at a time when the bins of the country are glutted with cereals.

The time has arrived for the creation of an economic general staff in the United States, which would undertake to give intelligent leadership to business.

Instead of drifting, Soviet Russia, the prodigal son among the nations of the world, had the wisdom to give a unifying theme to its economic activities through a five-year plan.

Since the war, efforts to direct economic activities on a national scale have also been made in seven other countries—France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Spain, Czechoslovakia, and Japan. Results have been uneven, but they represent a significant groping of the human race for a technique for conquering accident with planned intelligence.

The time has come for the United States to create an economic council, which shall be equipped to think about the future of business in the large.

Purely advisory in its functions, this proposed body would do for business in the aggregate what intelligent management seeks to do for individual companies.

Before and since the panic, numerous farseeing economists and business executives have sensed the need of a collective mind for all business.

The time to begin is now.

President Hoover has the responsibility to take the initiative.

Lewis L. Lorwin, of the staff of the Institute of Economics of the Brookings Institution, in giving specifications for an economic council, points out in the New Republic:

"The main purpose of the federal economic council should be to present what may be called an annual audit of the United States, giving a connected view of economic developments. . . . It could lift us out of our present state of spotty social thinking and haphazard economic research and help us to think of our economic problems as interrelated aspects of national social welfare. It could push forward the frontiers of objective economic thinking and reduce the area of unnecessary social conflict. Above all, it should hold out the promise and hope of becoming in time the economic guide of the nation, pointing to dangers ahead and indicating the path along which economic safety lies."

In place of continuing to drift, we should make a start toward intelligent economic co-operation.

It is a national tragedy to adhere to traditional ideas of peanut politicians, when the modern weapons of scientific methods are waiting to be forged.

The instability of commerce is everybody's business, and the American people are entitled to a clearing house for economic analysis and planning.

Let's turn courageously from a blind policy of muddling through.

They Never Grow Up

Until They Die

Short news item from England:

The 9000-ton steamer Orita, in service between Liverpool and South America for 30 years, has been condemned. Instead of turning her over to the shipbreakers, the company will send her to the coast of Lancashire, raise her flag, and drive her full speed ahead on the rocks. A skeleton crew will make the preparations for her "death trip" and leave in small boats as she heads for the shore.

The company might make more money out of the hulk by breaking it up in the orthodox way. But there is a trace of the small boy even in grave and dignified directors of corporations. You may guess that several from this company will be on hand to see the smash.

Even Thomas Alva Edison is said to have the secret ambition of throwing an egg into the whirling blades of an electric fan. But, of course, he is only 84. In time, he may grow up.

Hail the Autogiro

Pictures are showing President Hoover gazing respectfully at that autogiro on his front lawn. That new air contraption is entitled to respect, for the chances are it is the progenitor of the flivvers in which millions of citizens will ere long be riding in the air.

There is something highbred about the airplane. Its lines and flight resemble a sea gull's.

The autogiro looks more like a doodle-bug. And like a doodle-bug it can remain poised and motionless, with just the wings moving. An airplane can't do that. Unless it goes ahead at fifty miles an hour, it falls.

It can go straight up, without having to scoot to the end of the lot, like an athlete running for first base.

A homely thing, the giro, but we rather like it. And while it is almost five years old, it hasn't hurt anybody yet.

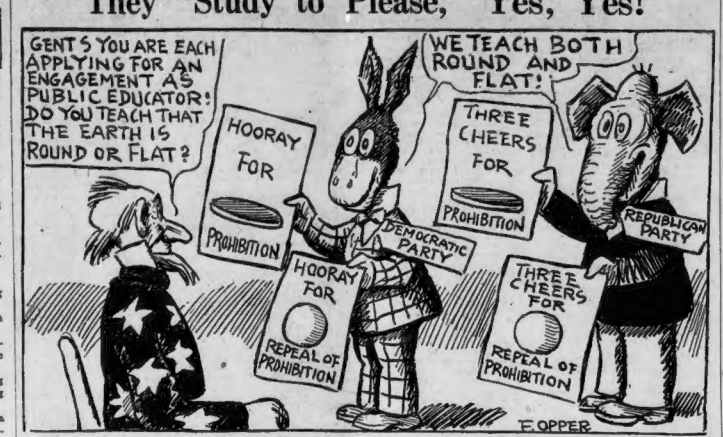
Doctors on the Bench

A six-year-old North Carolina boy put rocks on the track of the Southern railroad the other day. A train was derailed, four passengers hurt, and the boy haled into court.

The judge, after consulting a physician, sentenced the youngster to have his tonsils and adenoids removed. He thought the "criminal tendencies" were probably due to poor health.

It would be an excellent thing if all judges would apply that idea to all criminals. How often crime is due to some physical or mental defect that could be cured by proper treatment is a question nobody knows much about, but about which much ought to be known.

They "Study to Please," Yes, Yes!



You know about the school teacher candidate in the so-called "Fundamentalist" community? School trustees asked, "What will you teach our dear children about the Earth on which we live? Do you teach that it is round or flat?"

Very wise, the young candidate replied, "I teach both round AND flat." He was hired.

Here, behold the donkey that represents Democracy and the heavy political pachyderm, sometimes called Bolivar. Together they teach the great peepul always exactly what they want, flat or round.

Read carefully the signs that Mr. Opper has printed and learn that you may be happy as you vote in 1932. If you don't like a WET donkey, there will be a DRY one. If you don't like a DRY elephant, there will be a WET one. They find their text in the twenty-second verse of the ninth chapter of Corinthians: "I am made all things to all men."

Listen, World! :: Grief

By ELSIE ROBINSON

The Mourning Iris

I SAW it first in a small, shabby garden, on one of those grudging, tight-lipped Spring mornings which come to New England. There it stood, in the midst of the starved grass, in the gray earth whose core was still bitter from the Winter cold. And beside it, an old woman as starved and gray and bitten as her garden patch. What possible tragedy or frustration could so warp human flesh and spirit—I thought. Then the next instant I forgot her at the sight of that strange, proud flower.

Elsie Robinson

A great, dark lilly, rising out of blasted soil . . . with velvety petal, purple-black as smoke. Over the smoke, a filigree of silver veins, as intricate and arrogant as the embroidery of a coronation robe. Amazing—to see that proud, beautiful flower rising from the grim, starved earth . . . holding its head so high against the grudging grayness of the sky.

"Black flag lily," the natives called it, pausing briefly to peer curiously at its dark majesty. They did not greatly admire it—never begged for a root of it. Puritans still, they did not approve of such rich arrogance as either flower or folk. The spirit of sour sacrifice was still upon them. That bitter, frustrated old woman was the result of their creed.

Later, I learned the flower's true name—"Mourning Iris." "Mourning Iris"—a haunting name. A name that came to have a deeper meaning to me as the years passed and I, too, had to root in blasted gardens under grudging skies. Again and again that picture came back to me . . . gray sky, grim earth, gaunt woman and majestic flower.

Out of blasted earth . . . that flower.

Out of blighted life . . . that woman.

Mourners, both. But the woman bore her grief bitterly . . . and the flower bore its darkness majestically.

And I saw that that is the way with all of us. For pain is borne variously and grief is what we make it.

Some wear grief like a coronation robe—as though they had been raised to royalty by their dark experience. As indeed they have. For those who have suffered greatly have gone deeper into the mysteries and adventures of living than other people. They are the initiated and the anointed. They know things that other people do not know and they can, if they will, help as other people cannot help. And there is a strange, proud beauty about them. They have loved and lived and have paid for it with a very great pain but it was all worthwhile. The earth that holds their roots may be blasted, the skies above them may be gray. But they hold themselves gallantly, challenging the grayness and the grimness of life—

They wear pain as that tall lily wore its darkness—majestically.

But others wear their pain as that old woman wore it—meanly, resentful. As though ashamed and angry because, once, they had dared to hope.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Diary of a Modern Pepys

NEW YORK, April 27—Diary of a modern Pepys: This day I gave my wife a wedding anniversary present, a tidy sum saved unbeknown to her. Then to look at a new auto I articled to buy, a light tan with thin red stripes, and to the Garden to see again young Clyde Beatty's bravery among ferocious animals.

Home, where came Jim, the barber, and told of days when a lad on Second ave. and trimmed Gyp the Blood, Lefty Louie, Dago Frank and other arum-scarums of a hell roaring section. And now Jim is barbering at the Ritz, a sedate man of family with a home at Sheepshead Bay.

After dinner to 138th street and Broadway with Minnie Vezey and Flora Le Briton to see a talkie acted solely by dogs, and very amusing, and on the way back I refreshed the ladies with a flagon of orange drink and a red apple. Then reading the sonnets in "Fatal Interview" by Edna Millay.

Dinky ferryboat orchestra, wheezing old favorites and passing the hat, are often the last stand of musicians who have seen better days. A number have played in symphony orchestras. One fiddler was a former leader at Tony Pastor's. And several of the puckish minstrels are those who traveled from coast to coast with trained bears but are now too old to stand such rigors. Orchestras consist of a harp and fiddle, sometimes augmented by an accordion. They rarely average more than $2 a day in their collections.

Bruce Barton is perhaps America's most versatile scribbler. Aside from his lectures, he writes a monthly essay for a magazine, a novel or so a year, numerous magazine articles, newspaper syndicated articles, is head of a large advertising agency, speaks at two or three luncheons weekly. And finds time to play golf.

Max Steur, who has loomed so large in recent headlines as an investigating lawyer, is a product of the East Side sweat shops and later peddled in the waning light of the Orchard street push cart market. He literally came up from the sidewalks and is a beloved idol of the Ghetto. Although a millionaire, he often journeys to the lower East Side to visit old friends not so fortunate.

David Belasco seems about the only playwright actively engaged out of the fraternity that flowered 25 years ago. In those days topnotchers were, aside from Belasco, Augustus Thomas, Charles Klein, George Broadhurst and Eugene Walter.

"We Americans are not for Sale."—Dr. C. T. Wilson in an address.

Just a minute, Doc! What is the offer?

At a nearby table in a restaurant last evening was an Ed Wynnian "perfect fool" in real life. He was a long-faced fellow who festooned his garrulities with fluttery unsure laughs. It was impossible to believe at first glance it was not the stage comedian. The waiter said he was a frequent patron and dinners often sent him slips of paper to autograph, thinking he was the lisping Wynn.

The most startling double I ever beheld was in front of a newsstand in the St. Louis union station. Both my wife and I greeted him as Frank Hope, a New York theatrical man we had known for years. And I, thinking he was spoofing, so irritated the gentleman with my raillery that he grew quite testy. In fact I think he was about ready to smack me down. From thence on anybody can look like anybody they desire and they'll not catch me nibbling in.

And there was the drunk who lurched up to the late Clare Briggs in the Music Box theater and mumbled: "Pella, you look like Odd McIntyre hammered into a runt."

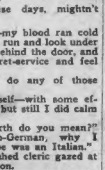
Old 'Pro' Bugaboo Loose

By WINIFRED BLACK

A WELL-KNOWN and rather distinguished clerical gentleman told me a rather strange thing the other day.



Winifred Black

He said the Pope was pro-German.

What nonsense!

I hadn't heard that phrase for so long that I had to think a while before I realized what he could possibly mean.

You might as well say pro-Eskimo, or pro-Jugo-Slav, or pro-Liberia these days, mightn't you?

Pro-German—my blood ran cold and I wanted to run and look under the bureau, or behind the door, and call up the secret-service and feel important.

But I didn't do any of those things.

I calmed myself—with some effort to be sure, but still I did calm myself.

"What on earth do you mean?" asked I. "Pro-German, why I thought the pope was an Italian."

The distinguished cleric gazed at me in stupefaction.

Then, he smiled, not very broadly to be sure—but he did smile, after a fashion.

"Oh," he said, "I see you are having a little American joke. Now I am quite serious; haven't you noticed that all the new bishops in the Catholic faith in America are German—and not Irish?"

"What," I gasped, "German, and not Italian, or French or Austrian, or even"—I hesitated a little—I don't know why, but I did hesitate—"or even American?"

And just as things were getting interesting, a pretty lady came in and we had to talk about the theater, and bridge, and the perfectly shocking new hats.

But since my illuminating little chat with the distinguished cleric, I have pricked up my ears, and, dear me, how much international conversation there is going around. I keep hearing about French, and about Irish, and about Austrians, and, oh, so many charming people, and what they think of various American institutions.

And, strangely enough, nobody says a word about what Americans think of all these foreign ideas, and foreign ways, and foreign influences that we're beginning to hear so much about.

What a terrible thing it is to be old-fashioned—you do get so out of step, don't you?

Now, I always thought that people who came to America to live came to be Americans.

I thought one of the reasons they came was to get away from all the queer ideas that people were entirely different just because they were born under different flags—the skies are a good deal the same, aren't they? but the flags do appear to be, oh, so different.

When I was a little girl, I lived in a community of Americans—we had Germans, Americans and Irish-Americans, and Swedish-Americans, and Dutch-Americans, but by the time the children were in the sixth grade, there wasn't a thing left in school but Americans.

It was all friendly, and kindly, and nobody even dreamed of thinking of a "Pro"-this or a "Pro"-that.

I wonder if we can't get some of the simplicity and honest loyalty of those times back.

I think it would be a relief—don't you?

Bor-ster all, when you come right down to facts, this is neither Ireland, nor Germany, nor France, nor Norway, nor Finland, nor any other place under the shining stars—but America.

Let's all arise and sing, "My Country 'Tis Of Thee."

Mysterious Asiatic Mind

How It Works, We Know Not

GANDHI, WHAT DOES HE THINK, HOW DOES HE THINK?

This strange, thin, ascetic little man does the thinking for 320,000,000 Asiatics.

For 260,000,000 Hindus, barring rajahs, princes and others that get money and protection from England, the brain in this head is the absolute authority. And 60,000,000 Mohammedans follow him, sulkily, through hatred of England.

What HE thinks, 260,000,000 Hindus think, and what HE advises, THEY do.

The mind of Gandhi and his thinking processes are far removed from our own. He thinks Hindus can save themselves from England by boycotting English goods and making by hand the cloth from which their clothing is manufactured.

When he goes to see the Viceroy of India, he takes his little machine with him, squats on the floor—he does not use chairs—and is busy, spinning or weaving, while he talks to the Viceroy, telling him that the people of India want to be independent.

Perhaps his work helps him to think. Old ladies used to say they could think better while knitting. Men tell you they think better while smoking a pipe or a cigarette. They don't, but they think they do.

In this country making cotton cloth by hand wouldn't interest us. We prefer the machine that turns out, in a day, more cloth than ten thousand men or women could make by hand work.

We cannot understand Gandhi's idea of taking one day off every week for "contemplation." On that day he utters not a word, speaks to nobody, sits thinking.

We prefer a day off for automobiling, moving pictures. And as for not saying a word all day long, we even have the radio going, singing or talking, while we talk to each other.

Perhaps something half way between Gandhi's methods and ours would be about right. It is surely possible to talk too little. It is also possible to talk, listen and look too much, as we sometimes do, not giving our brains a chance to work.

What goes on in this Asiatic and utterly sincere mind? What are his thinking methods? How can he convince himself that England ought to be thrown out, when he knows that, with England gone, plagues and famines would return to India, young widows of old husbands would be burned alive with their husbands' corpses, girls from eight to ten years of age would be married, by the hundreds of thousands, to old men.

Gandhi is a sincere and good man. He abominates burning women alive, loathes the idea of marrying little girls to old men.

But he wants to get rid of the English, that have successfully fought plagues and famine in India, have abolished "suttee" (the burning of widows), except rarely when it is done secretly, and has protected little girls from premature marriage.

The facts concerning Gandhi are the same with us. HE deceives himself, WE deceive ourselves.

He thinks that weaving cloth by hand, going backward, instead of forward, will solve an industrial problem.

Some of us think that more money than we can use will make us happy. Many of us, very foolish, think that the wise thing to do is "get by," without giving a full day's work, for a decent day's pay.

The world is full of mistakes, and one of the worst mistakes is that of Great Britain, increasing by 100,000,000 the population of India, an increase that will have to be dealt with some day.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Equal Rights for Men

THE DAY when you could lure a man into matrimony by making him feel that he needed the gentle touch of a woman's hand around the house will soon be gone forever!

What was sauce for the goose is going to be apple-pie for the gander!

If woman could free herself from the "tyranny" of being supported and "cherished," man apparently figures that he can free himself from the tyranny of being domesticated and coddled. If she can wave a pay-envelope in his face, he can wave a waffle-iron and a rolling-pin in hers: Fifty-fifty!

It looks pretty bad for the marriage-license bureau. No man who can wield a baking dish, manipulate a darning needle, and wangle out a pie-crust need feel sorry for himself, now. And, if you can't get a man feeling sorry for himself, how are you going to get him to the altar?

When a man has turned out a perfect clam chowder or a beautifully broiled steak, or a lovely lobster Newburgh, he can call in all the neighbors to admire and sample his handiwork. But there would be no thrill of triumph in waving a clean plate or a neatly filled tarbag before their astonished eyes.

Still, you never can tell how far men will go. When woman freed herself from her dependence on man, by learning how to go out and earn her own living, she STARTED something! She started man pulling the other way.

And, once you start going in any direction, you're bound to go GOING. Nothing, not even truck—can stop him. He will become so expert at range and the darn they won't need wi... women marry?
